Court Funds Go for I O U's, Joe Sartory Jailed

JOE ENGELSBERG FOUND GUILTY

Today

Up Go the Railroads.
Bells to Protect Birds.
Seven Decided to Die.
Peanut Roller—Frog Race.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

The Supreme Court decided in favor of the St. Louis and O'Fallon Railroad against the Interstate Commerce Commission valuation.

THIS may add billions to the values of United States railway stocks.

The happy day of the Wall Street bear is postponed once more.

AT RIVERSIDE, a suburb of Chicago, citizens like cats and birds that do not like each other.

A local ordinance now compels owners to put bells around their cats' necks to warn and protect birds.

Cats without bells will be executed.

THOSE that like birds and cannot do without cats will adopt the idea elsewhere.

If acquired characteristics can be inherited, as undoubtedly they can, after some generations cats will steal up on the birds without ringing the bell until the final spring.

SEVEN suicides in New York City yesterday. A private soldier killed himself and his wife with her approval. They couldn't live together in Uncle Sam's service, they would not live apart.

The wife wrote to friends, "We are going on a long journey." How long is that journey?

And a man "whom nobody knew" crawled out on the tracks of the elevated railroad and lay down, a train soon solving his problem. Thus suicide took seven lives yesterday. Flying took seven on Sunday.

But on Sunday and Monday, hundreds of thousands of new human beings were born. Nature fills the empty places.

FROM sea level to the top of Pikes Peak is 14,000 feet. And Bill Williams, who comes from Rio Hondo, Tex., will push a peanut from the bottom all the way to the top of the peak.

AMBITION takes many forms, including this strange form.

In India men sit on spikes or on high columns. Sometimes they make a vow to roll on the ground hundreds of miles to some holy shrine. Good Americans sit on flagpoles.

Pushing a peanut to the top of Pikes Peak, using as a pusher a small clothespin fastened to the nose, is a novelty.

NOVEL also is the frog jumping contest at Angels Camp, Cal.

A frog named Hooligan won the annual national jumping contest, covering four feet in one jump.

IT IS not entirely foolish. Angels Camp, once a famous gold producer, attracts 20,000 visitors to its frog jump and they spend money. Those frogs could never guess why they were prodded and goaded into desperate jumping.

They know as much, however, as we know about our activities.

THE Kentucky Derby was won by a small racehorse named "Clyde Van Dusen", weighing only 835 pounds, called by reporters "an equine mouse."

The equine mouse had "Man o' War" for a father, and from that father it got energy enabling it to kick mud into the faces of other horses, for a mile and a quarter.

Nature attends to that to prevent a race of super-men. The rich father's money holds the son back.

LORD ROSEBERY is dead at the age of 82. He felt probably that he had everything worth while that the world could offer.

He was educated at Eton, and at Christ Church, "the house" at Oxford. His mother was Queen Victoria's maid of honor, one of her bridesmaids.

He is said to have declared that for real success a Briton should win the derby, be prime minister and possess wealth.

HE WON the derby, he was prime minister, and, marrying Hannah, only daughter of Baron Meyer de Rothschild, he acquired more wealth than he needed.

But it takes more than the derby, the premiership and fortune to keep a man alive in the minds of men. Lord Rosebery will soon be forgotten. His "Napoleon: The Last Phase" is worth reading.

BE CAREFUL about your "cunning pet," especially where your children are concerned.

Alvin W. Miller, high school principal, was proud of a clever cat that awoke him every morning.

It woke him once too often, nipping the hand of the sleeping man slightly, with its teeth. Mr. Miller is dead of blood poisoning.

LINDY IN NEW HERO ROLL

WESTWOOD, Mass., May 21.—(AP.)—Confirmation of a report that a $50,000 extortion and death threat plot had been made against Constance Morrow, was given today by Peter J. Driscoll, police chief.

He expressed the belief that it was the work of a person who has made several similar attempts to obtain money from prominent residents of this section.

Letters in the plot against the daughter of the ambassador to Mexico and sister of Anne Morrow, Col. Charles A. Linbergh's fiancee, were received several weeks ago by the 15-year-old girl who is a student at Milton Academy.

LINDY TO RESCUE

Fears for her safety resulted in a secret journey to New York from where she went by airplane with Col. Lindbergh and members of the Morrow family to the Morrow summer home at North Haven, Me.

The flight revealed Lindy's heroic effort to save the young sister of his fiancee.

Chief Driscoll said today that threats similar to that received by Miss Morrow had been received during the past two years by Mrs. Larz Anderson, wife of the former diplomat, with homes in Brooklyn and Washington; Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, of Walpole, prominent in Republican women's affairs, and Mrs. Curtis Guild, widow of former Gov. Guild. The first threat was received by Mrs. Anderson in 1927. The letter to Mrs. Bird came in 1928 and that to Mrs. Guild in January of this year.

ALL DEMAND $50,000

All of the letters contained the same demand. They asked that $50,000 be left behind a stone wall by the roadside near the homes of James J. Jackson, former state treasurer, and Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, commander of the war-time Twenty-sixth Division. Each of the letters were mailed from the Back Bay postal station in Boston and were printed by hand in pencil.

Chief Driscoll and Inspector Edward P. Flanagan, of the Dedham police, had been working on the plots unassisted until the letters were received. Private detectives were then enlisted by the Morrow family. On several occasions, detectives and police secreted themselves in places near the spot

Poetic Milk Driver Routs Two Bandits

NEW YORK, May 21.—(AP.)—Bandits should beware one red-haired Irishman, a lover of Byron's poetry. William Curtin was held up in the hallway of a tenement by two men after he had collected $200 in bills. He grabbed the gun of one and routed both, shooting one of them. William drives a milk wagon much of the time when not reading Byron.

COURT FUNDS USED FOR I O U'S

A plea of guilty to embezzlement by M. Joseph Sartory, former radio announcer and chief clerk in the county probation office, in Criminal Court today, exposed a 15-year-old practice of cashing checks and I O U's with money paid in for support of women and children.

Sartory was sentenced to serve from one to two years in jail by Judge James B. Drew as he voiced a scathing denunciation of the practice.

CHANGES PLEA

After a jury had been drawn, Sartory changed his plea to guilty. He was charged with embezzlement of $13,450 of desertion and probation funds up to last October when his shortage was uncovered.

"We found by our investigation this had been the custom in that office for 15 years," R. H. Cotton, surety officer for the American Surety Company, which had bonded Sartory, told the court.

Sartory was bonded for $10,000, he said. That amount was paid back to the county along with such funds as could be collected from the makers of bad checks and I O U's. Some of those who had cashed checks with Sartory had pleaded inability to make good, Cotton testified.

Judge Drew took the names of several of these, including an attorney, a movie house organist and a clerk in the county treasurer's office.

TWO OTHERS INVOLVED

Enough of Sartory's shortage had been made up, Cotton explained, that wives and children were not actually deprived of their money, as there was always sufficient cash on hand to meet payments when due.

Two other clerks in the probation office, one of them since dead, whose names were not divulged also had cashed checks with county funds, but their shortage had been made good and they were not prosecuted, testimony revealed. Judge Drew branded this as an "inequality of justice."

Checks and I O U's ran from $50 to $1,050, it was disclosed.

The maker of the $1,050 check, Mrs. Catherine Littleton, who ran a boarding house at 212 Boulevard of the Allies, was found guilty of false pretense in Criminal Court last week in connection with the Sartory shortage. She has not been sentenced.

BUCS AND CUBS CLOSE TODAY

CHICAGO, May 21.—The Pirates and Cubs will fight it out this afternoon on Wrigley Field in the "rubber" game of a highly interesting series. Each club has won a battle in the three-game set.

Manager Bush will send Larry French out to worry the home batters, and it is likely that a left-hand duel will ensue, as Manager McCarthy considers using Mike Cvengros, former Pirate southpaw. If Mike doesn't work against the Buccos, Freddie Blake, of West Virginia, will be on the slab.

French has won three games in a row for the Pirates. His work against the righthanded offensive of the Bears will be watched with interest.

HALF MILLION DEMANDED AS BALM

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 21.—(AP.) — Announcement was made here today that papers in a suit for alleged breach of promise of marriage, claiming $500,000 damages, brought by Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty, 30, of New York, against James J. (Gene) Tunney, retired heavyweight boxing champion, had been sent to Bridgeport to be entered in the Superior Civil Court of Fairfield County.

The papers were sent by a deputy sheriff for filing today and a member of the law firm of Field, Durant & Levere went to court to arrange for other details of entry of the suit.

GARNISHEE BANKS

The papers had not been filed early this afternoon, it was stated at the office of Col. Lewis L. Field, who signed the writ as commissioner of the Superior Court, that the delay was due to details of garnisheeing all banks in Stamford and Greenwich in which there was a possibility that Tunney had a bank account. It was stated that attachment had been entered against Tunney's estate, bought about a year ago in Stamford for a country home and which is assessed for $14,000.

MET AT HOT SPRINGS

Mrs. Fogarty formerly lived in Fort Worth, Tex., where she secured a divorce.

Mrs. Fogarty, it is understood, met Tunney at Hot Springs, Ark., in the early part of 1925. She obtained her divorce from John Fogarty, it is understood, on May 29 of that year. She has a daughter aged about 10 years.

LAW SETS KLINE STRIKE DUTY

Mayor Charles H. Kline's duty insofar as withdrawing police protection from the milk wagons of the Liberty Dairy Products Corporation during the strike is concerned, apparently is covered under an act of the Legislature of 1850.

This act provides that as a commander in chief of the police department, the mayor "may," upon any emergency or apprehension of riot or mob, take command of the police force and appoint as many special patrolmen as he may deem advisable."

NEGLECT MISDEMEANOR

Neglect of his duty or abuse of power is a misdemeanor under the act. This also applies not only to the mayor but to "lieutenants of police and policemen hereby organized, for any neglect of their duties, or abuse of the powers" granted by the act.

"Upon complaint duly made to the judges of Quarter Sessions Court by any citizen or other persons aggrieved" by the Mayor's failure to act, or any of his lieutenants to do the same, Kline or any of his police officers can be haled before the court, "and if, upon examination, said judges, or any one of them shall be satisfied that there is sufficient cause to bind him over, the said party or parties shall thereupon be bound over to take his or their trial for a misdemeanor in office," and "upon conviction thereof shall

RAIL RATE RAISE NOT EXPECTED

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(INS.)—"I am confident there will be no increase in railroad rates as a result of the O'Fallon decision." This statement was made by President Hoover today in reply to questions put forward at the usual Tuesday press conference. No other comment was made on the Supreme Court's momentous decision.

PHILADELPHIA, May 21.—(AP.)—"The Pennsylvania Railroad has no thought of requesting any general increase in rates," said Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania, today, in reference to the Supreme Court decision in the O'Fallon case.

"I see nothing in this decision to cause any change in its policy."

Ziegfeld Skeptical On Cantor Quitting

NEW YORK, May 21.—(AP.)—Flo Ziegfeld would seem skeptical. Anent the announced plans of his ace, Eddie Cantor, to retire next season and enjoy himself, the producer says:

"If Mr. Cantor retires from the stage I'll do the same thing next day. Anyone making as much money as Mr. Cantor is going to think twice before leaving his profession."

A jury in Federal Court today was deliberating on the guilt or innocence of Joseph Engelsberg, Hill politician, charged with conspiracy to violate the liquor laws.

Judge Nelson McVicar delivered a brief charge, following an address by Assistant United States Attorney Raymond D. Evans, and the jury retired at 10:45 a. m.

BERGER TESTIFIES

Charles Berger, a convicted bootlegger, with whom Engelsberg is charged with conspiring, although Berger is not a defendant, testified to having purchased bonded whisky from Engelsberg on a number of occasions between November, 1925, and the summer of 1926. The defendant is represented by Attorney Mortimer Lesher.

WITNESS PAROLED

Berger testified that his transactions with Engelsberg terminated in a quarrel over $300 Engelsberg claimed was owed him by the witness. Berger was paroled from the Atlanta Penitentiary after testifying for the government in the original North Side liquor conspiracy case, in which he was a defendant, but at the time was serving a sentence on a previous liquor violation.

MELLON DENIES PLAN TO QUIT

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP.)—The office of Secretary Mellon, in making public a statement today by the treasury department head, announced that the Secretary had not resigned and had no intention of doing so.

"My attitude as to the question of resignation is the same as Benjamin Franklin's was under similar circumstances when he said: 'I am deficient, I am afraid, in the Christian virtue of resignation.'"

Recently reports have persisted that Mr. Mellon was about to retire from the cabinet. They have been denied at his office and today the Secretary took cognizance of the reports by issuing a statement.

CRIME SURVEY OPENS MAY 28

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Little time is to be lost in getting President Hoover's new law enforcement commission to work.

The President decided today to assemble the members in Washington next Tuesday. The ten men and one woman who are to probe the causes of American lawlessness and endeavor to find a remedy for it will meet with Mr. Hoover around the White House luncheon table, and hear from him just what he expects they are to accomplish.

HOOVER TO GIVE PLAN

It will be up to Mr. Hoover to define the scope of the inquiry, for none of the members have been given any preliminary charts. It is expected that the President will reiterate his expressed belief that the present high peak of law breaking cannot be attributed wholly to prohibition, although that phase of it holds popular interest more than any other.

The first intensive scrutiny of the new commission gave the scrutinizers little for their pains. There are no outstanding anti-prohibitionists on the commission; and nether are there any drys of the fanatical type,

BEVINS' BRIDE HALTS RETURN

Thomas E. Bevins, of 233 Lakewood avenue, West View, today walked out of Common Pleas Court minus his bride of a day, when the hearing on his petition for a writ of habeas corpus resulted in an indefinite continuance of the case. Judge Thomas J. Ford took this action after he had been closeted with the couple and their attorneys for about 20 minutes.

It was reported that Bevins' wife, Stella Cousins Bevins, refused to take up her abode with him and that she was not being detained, as Bevins charged, against her will, by her parents.

DOWNTOWN BANK CROWD ROUTED BY TEAR BOMBS

Clients who visited the savings department of the First National Bank, Fifth avenue and Wood street, shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon, were seen leaving the place with tears in their eyes. Five tear gas bombs exploded when a demonstrator for a manufacturer of tear gas and equipment accidentally pressed a lever which released the charge. There was considerable excitement, but no one was hurt.

The gas fumes rapidly filled the premises and spread to other parts of the building. Clients and employes dashed to exits, their eyes smarting from the fumes. Persons on the twenty-fifth floor, it was said, felt their eyes smarting from the gas.

Traffic on Wood street was halted for several minutes as hundreds of pedestrians milled about the bank to learn what had happened. An hour elapsed before employes returned to their posts in the bank.

RUTGERS STUDENT DROWNS FLEEING RIVAL CLASSMEN

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., May 21.—(A.P.)—The annual pajama rush, last of the year's inter-class battles at Rutgers University, ended tragically in the drowning of a freshman in the Delaware and Raritan Canal.

He was pulled out unconscious five minutes later by classmates without regaining consciousness.

HELP OF U. S. TO BE ASKED IN STUDY

CHICAGO, May 21.—Men and women of the nation who are devoting their lives to locating and straightening out the mental disorders that make criminals discussed their achievements and ambitions at a two-day meeting which opened yesterday.

They gathered as members of the American Crime Study Commission, organized two years ago as the outgrowth of an editorial by William Randolph Hearst entitled "We Cannot Cure Murder With Murder."

That was the central theme of speakers at the meeting. They discussed legal processes, punishments, efficiency of police. Study of all of those factors was specified as being vital to solution of our crime problem. But almost without exception, the sociologists, penologists and lawyers who compose the commission called attention to the fact that crime can only be abolished by study and elimination of its causes.

U. S. PRISON HEAD SPEAKS

Sanford Bates, recently appointed superintendent of federal prisons, followed a technical discussion of penal methods and paroles with the assertion:

"We must dig deeper into the social fabric to discover the real remedies for crime. Until we do, all of the courts in the world and all of the prisons in the world will be ineffective."

"Prolonged and concentrated study" of crime to determine proper preventive measures was advocated by Prof. Justin Miller, dean of the law school of the University of Southern California and president of the section on crime of the American Bar Association.

Dean Miller declared the immigrant home the most prolific breeder of crime, saying:

"Our immigrants usually live in the poorest sections of the city and their standards of living are very low. When the children see the nice homes of their schoolmates, they become dissatisfied. Too often they turn to crime to attempt to elevate their standards quickly. Motion pictures react upon children and people in the same way. A boy compares his clothing with that of the motion picture character, and wishes to have the same. It is then he is apt to become dissatisfied."

H. N. Randolph, of Atlanta, announced that he would introduce a resolution before the commission calling upon Congress to use the facilities of the United States Census Bureau in providing students of crime with reliable data.

INTEREST IN YOUTH

Particularly are the social scientists attending the meeting interested in the control of juvenile delinquency. Mr. Hearst sent a telegram to the commission addressed to Judge A. C. Backus, of Milwaukee, chairman of the meeting, in which he said:

"The great solution, and, as far as I can see the only sure solution of the crime situation of which we complain is education and opportunity—very few criminals are criminals from choice."

The message was read in full at the opening of the commission meeting by Prof. Andrew A. Bruce, of Northwestern University, secretary.

NOTABLES ATTEND

Sessions of the commission opened yesterday morning and the day's program ended last night with a banquet tendered to the members by Mr. Hearst. The meetings will be continued through today.

Among those attending the sessions are: Judge Frank Murphy, of Detroit; Mrs. Minnie J. Berlin, member of the Illinois Department of Public Welfare; Commissioner William F. Russell, of the Chicago Police Department, and Deputy Commissioner John Stege; Judge Ben Lindsay, of Denver; Norma W. Beck, of the University of Chicago department of political science; Elizabeth M. Brennan, of the Woman's City Club; A. G. Mariska, of the Department of Public Welfare; Dr. Alice Hamilton, of Boston; Dwight Campbell, of Pierre, S. D.; E. T. Kruger, of Nashville, Tenn.; Dr. W. D. Partlow, of Tuscaloosa, Ala.; C. L. Young, of Bismarck, N. D.; Jack Levin, of Portland, Ore.; Dr. Ben Reitman, head of the Chicago "Hobo College;" J. Henry Johnson, of Allandale, S. C.; Judge J. W. Jayne, of Detroit; Josiah Morse, of Columbia, S. C.; Mrs. Fred K. Whitney, of Montpelier, Vt.; Charles Parson, of Des Moines; A. W. Miller, of Lincoln, Neb.; Mrs. E. H. S. McCauley, of Harrisburg, Pa.

Judge A. C. Backus,
American Crime Study Commission,
Stevens Hotel, Chicago, Ill.

There are two influences which cause crime,—heredity and environment.

There are two influences which determine human character,—heredity and environment.

There are two influences which determine practically EVERY ACT AND IMPULSE OF HUMANITY,—heredity and environment.

We cannot affect HEREDITY; that belongs to the PAST.

We can determine environment; that belongs to the PRESENT.

I mean the influences of heredity are active once the individual has been brought into the world.

There may come a time when we will understand the principles of eugenics better than we do at present, and when we may be able scientifically to prevent mismating and the consequent inheritance of evil or undesirable traits and characteristics; so that then, in a sense, questions of heredity may be determined before the child is brought into the world.

BUT WE DO NOT HAVE TO WAIT AN HOUR in order to be able to improve the surroundings and circumstances, the ENVIRONMENT, which is the second great creator of character.

And when I say second I do not mean second in importance, but merely second in sequence in the development of this argument.

To my mind, environment is immensely more important, in nine cases out of ten, than heredity in the creation of character and the determination of the career of the individual.

In a previous article I illustrated what I mean by saying that if twin babies had found their way into a foundling asylum, and one infant had been taken out of the asylum by a reputable family and brought up in a reputable environment, it would in all likelihood become a reputable citizen.

While the other, if taken out of the asylum by a family of criminals and brought up in a criminal environment, would undoubtedly come to think and act as a criminal.

It would certainly be most unusual if a child subjected to reputable influences should become a criminal, and a child subjected to criminal influences should become a reputable citizen.

The lesser influence of heredity and the greater influence of environment can be illustrated in a larger and more nearly national way.

America and Australia were populated in their very earliest stages, in great part, by elements which were considered more or less undesirable in the older countries of Europe which these elements voluntarily and adventurously left, or from which they were forcibly expelled.

And yet these countries have become the most progressive in the world, the most highly developed in intelligence throughout the mass of the people, and in the main the most moral and the most consecrated to the highest ideals of the highest civilization.

What has become of the descendants of the irresponsible adventurers, the scapegrace sons, the bond servants, the redemptionists, and the indentured maidens, the undesirables, and even the criminals, which made up, not all, of course, but nevertheless a considerable part of the earliest emigrants to these virgin countries?

They have become the leaders of the thought of the world, the vanguard in the march of progress, the inspirers of liberty, the creators of national prosperity, the sponsors of universal education and enlightenment.

The IRRESPONSIBLES have become RESPONSIBLE for about all that makes life worth living.

The NARROW-MINDED BIGOTS have given to this country and to the world freedom of speech, freedom of thought and action, and religious liberty.

The CRIMINALS have helped to establish even handed justice and equality before the law.

What has become of heredity?

It has become modified by environment and liberalized by opportunity.

Those elements which got away to a bad start because of HEREDITY have nevertheless come to a glorious finish because of EDUCATION and OPPORTUNITY.

The environment which has improved conditions in these two great countries to the point which they have been improved can more nearly perfect conditions through a more nearly perfect environment.

The education and opportunity which have created the greatest people in the world can make these people greater still.

The education and opportunity which transmuted certain undesirable elements into estimable citizens can transmute other undesirable elements into estimable citizens.

The great solution, and, as far as I can see, the only sure solution of the crime situation of which we complain, is EDUCATION and OPPORTUNITY.

Education and opportunity have caused progress and prosperity and have created mental and moral enlightenment among our people; and if we want MORE progress and MORE enlightenment and MORE morality and less criminality, we must have more EDUCATION and more OPPORTUNITY.

Very few criminals are criminals from choice.

Most of them are criminals through force of circumstances.

"There, but for the grace of God, go I," said John Bunyan as he saw a man being dragged to the gallows.

Have you who are assembled here today to investigate the causes of crime ever gone through the crowded slums of a great city, and wondered how good, how noble, how honest, how pure, how fine, how decorous or even how decent you would have been if you had been raised in that environment?

I hope you would have survived the environment, and risen triumphant above it; but I do not believe I would have. I do not believe I could have.

Evil environment CREATES criminals.

Evil education CONFIRMS criminals.

Lack of honest opportunity makes criminal opportunity seem the only course.

Perhaps you will say that in these days of prosperity there is honest opportunity for everybody.

And yet one of the greatest heroes of the World War, one of those noble and courageous individuals whom we praise most, and possibly sincerely admire most, had to pawn his medals to keep alive.

So, if opportunity was lacking for this good man and noble character, perhaps it does not after all rush headlong at every youth raised under the discreditable and discouraging environment of the slums.

And when there is no sufficient education and no sufficient opportunity for a youth raised in that environment, what is he, with his limited knowledge and his slender chances, going to do in the world?

The more vigor he has, the more spirit he has, the more determination he has not to be beaten under by the hardness of his fate, the more likelihood there is that he will become a daring and dangerous criminal.

The qualities of courage and resourcefulness which make a successful criminal might, if properly directed and developed, make a successful honest man.

We have a vigorous, courageous, independent, energetic, ambitious race of men here in America. We have virile youth, determined to get along some way, honestly or dishonestly, according to their education and opportunity.

It is the duty, and indeed the advantage of us reputable American citizens, who have the power and the numbers to control circumstances, to see that this virile youth has the RIGHT education and the RIGHT opportunity to make GOOD CITIZENS out of them and not CRIMINALS.

Environment and heredity control character.

In fact, environment will do more: it will not only control character; IT WILL CONTROL HEREDITY.

It has done it in individuals, it has done it in nations in the past.

It will do it today.

WE can control environment.

So the solution of the whole criminal problem is in OUR HANDS.

Education and opportunity will ELIMINATE criminality.

It is for the people of the United States to provide adequate education and opportunity, and to create honest and able American citizens where criminals now grow.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

CRIME BOARD CONTAINS NO RADICALS

CALLED GOOD JOB

The off-hand opinion of Washington is that President Hoover did a good job on a difficult assignment.

The chairman, George W. Wickersham, Attorney General under Taft, has never been classified as a wet or a dry. Recently in a speech he expressed the opinion that the Jones law would defeat its own ends by its very severity, but that's about as far as he has gone publicly in expressing an opinion about prohibition.

BAKER CONSERVATIVE

Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War under Wilson, similarly has never been classified. He supported Smith in the last election and was quoted during the campaign as saying: "I have never been a prohibitionist." But he has never taken any public stand against it, otherwise.

Judge William S. Kenyon, of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, probably can be regarded as the dryest meember of the commission. As a senator from Iowa before the adoption of the eighteenth amendment, he was always prominent in pushing dry legislation. He was co-author of the Webb-Kenyon bill, making shipment of liquor into dry territory a federal crime.

Dean Roscoe Pound, of Harvard Law School, is rated a judicially-minded liberal, with no positive commitments on the prohibition question so far as Washington knows. The same is true of Monte M. Lemann, of Tulane University.

DRY POLITICALLY

Col. Henry W. Anderson, Republican leader of Democratic Virginia, is rated dry, at least politically.

Frank J. Loesch, vice president of the Chicago Crime Commission, was appointed because of his intimate knowledge of racketeering and crime in Chicago, and the laxity there of criminal prosecution.

The others are Federal District Judges William I. Grubb, of Alabama; Kenneth R. McIntosh, of Washington, Paul J. McCormick, of California, and Miss Ada Comstock, president of Radcliffe College.

How much latitude this commission is going to have in probing prohibition remains to be seen. It depends almost entirely upon President Hoover. He conceived the idea, he appointed the commission, and he will outline the scope of its work when it is assembled here the last of the week. The commission can hardly go beyond his instructions.

It is expected that most of the work will be done in Washington, although it has not been decided whether hearings will be held outside. Like so many other things, that depend's largely on the President's instructions.

The professional prohibitionists like F. Scott McBride, of the Anti-Saloon League, and Bishop Cannon, Jr., were out of town, and other league officials were silent.

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment contented itself with a statement saying that it would co-operate with the commission in every way possible to get facts.

TUNNEY SUED FOR BALM

Bank of Stamford, People's National Bank, Stamford Savings Bank, City Savings Bank, Fidelity Title and Trust Company, Stamford Trust Company, and Greenwich Trust Company.

Deputy Sheriffs Maley and Ryan said that inasmuch as the papers had been left at the Tunney place and in the town clerk's office sufficient conformity to legal practice had been and it was not necessary that the suit be filed in the Superior Court until May 30. The New Haven law firm wishes the matter to come up on June 4, when the court term opens.

TWICE DIVORCED

FORT WORTH, TEX., May 21.—(AP.)—Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty, who has instituted a $500,000 breach of promise suit against Gene Tunney, was reared in Fort Worth.

Her maiden name was Katherine Gaddis. She first married "Red" King. After their separation King was killed. Her next marriage was to John S. Fogarty, plumbing contractor, from whom she obtained a divorce in 1925.

Mrs. Fogarty has been living in New York for several years.

It was reported here before Tunney's marriage that he and Mrs. Fogarty were engaged. They were said to have been sweethearts for years, dating from about the time Tunney was in the Marine Corps. Shortly before Tunney's marriage to Polly Lauder a report was current that he and Mrs. Forgarty had been secretly married in or near Fort Worth, but this was proved false after an investigation.

"NONSENCE," SAYS PAL

ALBANY, N. Y., May 21.—(AP.)—The Albany Times-Union today published an interview with Police Commissioner William J. McCabe, of Poughkeepsie, a close personal friend and advisor of Gene Tunney, in which McCabe described as "nonsense" the breach of promise suit instituted against the former heavyweight champion by Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty.

"That's nonsense," the newspaper quotes MscCabe as saying. "Gene knew Mrs. Fogarty only casually and I know she was in his company only once or twice while he was in the South."

BIG BUSINESS FOR INCOME TAX CUT

With a great volume of petitions signed by executives of the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, the Rosenbaum Company, the McClintic-Marshall Construction Company, the Pittsburgh Meter Company and scores of other banks, mercantile establishments and industrial plants, the campaign for the revision downward of the federal tax on earned incomes today made rapid progress.

The petitions from the Union Trust Company, one of the largest financial institutions in the country, represented every department in that vast concern. The presentation of the petitions, which will be sent to Congress, gives documentary expression to the views of H. C. McEldowney, president, whose support of the fight for lower taxes on the incomes of wage earners was announced several weeks ago.

DEPARTMENT STORE AIDS

The Rosenbaum company is the fourth Pittsburgh department store to assist in the movement by furnishing petitions from its personnel. Nearly 500 names appear on the petitions. Previously the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph campaign was joined by the Joseph Horne Company, Boggs & Buhl and Frank & Seder, each concern furnishing nearly 100 per cent in signatures to the petitions.

The Blaw-Nox Steel Company, Armstrong Cork Company and Booth & Flinn, Ltd., were among the large industrial concerns where petitions were taken today for signature.

ACCOUNTANT SUPPORTER

Frank Wilbur Main, president of Main & Co., certified public accountants, and a director of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, a staunch supporter of the movement for downward revision of the federal tax on earned incomes, today stated that the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph campaign was bearing good fruit. No sound argument, he said, has been offered in opposition to the proposal to reduce the burden on professional men, salaried people and all wage workers.

"The lightening of the tax on these creators of wealth will result in betterment for the community and the nation," said Mr. Main. "The Hoover administration seems to favor a reduction of the tax on earned incomes, and this should be pretty good assurance that a cut will be made."

LINDY FOILS KIDNAPING

FAIL TO APPEAR

Dummy packages were placed there by a girl who acted as a "double" for Miss Morrow after she had left Milton Academy. The author of the letters failed to appear, however.

Chief Driscoll said today that progress in the case had been made since the Morrow letters had been received and that an arrest was imminent. He attributed the letters to a "crank."

AMBASSADOR WORRIED

MEXICO CITY, May 21.—(INS.)—American Ambassador Wwight W. Morrow was worried today by reports that death threats had been made against his youngest daughter, Constance, 15, unless $50,000 were paid to alleged extortion plotters. He refused to deny or confirm the reports.

It was learned that threats had been made against the Morrow family before Mrs. Morrow and her older daughter left for the United States. They were taken so seriously by authorities that secret service men guarded Mrs. Morrow and her daughter to the United States border. According to the police these threats were made by Communists.

ANNE DISTRESSED

After the news of Miss Anne Spencer Morrow's engagement to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was published, numerous impertinent letters were received by members of the Morrow family, it was revealed by U. S. embassy attaches.

Some of these crank letters distressed Miss Anne Morrow greatly, "scolding" her when it was reported that she did not address Col. Lindbergh by his first name.

Miss Elizabeth Morrow was said to have received letters containing marriage proposals and "mash" notes."

Officials of the club are also endeavoring to have the Goodyear Rubber Company send one of its small dirigibles to the Beaver Valley from Akron, O., on Memorial Day, the date set for the dedication.

LOVE QUARREL, ACID SHOT, ENDS IN PAIR'S DISCHARGE

The story of a sweetheart quarrel, which terminated the romance of Anna Mullen, 34, of 1101 South Negley avenue, and Henry Shields, 30, butler, at 1145 Beechwood boulevard, was told in Police Court today when the two were haled before Magistrate Thomas Jones as suspicious persons.

They were arrested late on the night of May 16 at their trysting place, South Negley and Dunmoyle street, after a violent dispute, climaxed, police charged, by Anna throwing acid in Henry's face.

They formerly were sweethearts, it was testified. Miss Mullen heard Shields was paying attention to another woman, and summoned him to the trysting place. Drawing the vial of poison from her purse, she made as if to drain it, the story went, when Shields snatched at it. They scuffled, and drops of the caustic fluid splashed on his face. He said he did not wish her to be prosecuted.

"Are you still her friend?" asked Jones.

"Not particularly," he answered.

Lindy's Triumph Came 2 Years Ago Today

Two years ago today Colonel (then Captain) Charles Augustus Lindbergh alighted in his Ryan airplane, "Spirit of St. Louis," at LeBourget flying field, Paris, the first person to cross the Atlantic from continent to continent in a single flight of a heavier-than-air machine.

Lindbergh, unaccompanied, made the flight in 33½ hours, leaving New York at 7:51 a. m., Eastern standard time, Friday, May 20, 1927, and arriving in Paris at 5.21 p. m. (10:20 p. m. Paris time) Saturday, May 21.

The world still sorrowed for the loss of Nungesser and Coli, French aviators who perished in an attempted trans-Atlantic flight shortly before, and while "Lindy" was in the air, odds of 50 to 1 were quoted at the Aero Club, of Pittsburgh, that he would not succeed.

5th U. S. Fishing Boat Seized by Canada

VICTORIA, B. C., May 21.—(INS.)—The fifth American fishing boat seized for alleged illegal presence in Canadian waters was held today at Esquimault, pending confiscation proceedings. The craft was salmon trawler No. 557 G. A., owned by Raphael Wasankart and Keino Lanto of Astoria, Ore.

Rumors have been in circulation here that activity against American boats of doubtful standing in Canadian waters is in retaliation for the sinking of the British ship I'm Alone as a rum-runner by coast guardsmen outside territorial waters of the United States.

GIVES AWAY TROLLEY PASS AND FINDS IT'S WORTH $50

August Miltner carried $50 around in his pocket last week, and he didn't know it!

He gave it away, Saturday noon, and still he didn't know it. And the man to whom he gave it gave it in turn to a friend, and none of them recognized its worth!

The $50 was in the form of a street car pass. Miltner lives at 1423 Evergreen avenue, Millvale, and is employed as a watchman on the North Side. Every day last week, Miltner used his blue pass, No. 68,013, at least four times.

Each time he used it, he fingered $50, for the pass was destined to be chosen for the second grand weekly award of that amount in the street car pass campaign of the Sun-Telegraph and the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

Saturday, Miltner was finished with the little card, so he gave it to a neighbor. The neighbor finished with it later in the day, and gave it to a friend. Early in the afternoon, Miltner bought a Sun-Telegraph, saw his number in the reward column, and began a frantic search for his former pass.

E. W. SCHAEFER

It took several hours of rapid scurrying back and forth for the ex-owner to find that pass, and Miltner was still sighing with relief when he brought it triumphantly to the Sun-Telegraph to collect his award.

Miltner felt it would spoil his luck to have his picture taken, but E. W. Schaefer, the first pass-winner of the week, isn't superstitious, and cheerfully submitted to the photographer.

Every week the Sun-Telegraph gives away, in conjunction with the Pittsburgh Railways Company, $700 to holders of current passes. A grand weekly award of $100, one of $50, and 10 of $5 each are published in the Sun-Telegraph each week.

In addition to these, 25 numbers each day receive awards of car passes for the following week, five receive $5 rewards, and five $2.

Owners of these current, buff, series No. 21 passes have been chosen for today's awards of passes good next week:

00,872	29,314	59,009	79,117	17,999	41,789	66,311
87,511	26,951	56,672	76,641

Holders of the following current passes are entitled to receive $5 rewards:

38,381	75,511	28,233	70,890	19,133

Employes of the Sun-Telegraph and the Pittsburgh Railways Company are not eligible in this contest.

FLIER KILLED, PUPIL HURT IN LESSON ON TAIL SPINS

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., May 21.—(AP.)—Capt. Arthur Argles, Canadian war pilot, was killed, and Albert Harris, wealthy real estate operator and aviation student, was in Nassau Hospital today as the result of a lesson in tail spinning.

Argles went up with Harris yesterday in the broker's plane to demonstrate to the beginner how to handle his ship in a spin. Observers saw the plane go through several maneuvers then whirl downward.

The wreck of the plane was found with the nose buried deep in the earth on a farm two miles from the field. Both men were alive when taken out. Argles died in the hospital an hour later. Physicians said Harris had only a slight chance for recovery.

Argles with Oliver Le Boutellier was engaged last year for the projected trans-Atlantic flight of Mabel Boll. The expedition was abandoned in Newfoundland. Before entering the Canadian Royal Flying Corps he was a member of the second Shackleton Antarctic expedition.

CLINIC DOCTOR DIES FROM BLAST GAS

CLEVELAND, May 21.—(AP.)—Dr. George W. Belcher, staff physician of the Cleveland Clinic, succumbed today to the effects of poisonous gas which filled the building after two explosions Wednesday. He was the one hundred and twenty-fifth victim of the disaster.

He was the seventh physician at the clinic to die of the fumes, generated by burning X-ray films in a basement store room. He was a specialist in diseases of the bladder and was a leader in research in his field.

Four others were in a critical condition from the noxious poison today. Henry W. Lustig, a patient in the clinic at the time of the explosions, was not expected to live.

The mystery of the fire and explosion which killed 125 persons from poisonous gas generated by burning X-ray film in the basement of the clinic was intensified today with the knowledge that more than twice as much film kept in other parts of the building failed to ignite.

The fire originated in a storeroom. In a room above, according to Dr. B. H. Nichols, still more film was kept, and this was untouched during the double explosions which rent the interior of the structure and burned out the woodwork. Nichols made the statement to Coroner A. J. Pearse, investigating the disaster.

Dr. George W. Grile and Dr. William E. Lower, co-founders of the clinic, today were to give Pearse their version of the calamity.

Airplanes were used to bring two "oxygen tents" from New York, and another came from Boston by train, for the treatment of remaining victims.

Thirty injured were in hospitals today, two of them admitted last night. Three cases were discharged, and physicians reported all but the seriously injured out of danger.

'GAS' REMOVED IN SLIDE PERIL

A landslide on Edmond street, Bloomfield, today had moved a large frame building off its foundation, and threatened 14 gasoline tanks of the Gulf Refining Company, in Bloomfield Hollow, 200 feet below.

Workmen labored all night draining the tanks, estimated to contain about 430,000 gallons of gasoline and then filled them with water to prevent their collapse in the event the slide reached them.

Ten Negro families living in houses on Edmond street, on the brink of the precipice, were ordered from their homes after one building had moved on its foundation.

The slide, which started several days ago, became serious last night due to the rains, and police were summoned after building department inspectors had made a survey of the situation.

Officials of the refining company said that should the slide crash down onto their property below, many of their tanks might be crushed.

Ruins of Old City Pumping Plant Unearthed

Workmen excavating for the new Pennsylvania freight terminal at Eleventh street, today were digging deeper into the ruins of a long-forgotten pumping station, the second installed and owned by the city. It was said to have been put in operation July 4, 1844, and used until 1884, when it was abandoned in favor of the Highland Park station.

While making a test drill O. F. McWilliams, an engineer, saw his drill disappear. When the layer of brick he struck was penetrated workmen found under a brick arch two caverns nine feet deep, running toward the Allegheny River. Later they found a well of the old station. McWilliams said the brick tunnels were in a wonderful state of preservation, and that the mortar used would have lasted for many years to come.

ANOTHER FLIER DIES IN 'WAR'

YELLOW SPRINGS, O., May 21. —(AP.)—Killed on a flight of friendly greeting between rival airmen in the United States Army air and ground war game in Ohio, Second Lieut. Florin W. Shade today was the second victim of the maneuvers. He was killed in a plane crash near here late yesterday. Second Lieut. Edward Meadow lost his life in a head-on collision with another plane Saturday.

Shade was assigned to the First Pursuit group of the Air Corps at Selfridge Field, Michigan. His unit was stationed with the Blue Army at Norton Field, Columbus, for the maneuvers.

He was flying at about 200 feet altitude when the engine stopped, according to P. A. Donley, near whose home the plane fell. Shade was dead when taken from the wreckage.

TO 'BOMB' NEW YORK

WRIGHT FIELD, DAYTON, O., May 21.—(AP.)—Governors Island, off New York City, was the mark today of the initial experiment of armed forces with long-distance bombing cruisers. A regulation United States Army bomber with 2,200 pounds of explosives was fitted for the non-stop air "raid" to be accomplished by two refueling contacts over Washington.

The scheduled departure this afternoon, with favorable weather, was the first attempt to send one of the heavy ships on a long flight while loaded to capacity. The distance, about 1,300 miles, is more than double the cruising range of bombers.

Hungarian Girls Fight Duel Over Man

BUDAPEST, May 21.—(INS.)—Women invaded a new domain of man today when two beautiful Hungarian dancing girls "met on the field of honor" and fought a duel with swords.

The combatants were Mary Radvanny and Sussane Winghardt. Sussanne was severely wounded in the shoulder. As she felt the blood spurt from the wound she exclaimed:

"Good Lord, I cannot wear evening clothes any more."

Then she fainted and was taken to the hospital.

The adversaries parted without a reconciliation. The challenge resulted from jealousy over a man friend.

SEA HOPS SET TOMORROW

OLD ORCHARD, Me., May 21.—(INS.)—The Bellanca monoplane in which Roger Q. Williams and Lewis A. Yancey hope to fly to Rome probably will not begin the great adventure before tomorrow morning.

The fliers had planned to take off from the sandy beach at dawn this morning, but unfavorable weather reports forced them to postpone the start of the nonstop flight for another 24 hours.

Meanwhile mechanics loaded the "Green Flash" with gasoline and oil. The fliers had a successful trip here from Teterboro, N. J., making the journey in a little more than three hours.

For food the fliers will take two roast chickens. A small quantity of whisky also will be taken.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, NEW YORK, May 21.—(INS.)—M. B. Clausen, American representative of the three French fliers who plan to cross the Atlantic to Paris in the Yellow monoplane Canary, set tomorrow morning as the probable starting time. Weather reports for today were not encouraging.

Rene Le Fevre, with Jean Assolant, will pilot the ship across the ocean. Armeno Lotti, Jr., backer of the projected flight, is going as a passenger.

SENATE SPEEDS WORK TO GET JUNE RECESS

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP.)—Assurance of a vote this week on the pending census-reapportionment bill in the Senate has prompted congressional leaders to lay plans for a vacation beginning at the end of the month and carrying through at least until early in July.

Senator Johnson (Rep.) of California, obtained the agreement in the Senate yesterday restricting debate on the census-reapportionment measure after Thursday. Only the conclusion of the lengthy attack of Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, on the "power trust" and his denunciation of the purchase of newspapers by power interests remained to be heard today before the resumption of work on the bill.

The House still had the tariff bill before it and the conferees of the Senate and House were engaged with their study of the conflicting farm relief measures.

A vote will be asked sometime this week by Chairman LaFollette of the Senate Manufactures Committee on the resolution of Senator Wheeler, proposing a Senate investigation of the strikes in the textile mille.

U. S. CUT GIVES PARLEY HOPE

PARIS, May 21.—(AP.)—America's offer to accept a substantial reduction in the amount of annuities in settlement of its war claims on Germany has become the event of the hour in France.

The reparations experts have new optimism because of the concessions, which while small in proportion to the total reparations claims, may be sufficient to induce the necessary compromise on the part of others.

In French circles the American offer was understood to be for a 10 per cent reduction in the size of annuities to the United States arrears on the costs of occupation of the Rhineland, or, about $1,190,000 a year for 37 years. This figure represents only approximately one-fourth of 1 per cent of the total German annuities to the creditor nations.

But it is understood, a matter of about three-quarters of 1 per cent of the annuities as asked by the Allies has separated them from the figures the Germans have indicated as acceptable. Thus, but one-half per cent or 10,000,000 marks (about $2,400,000) adjustment in the size of the annuities would remain to be accomplished.

111th Memorial Plans to Be Made

GIRLS WEAVE DREAMS INTO 'FAIRY' GARB

The unusual spectacle of a score of crippled girls making their own costumes and those for the boys for a fairy-operetta can be seen these days at the Industrial Home for Crippled Children, Denniston avenue. The production, "Storyland," written by Harvey Gaul and Miss Elizabeth Hays Wilkinson, will be presented by the crippled children at Carnegie Music Hall, June 4.

The task of making costumes of great variety for a cast of 60 boys and girls is no small one for girls who must use crutches for support when cutting out, pressing or fitting costumes. But, despite this physical handicap, the girls are making rapid progress.

To the crippled children in the cast the characters in "Storyland" are real. They are part of their very lives. Jack and Jill, Little Miss Muffett and Little Bo Peep are all ready to sing their stories. Bobby Shafto has gone to sea, but he will return because Curly Locks is watching and waiting for him. Tommy Tucker will be keenly disappointed to see him, because he loves Curly Locks and hopes Bobby never will return.

Members of the executive committee of the home's board of managers, who are taking a keen interest in the production, are Mrs. Samuel Harden Church, chairman; Mrs. L. Gerald Firth, Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson, Mrs. James I. Kay, Mrs. John W. Lawrence, Mrs. George W. McCandless, Mrs. Samuel A. McClung, Mrs. James C. Rea, Mrs. Douglas Stewart and Mrs. Francis S. Guthrie.

STARTS UP PIKE'S PEAK PUSHING NUT WITH NOSE

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., May 21.—(AP.) — Bill Williams, a plasterer, of Rio Hondo, Tex., set out yesterday to convince the world he is the champion peanut pusher of the world by propelling a goober with his nose to the snow-covered summit of Pike's Peak.

Williams began his unusual journey from Rainbow Falls, in Ute Canyon. His destination is Summit House, 22 miles away. If all goes well, he expects to progress toward his goal at the rate of a mile a day.

A device attached to his nose enables Williams to propel the peanut without loss of skin. Heavy gloves and knee pads fashioned out of automobile tires protect the pusher's hands and knees from sharp rocks. He expects to wear out many peanuts on the trip.

Williams' career as a peanut pusher began last fall, when he rolled a peanut from Rio Hondo to a neighboring town 11 miles distant over a paved Texas highway after losing an election bet.

Weather Conditions.

The southeast low is now centered off the North Carolina Coast, lowest barometer, 29.92 inches at Hatteras. It caused rain over all the Atlantic Coast states, during yesterday and last night, and it is still raining from North Carolina to New England.

High pressure, centered north of the Lakes, covers most of the central valleys. It is causing clear skies over that section as far east as Central Ohio, and moderately cold weather throughout its area. Frosts were reported in Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Northern Ohio and Indiana with temperatures ranging from 40 to 45 degrees at the weather bureau stations.

Low pressure over the far Southwest is producing showers over Colorado, New Mexico, Kansas and Western Texas.

River Conditions.

The rivers above Pittsburgh are about stationary or falling slowly. Light rains over both rivers during last night will give sufficient runoff to prevent any material fall, but not much rise is expected. Stage at Franklin is 6.8 feet; Lock No. 7, 19.2; Pittsburgh, 17.6; Dam No. 2, 9.8; Dam No. 6, 17.7; Dam No. 8, 17.1, and Dam No. 12, 15.3.

1,200 BOY SCOUTS MAKE TRAFFIC CHECK THURSDAY

More than 1,200 Boy Scouts will be stationed at 225 street intersections in the downtown and outlying districts from 7:30 a. m. until 6 p. m. Thursday to take a traffic count, speed check and flow survey for the Better Traffic Committee. It will be the largest single day's effort to get traffic data ever attempted in the nation, it was said.

The boys will be under the supervision of A. T. Benson, scout executive for Allegheny County, with Tom C. Venable in active charge. The city will be represented by Burton W. Marsh, traffic engineer, and Herman Pokrant, Marsh assistant.

The count this year will be the third annual one. Last year an increase of 300 an hour was noted among motor vehicles, while the number of horse drawn vehicles showed a decrease of 146 per cent in comparison with the previous period.

Data gathered by the boys will be used in determining the character of protection needed at intersections in the outlying districts. The information also will be used by the City Planning Commission in its study of street layouts.

The boys will serve without compensation, excepting for the credit they receive on their public service records. Scout executives have set up prizes for participation, neatness and accuracy. The boys will be given money for transportation and lunch.

KLINE'S DUTIES FIXED BY LAW

SUITS FOR DAMAGES

The law also provides that where damage caused by the rioting or other overt acts can be proved, the county is responsible for the damage. Property owners can bring suit under the act "and the amount which shall be recovered in said action shall be paid out of the county treasury, on warrants drawn by the commissioners thereof, who are hereby required to draw the same as soon as said damages are fixed and ascertained."

With the preliminary injunction granted late yesterday by Judge Thomas J. Ford, of Common Pleas Court, in force, violence in the strike today showed a decided abatement.

Three men, alleged to have hurled bricks at a driver and his helper at Wylie avenue and Tunnel street early today, were held for court, charges with inciting to riot, by Magistrate Thomas Jones in Central Police court. They were John Smith, of 1451 Holly way; William Comans, of 721 Watson street, and Patrick Cooney, of 348 Thirty-ninth street.

VICTIMS TESTIFY

Walter Warner, of 720 Hatteras street, and John Scrothe, same address, testified against the three and identified them as their assailants.

Following the instructions of Mayor Kline, police continued to guard the milk company plant, but did not furnish police protection to individual wagons.

Patrolman John N. Thompson, Jr., of 812 Madison avenue, North Side, reporting at the Center avenue station, suffered cuts on his right leg when he fell on the Hooper street steps, where he had climbed to investigate throwing of bricks at a barn used to house the milk company's horses. He was treated at Mercy Hospital and sent home.

WAGONS ON TIME

A crowd of men at McGann's corner in the West End stopped a wagon and forced the driver to turn about and drive toward the downtown district, informing him he could not proceed further. When he reported the incident at the plant, officials sent him out again, and police officials notified the West End station to be on the lookout for him and see that he was permitted to pass through their territory.

Most of the wagons were started out on time today, accompanied by special deputy sheriffs or guards.

In its petition yesterday the company cited 15 cases of overt acts of violence, in which it was cited that men remaining at work had been attacked. With issuance of the injunction, company attorneys said, persons arrested in the act of interfering with milk or ice cream delivery by force will be lodged in jail on charges of contempt of court.

Action for the injunction followed Mayor Charles H. Kline's dismissal of a committee of citizens who called upon him with a request that city police assist in preserving order in the strike. A hearing will be held Monday on the question of making it permanent.

STRIKERS' PLEA MADE

The bill of complaint named as defendants milk drivers, ice cream drivers and inside helpers of the Liberty Dairy Products Corporation; local No. 306, and officials of the local, Young Workers' League (Communists), officials and a number of individuals.

The court was asked to restrain the defendants from interfering with any persons now, or hereafter to be employed by the company, from loitering or picketing at the plant at Forbes and Boyd streets, from threatening violence to employes and from violent attacks on horses, motor vehicles or other property of the plaintiff used in the delivery of ice cream and milk.

In a statement last night, Attorney Louis Little, retained to represent the strikers, denied that any violence had occurred by reason of the strike, reviewing alleged causes of the walkout, and appealing for public sympathy for the strikers. He characterized the employment of police and deputy sheriffs as only a ruse on the part of the company and other companies which have been "employing men at starvation wages, and refusing to grant their employes the privilege of taking one day a week off." The statement continued:

"We want the public to know through the public press that this strike was caused by denial of the corporation to permit its employes to join a union affiliated with the American Federation of of Labor, refusal of the corporation to give the men a living wage, and refusal of the corporation to have one day a week rest and demanding that they work 365 days a year without vacation or any rest period whatsoever."

COUNCIL URGED TO AID CITY'S AIRWAY BID

Council has received from Robert Garland, chairman of its finance committee, a resolution asking the Mayor and Council to request Federal postal officials to place Pittsburgh on the national airway system.

Garland said that Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, in an address before the Chamber of Commerce on May 17, had announced that air mail service between Pittsburgh, Washington and Baltimore was under consideration.

A recently completed survey by the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation revealed a widespread interest as well as the imperative need for this proposed air mail service, Garland declared.

Representatives of Pittsburgh aviation interests will appear tomorrow before the Washington authorities to urge the early inauguration of the air mail service, according to Garland.

NEW AIRPORT PLANNED

A new airport adjacent to the Pittsburgh district, intended to supplement Allegheny County's proposed municipal field, will be established near Greensburg, it was announced today by Maurice R. Scharff, president of the Main Aeronautics Company here.

Approximately 700 acres of land along the Greensburg-Mt. Pleasant road and adjacent to the Lincoln Highway is to be purchased immediately, according to the announcement. Plans for the construction of two 3,000-foot runways and hangars will materialize in the near future, it is said.

Nurses' Institute Planned Next Week

Modern achievements in the field of nursing will be demonstrated to visiting nurses attending the Instructors' Institute conducted by the Pennsylvania League of Nursing Education in the auditorium of the Board of Education Building, Forbes street and Bellefield avenue, beginning next Monday and continuing through the week. EVER 'BUZZING' TOWN HALL URGED ON DOWNTOWN SITE

In a statement furthering its campaign to obtain the proposed Town Hall for the downtown district, the Allegheny County Town Hall Association, in a statement last night, stressed the importance of locating the building where it is easily accessible to citizens from all sections of the county.

Primarily, the building will be a commercial enterprise, it was pointed out.

"Just as no business firm would locate an office building, a large theater or transient hotel apart from the heart of the business district, just so would it be folly to place this building other than downtown," the statement read.

"The largest number of people mingle in the business section, and it is in such a district that our building must be located. If it were placed elsewhere, the building would of necessity be dark many days in the year, a feature which would eventually prove disastrous. A building buzzing with business and catering to the public every day and night is the only type which will be successful."

Another opinion on where the Town Hall should be located was submitted yesterday by J. I. Winslow, a citizen, who suggested in a letter to the county commissioners that Barbeau street, between Liberty and Penn avenue, would be the ideal spot. The property there is owned by the Pennsylvania railroad, he said. Additional improvement would make necessary the widening of Liberty avenue to 100 feet, according to Winslow.

"Then the widening of Penn avenue," the letter says, "on its northerly side from Barbeau street to Water street from 60 to 100 feet would permit the doubling of the width of the ramp to the Point and Manchester bridges, sufficient, I believe, to take care of the traffic over both bridges."

Melwood Avenue Widening Asked

Council has received an ordinance authorizing the widening of Melwood avenue from Byron street to Bloomfield Bridge.

LOST EVIDENCE HUNT IN VOTE CASE FUTILE

An attempt to ascertain who was responsible for evidence being lost in the case against three election boards of the Twentieth Ward, which resulted in the cases being quashed yesterday, proved fruitless today, although it did disclose many times when the evidence might have been lost.

The cases were brought against the boards in June 1922 when Judge Harry H. Rowand was district attorney. Judge Rowand said today that the chief county detective cared for all evidence while he was in office, and referred those after information to Sheriff Robert Braun, who was chief county detective under Rowand.

EVIDENCE MOVED

Sheriff Braun said that if the ballots, which were to be used as evidence, had ever been brought in, they were in the small evidence room on the fifth floor of the courthouse. However, in 1925 the courthouse was remodeled and the evidence moved with the district attorney's office to the third floor. All evidence was moved under Braun's direction, he said today, and not even a scrap of paper overlooked.

Three election boards yesterday pleaded no defense before Judge Gray, who postponed sentence until May 29, and announced that other cases in which there would be pleas taken, would be disposed of the same day.

PLEAD TO NEGLIGENCE

The board of the Second district of the Twentieth Ward, composed of Thomas Rourke, judge; John Wachter and Thomas Devin, inspectors, and Minnie Kossler and Mary Shamung, clerks, pleaded guilty to negligence in counting the ballots at the September, 1927 primaries.

The board of the First district of the Second Ward, Homestead, composed of Nick Seibert, Alex Black, Frank C. Best, William Hill and Mrs. Jeanette Samuels, pleaded guilty to negligence at the November, 1926 election.

The board of the Third district of the Second Ward, Homestead, also pleaded no defense. The board was composed of Frank S. Masley, H. H. Erhart, S. Sedlak, Andrew Leakania and Thomas Rosco.

Purity Demanded For Food Products

A campaign for more stringent federal regulations to protect consumers against adulterated and imitation preserves, jellies and jams, is being conducted by manufacturers of high grade food products in this country. Representative Daniel A. Reed, of New York, has introduced a bill in the House, which would require all manufacturers to state specifically the quality of their products. Mr. Reed appeared before the Agricultural Committee in behalf of the bill and said that such legislation would protect more than 2,000 legitimate manufacturers of these products from unfair competition.

5 ARRESTED, STILL SEIZED IN SERIES OF DRY RAIDS

Prohibition agents and constables in five raids late yesterday and last night arrested five men and confiscated a still and a small quantity of liquor, they reported.

In a raid on the home of Charlie Malone, 24, of 2157 Bedford avenue, they reported they found a 100-gallon still, a quantity of moonshine and paraphernalia for the manufacture of illegal liquor. Malone was arrested.

Liquor was reported confiscated in raids in the saloons of Thomas Yankovic, 35, of 719 East street; John Reams, 45, of 607 Madison avenue, and Mike Verlihay, 42, of 3044 Preble avenue. Yankovic was released under $1,000 bail, and Reams and Verlihay on their own recognizance. Harry Muzyk, 40, was released on his own recognizance when the raiders reported finding liquor in his poolroom at 1010 Madison avenue.

MACHINE GUN BANDITS KILL 2

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 21.—(INS.)—Search was in progress today for machine gun bandits who killed two Mexican policemen and took $5,000 in cash and checks from an automobile carrying the proceeds of the Agua Caliente gambling resort.

The holdup occurred on the outskirts of San Diego. Policemen J. P. Berrego and M. R. Montroy, of Tia Juana, were riddled with bullets from two sub-machine guns when the opened fire on the three bandits. Most of the loot was in negotiable checks.

31st Ward G. O. P. Indorse Charter

Officers were elected and the Metropolitan Charter was indorsed at a meeting of Thirty-first Ward Republicans last night in Calhoun Park fire engine house, Lincoln Place. Senator James J. Coyne, chairman of the Republican City Committee, presided. The officers are: C. J. McBride, chairman; Mrs. Emily Bertan, vice chairman; George Schmeid, secretary, and John Chivino, treasurer. Those attending the meeting were served a luncheon by the women of the organization.

Koppers Building Contractors Feted

Sub-contractors, foremen and others employed on the construction of the Koppers Building were guests at dinner and entertainment given by the Mellon-Stuart Company last night in the Keystone Athletic Club. James B. Kelly, vice president of the Mellon-Stuart Company, was toastmaster. The committee in charge included Roy Clark, Carl Thumm, W. R. Harris and R. Schnicke.

GOLDEN TO ASK FULL PARDON

Charles F. Golden, former fire captain and North Side political leader, sentenced to a year in the county jail in connection with the election frauds in the Twenty-second Ward, has notified authorities that he will make application for a full and free pardon. He was released from jail last October, after serving seven months and 17 days of a year's sentence. His case will be taken up at the next meeting of the pardon board in Harrisburg June 19.

Through his attorney, Golden will contend that he was not a member of the election board in the district in which the frauds and conspiracy were committed, and that his conviction and sentence to jail were contrary to the weight of evidence. His disfranchisement after conviction of a felony prevents him from re-entering the fire department or holding any public office until his record has been cleared.

POSTAL THEFT JAILS WOMAN

Mrs. Jessie E. Taylor, 29, former postmaster at Claytonia, Butler County, was sentenced by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson, to serve one year and a day in the Federal Woman's Reformatory, Alderson, W. Va., when she pleaded guilty to embezzling $3,570.71 of postoffice funds.

She told the court she was separated from her husband, and supported her two children and father and mother, and that some of the money stolen was used to pay hospital and doctor's bills. Postoffice Inspector R. A. L. Blake testified that some of the money had been used in making payments on an automobile. The money was stolen between last July and February.

METHODIST LEADER SCORES DOUBTERS AT BIBLE MEET

Doubting Thomases among non-evangelical churches were assailed last night at the first evening session of the interdenominational Bible conference, being held in the First Presbyterian Church under the auspices of Moody Bible Institute, of Chicago.

Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the Methodist Episcopal Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, told an audience of almost 1,000 persons that the non-evangelical churches were on the decline because many of their clergymen had been robbed by their own disbeliefs of the capacity to influence laymen.

FAITH TERMED VITAL

Pulpits from which issue the cold, negative precepts of ethical philosophy based upon an attempt to explain existence logically gain no converts, said Dr. Wilson. Only a militant, evangelical church, following a lode-star of immutable doctrine, can inspire faith, the Methodist leader declared.

"Our experience certainly will affirm that the true believer can build a faith by preaching our doubts, or even the negative results of our own scholarship," Dr. Wilson declared. "The world is to be saved by the truth, alive, incarnate in a man who believes it, soul and body; is preaching it because he can't help but tell it, and longs to proclaim it to the whole world, everywhere to everybody.

"The secret of the success of the church is a clear-cut doctrinal contention that it is willing to defend against all comers, to profess in life, and to die for if necessary. And it is not worth while to expect human nature to die for negative, hair-splitting distinctions that have no background in the nature of things."

Sessions of the conference are being held daily, at 12:20, 3:30 and 7:45 p. m. The conference will be concluded Friday evening.

JOINT SERVICE PLANNED

At this evening's session the Rev. Dr. J. C. Massee, pastor of Tremont Temple, Boston, will speak on "Redemption and Reconstruction."

The Rev. Dr. James M. Gray will deliver a popular exposition of the gospel of John tomorrow, Thursday and Friday afternoons at 3:30 o'clock.

At the noon service for business people tomorrow, the Rev. Dr. A. Z. Conrad, of Park Street Congregational Church, Boston, will deliver the address.

At the evening session tomorrow there will be a joint prayer meeting of the First Presbyterian Church congregation and the conference session, with a musical service led by Mr. and Mrs. Talmadge J. Bittikofer, of the music faculty of Moody Institute. Dr. Conrad will speak on "Unshaken Validities in a World of Storm."

SCIENCE UPHOLDS BIBLE

Science, patiently delving for the history of man's unrecorded past, has made no breach in the walls of Biblical truth, Dr. James M. Gray, famed Bible expositor declared today.

Here for the sessions of the interdenominational Bible conference at the First Presbyterian Church, Dr. Gray expressed his belief that science had strengthened and not diminished the foundations of truth of Biblical history.

In the excavations of archaeologists on the sites of ancient cities, Dr. Gray saw not a blow at faith in the Scriptures but verification of Biblical records.

PRESBYTERIANS FACE VITAL ISSUES

By the REV. DR. JAMES H. SNOWDEN,

Editor of the Presbyterian Banner and Sun-Telegraph correspondent at the Presbyterian General Assembly which opens at St. Paul Thursday.

The one hundred and forty-first general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. will meet in St. Paul Thursday, and will be entertained by the House of Hope Presbyterian Church, of which the pastor is the Rev. Harry C. Swearingen, who formerly was pastor of the Third United Presbyterian Church of this city and is a brother of Judge Joseph M. Swearingen.

Dr. Snowden

The general assembly is the highest legislative and administrative body of the church and its annual meeting is the great event in Presbyterian circles. The main part of its business deals with its four boards of national missions, foreign missions, Christian education, and pensions.

The question of granting women full equal rights with men in the church will come before the assembly in a proposed overture, which if the assembly so orders, must be sent down to the presbyteries for their action.

The overshadowing issue before the assembly is that of Princeton Theological Seminary, which has been in trouble and kept the assembly and church in turmoil for several years.

The matter will come before the assembly in four reports, first, the majority report of the directors recommending the two boards of directors and trustees be merged in one board consisting of the present membership of both boards; second, minority report of the directors recommending that things remain as they are; third, the report of the trustees recommending that the report of the special commmittee of 11, which was presented last year and awaits action this year, be adopted, and fourth, the report of the special committee which recommends one board consisting of 33 members, 11 from the directors, 11 from the trustees and 11 not members of either board, these 33 members to selected by the special committee.

M'KEESPORT POLICEMEN, INDICTED, ASK JOBS BACK

A plea for reinstatement was made to Mayor George H. Lysle, of McKeesport, yesterday by six of seven policemen and a city inspector, indicted by the Federal grand jury for alleged violations of the national prohibition laws. They were suspended following their indictments.

Each professed his innocence. The mayor told them that since their suspensions had been confirmed by the council it would be necessary to obtain that body's consent before reinstatement would be possible.

Those appearing before the mayor were Lieut. James Gray, Desk Sergt. Fred Krelling, Plainclothesman Martin Manning and Motorcycle Patrolman Robert Hurley, Le. Vannebush and Dudley Prosser. The inspector was William Englert, in charge of meat and milk inspection.

Youngstown Theater Bandit Gets $500

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 21.—A bandit yesterday secured $500 from the State Theater in the heart of the business district and escaped in an automobile operated by an accomplice. Wilfred Van Dusen, high school student, wrested the bandit's pistol from him in a scuffle which followed the theft, but the thief escaped.

UNCLE SAM SELLS RING USED AS SALOON BRIBE

Uncle Sam played the part of a jewelry salesman yesterday afternoon and disposed of a diamond ring.

The ring was a "hot coal" for some time in the hands of the United States attorney's office. It has been produced in evidence against Walter Henshel, a former prohibition agent, who was convicted of accepting it as a bribe from Roy Blakely, a North Side saloonkeeper.

After the trial the court ordered it sold to the highest bidder. The bids were opened yesterday by J. Wood Clark, clerk of the Federal District Court, and it was awarded to Miss Marie Lacher, of Melrose avenue, North Side, who had made a high bid of $21.

LIQUOR SINKING HIT AT OTTAWA

OTTAWA, May 21.—(AP.)—The sinking of the Canadian schooner I'm Alone by the United States coast guard, soon to be the subject of arbitration proceedings between the two nations, was condemned by a member of the House of Commons yesterday.

C. H. Cahan, Conservative, told the House "the evidence seems clear that the sinking took place 215 miles from the United States coast."

He said the coast guard "never sank a British ship 215 miles from the coast unless by wireless she had received direct instructions from the political authorities of the United States to commit that act."

If the coast guard received such orders, he said, the sinking was "an act of war and if not it was an act of deliberate piracy."

Printed georgette in biege and blue tones was employed in the making of this attractive style. The vestee and lining of the bows is of beige crepe. The blouse is fitted at the hips, below slashes that hold fulness to effect the blousing. The sleeve is a fitted one-piece model. The skirt is plaited at the right side of the front and back, and is mounted on an underbody that may be of lining.

The pattern for this dress is cut in six sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. To make the dress for a 38-inch size will require 4¼ yards of 39-inch material together with 1 yard of lining 32 inches wide for the underbody. To finish outer edges of the points, and the neck and sleeve edges with bias tape 2½ yards is required 1½-inches wide. The vestee of contrasting material requires ¼-yard 18 inches wide and cut crosswise. The width of the dress at the lower edge with plaits extended is 2⅛ yards.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

Modernizing Love

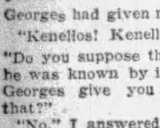
NEXT to a box-office man's expression when you ask for two-on-the-aisle, there is nothing quite so lofty and incredulous as a sub-deb's smile when you mention the quaint old emotion called "love."

* * *

"Work" is a man's nickname for the two hours he spends interrupting the office force and mussing up his desk before he goes out for the afternoon's golf.

* * *

You may drag him to the altar by sheer brute force, Diana; but it takes more than will-power to make a man love you.



HELEN ROWLAND

A new heart interest, like a new pair of bifocals, always spoils a man's eyes for the old ones.

Knowledge may be power, but after marriage a woman's happiness depends chiefly on the number of things she doesn't know.

A group of archaeologists, all WOMEN, are excavating in Palestine. Considering how many years women have been hunting for the things men lost, finding a couple of buried cities should be mere child's play.

* * *

"I love you!" is still the sweetest sentence in any tongue—but, alas, it is no longer a life sentence.

* * *

As long as she can see through either lens, a normal woman goes through life looking for the Ideal Lover and the Perfect Romance.

* * *

Up to twenty-five a boy's most absorbing problem is how to catch the women; after that, his biggest problem is how to UN-catch them.

* * *

Somehow, husbands "stayed put" a great deal longer when women tied them to their apron strings than they do now that they are tied by the purse strings.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Tells Lillian About Charles Owen

AT Lillian's request to tell her what I had discovered about Charles Owen, I meticulously related everything Prince Georges had told me about Samuel Brixton's half-brother. Lillian listened attentively, making no comment, asking no question until I had finished. Indeed her silence lasted for a long minute afterward. Then, musingly, she repeated the "talisman" Prince Georges had given me.

"Kenellos! Kenellos!" she said. "Do you suppose that's the name he was known by in Trees? Did Georges give you any clue to that?"

"No," I answered, "unless that word is, really his name, as I am inclined to think it is. You see, we had so little time, he was telling me these things while Olina was resisting the entreaties of the other girls to stay a little longer, and he was keeping an eye upon Mr. Owen all the time he was talking. I don't think he purposely kept anything back concerning Owen. In fact he told me that he would tell me more about it at the first opportunity. But he thought I might need some effective weapon against the man."

"There must be something serious hanging over his head for Georges to know that the utterance of a single word would disarm him," said Lillian. "But I don't believe you'll have to use it. How could Charles Owen harm me—I know it's on account of me you distrust the man—except to aid Brixton in whatever scheme lies behind this offer of restitution? And you'll see he'll not appear in that at all. He'll simply be the brains behind it."

"I fancy you're right," I answered. "But I feel a lot safer with that name locked away in my mental filing case."

"Of course," she assented. "It bolsters my courage a bit, too. And now, old dear, I'm going back to my room and get into some civilized clothing. Don't let Marion know I was down so early, nor that I know she went to the beach with Ronald."

"You're still supposed to be sleeping the sleep of the just or the righteous, or whatever name the quotations call for," I told her, "so you don't need to hurry your dressing. The rest of the family won't be down for another hour."

"Sam Brixton will," she said with conviction. "You saw what time he went to bed last night. He always took the early bird as his favorite and tried his best to discourage worms from following his example. I shall be ready for him, however, thanks to you, at any minute. But don't you dare to leave me alone with him!"

She had risen from the couch and was almost at the door as she gave me the warning.

"I won't," I promised, omitting to tell her that Katherine and I already had settled that point between us. Then she was gone, and I busied myself with restoring the things in the living room to their usual orderly arrangement, after the impromptu dance of the night before, and replacing faded flowers with fresh blossoms.

The living room finished, I went out on the veranda, finding little to do, for the flowers were still perfect. Then, as always when I have a moment, I stood looking toward the distant ocean, with the dipping woodland and meadows between, bathed in the autumn sunlight. From down the road, hidden by the lilac hedge, came the purr of a motor and then Ronald drove the car into the farmyard. I wondered how he had missed the gate post, for his eyes certainly were not on the road. They were looking at Marion's face, upturned to his, flushed, lovely, with so rapt an expression of interest in what he was saying that I did not wonder he was lost to everything else.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Setting the Table

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please tell me the correct way to set the table when just a salad, sandwiches, cake and coffee are served?

MRS. K. L.

THE hostess may place the salad in the salad bowl and with the accompanying utensils for mixing the salad—salad fork and spoon—at her end of the table. Nearby is the pile of salad plates. She serves the salad and passes each service to a designated guest.

At the individual place for each guest is the plate, and on the left of the plate the salad fork and on the right the salad knife, if, as is common now, a knife as well as a fork is used for eating a salad.

To the left of the plate is the bread and butter plate and on these the sandwiches are placed when they are passed.

The cake and coffee are served after this salad course, unless the hostess knows that her guests prefer their coffee served with the salad. The coffee spoons are placed on the saucers as the coffee is poured. The cake may be passed, cut or to be cut by the guests, and taken on the cake or dessert plate.

Your Resignation

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

As I am about to resign from a small bridge club, will you kindly send me the proper form for a short note telling of my intention? D. R.

YOUR note of resignation would be worded something like this: Dear Mrs. Wood (for "Dear Mary"):

I am so sorry that many responsibilities made it necessary for me to resign from our bridge club, and I have had such thoroughly delightful companionship and such happy times in the club that I have postponed my resignation until now. But now my time is so very full that I must clear it for my added work. Will you tell the committee, please, and thank them and the members for their kindness and friendliness, and for all the good times that I have had? I hope not to lose contact with you all, in spite of my busy days.

Dearest wishes to you and to all the club members.

Cordially yours.

How to Keep Well

By Royal S. Copeland, M. D.

'Hidden Scurvy' May Affect Baby's Teeth

BABIES are born without teeth. While they may appear earlier, the infant is usually 6 months old before the first teeth cut through the gums.

DR. COPELAND

In the meantime the teeth are inclosed in tiny sacs hidden within the tissues of the gums. These sacs rest in depressions in the bony tissues of the jaw. After a while the root of the tooth is given more of the hard material necessary for its development. As the growth of the root proceeds, the tooth is pushed outward until it penetrates the soft covering of the gums.

There is quite a definite order in the cutting of the teeth. Of course, this is not the invariable rule, but it is the order to be expected.

As I have said, the teeth begin to appear when the child is about 6 months old. The two lower, central teeth, known as "incisors," are first seen.

At from 8 to 12 months of age, the four upper incisors appear. These are known to the doctors and dentists as the "central" and "lateral" incisors.

The lower lateral incisors are next to be seen. Along with these we get a grinding tooth, a molar, on each side of the upper and lower jaw.

By the time the child is from 18 months to 2 years old, the four "eye teeth" are cut. Shortly afterwards the second molars appear.

As I have said, this is the usual order. There are many variations from it, particularly if the health is bad. Some infants are very slow indeed about geeting teeth. Others cut them earlier in life.

The most common cause for delay in the appearance of the teeth is a disease known as rickets. This is not always true, but it is the general rule that the appearance of the teeth and the disappearance of the soft spot on the top of the head go along together.

Anything that interferes with the proper nourishment of the infant will have its effect upon the teeth. It is very important that the diet of a child should be so regulated that good, strong teeth are guaranteed.

In olden times scurvy was a common disease. We see little of it now, but there is a condition which we may call "hidden scurvy." If the food given the child is deficient in vitamin C it is very likely that the teeth will be badly formed and will quickly decay. Likewise, if the baby is breast-fed, unless the mother's food contains this vitamin, the teeth will not develop as they should.

Milk, orange juice and tomato juice are rich in this vitamin. If there is any question about the milk given the baby having an abundance of vitamin C, there should be no failure to give orange juice or tomato juice every day.

Nothing adds more to the beauty of a face or to the health than the possession of good strong teeth. To insure having them, the food of the mother must be well chosen before the baby is born, and the infant must be well fed from the time of its birth.

THE SCHEMING FRIEND

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

SOME people's idea of friendship is like an elastic band. They stretch it over such a wide area that its' hard to know just where it begins and where it ends. Sometimes this is wise, and sometimes it is tragedy.

Take, for instance, two girls who have been chums through life. They've shared secrets and scoldings; the same schools and colleges have been honored, or otherwise, with their presence, but when it comes to a man—then friendship ceases. Some girls there are who think that everyone who comes within their ken is fair game. And so when they see Little Pal with a sweetheart, they immediately set about trying to take him away. Sometimes they succeed, but sometimes they only succeed in losing both the man and the girl friend. For men can see through these ruses. At first they are flattered, and maybe do stray away from Little Pal's side, only to become disgusted and humbly come back to her.

So watch out! Do to your girl friend as you would want her to do to you if the tables were turned! How would you feel to have your sweetheart snatched from under your eyes? You'd be the first to rail and rant and weep about it, wouldn't you?

Honesty is best and fairness and playing the game squarely—and in this way alone you will eventually find your own Love and happiness!

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, May 22

ACCORDING to the lunar and mutual transits for this day there may be many adverse situations to be confronted, attended by hazards and perils of many complexions. Money matters are under particularly menacing sway, consequently all manner of speculative enterprises should be avoided. Sudden losses are indicated; loans, mortgages and extravagant outlay are warned against. Shun rash, hasty and malicious acts and words. Make changes most cautiously.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a difficult year, with many complications and hazards. Money matters are in jeopardy, especially through speculation, loans, mortgages, and in personal extravagances and improvidence. It is inadvisable to make important changes under this sway, and firm grip should be kept on tongue and temper. A child born on this day may need careful training to inculcate qualities of thrift, prudence, caution and general self-restraint and moderation in word and deed.

Household Hints

In drawing threads for hemstitching or drawn work, wet a small brush and rub it on a cake of soap and then on the threads you wish to draw and they will come out easily and without breaking.

To remove an obstinate cork, dip a piece of woolen cloth into boiling water and wrap tightly about the neck of the bottle. In a few minutes the stopper can be removed.

Should fat become slightly burnt, drop one or two small pieces of raw potato into it and leave for a minute or so, after which all traces of burning will be removed.

CHAMP HELD FOR COURT IN TIFF WITH DRY AGENTS

Moody Champ, acting lieutenant of the Wilmerding police, was held for court by the United States commissioner on a charge of interfering with government prohibition agents when they raided the grocery store of Theodore Uzelac, 148 Watkins avenue, Wilmerding, on April 10.

The hearing was held the following day, but the decision of the commissioner was reserved until the testimony had been transcribed and he was ready to file a transcript of the preliminary hearing.

While the raid was being conducted by three prohibition agents Champ appeared at the store and demanded to see the credentials of the raiders. During an argument that followed Champ was struck on the head with a handy billie and arrested.

GHOSTS FILL PITT THEATER WITH WEIRD DOINGS IN "THE SKULL"

By GEORGE SEIBEL

HUMANITY loves to be fooled, and mystery never loses its charm. If that weren't true, such dramas as "The Skull," produced last night by George Sharp's Players in the Pitt Theater, wouldn't endure longer than the proverbial snowflake in Mr. Dante's winter resort. But we all like to believe in ghosts, in supercriminals, in psychic forces, in occult horrors infesting the darkness—we like to believe all this with such childlike faith that we almost resent having it explained when it's all over.

Why any evildoer should take delight in leaving a skull around every time he has committed some misdeed, can't be explained unless he is in his first or second childhood. But Bernard J. McOwen and Harry E. Humphrey, authors of "The Skull," are chiefly concerned with amusing us who are in our intermediary childhood, and they succeed. As one character says: "Even the spirits of the departed are much amused."

The scene is laid in an old deserted church, where a murder has been committed 10 years before. There has also been a mysterious robbery of jewels. Now, while the storm is howling outside and bats marked with death's heads are fluttering about the belfry, everybody concerned in the crimes comes to church at night and things begin to happen.

BUSY BUNCH OF GHOSTS

The bell in the steeple rings, though its tongue was taken out long ago. Ghostly organists play "Nearer, My God, to Thee" and "Lead, Kindly Light." Doors open and shut, lights go on and off without warning. A lady in white makes her appearance and calls the roll of her departed friends in sepulchral tones. A gigantic skeleton seizes the lovely heroine and carries her down through a mysterious trapdoor.

Wouldn't all that make you shriek?

It made the audience at the Pitt last night shriek in all keys—and the rational solution came just in time to avert an epidemic of hysterics.

Conan Doyle would approve this drama—all but the last 10 minutes. It reeks of ectoplasm and reverberates with spirit raps. It would make the Davenport Brothers and the Fox Sisters hike off to the Summerland.

But when you sit down after the performance, and figure out in all soberness what it was all about—and see plainly that the innocent ones must have known from the beginning who the Skull was—you realize that we all just loved to be fooled and adore the bunco-steerers who can fool us to the top of their bent.

HERE THEY ARE

Call the roll of the mediums, criminals, accomplices, counterfeiters, murderers, detectives, ghosts, skeletons, madmen and innocent bystanders. Why, it's the George Sharp Players!

One of the best pieces of work was done by a newcomer, J. S. Murray, who is a Pittsburgher, but has acquired a rich Bow Bells accent for the purposes of this drama. Hugh Banks was as amusing as he usually is, or more so. So was Alice Ann Baker as a maiden aunt, while Pauline MacLean gave the old deserted church an air of Easter festivity. Gus A. Forbes, Robert Fiske and Kenneth Daigneau kept every one guessing who was hero and who was villain, while Carleton Young and Mabel Kroman gave a seance that would thrill Sir Oliver Lodge with faith.

If anybody wishes to encounter a whole army of healthy ghosts and hear legions of spirits ballyhoo through the wee sma' hours, they should visit the deserted church on the Pitt stage this week. And it is worthwhile noting that this stage church is more solid and impressive than the setting of the original production seen at the same theater at the beginning of the season.

ALDINE TALK FILM STARS PICKFORD

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

While the white innocence of Helen Hayes' "Coquette" deepened into vermilion before the final act on the stage, no such thing happens to Mary Pickford's screen "Coquette," on display in the Aldine this week. Mary flirts and is consumed with a passionate love. She spends a night in a cabin with her boy friend from the hills but does not lose character. More than that Miss Hayes' heroine committed suicide. But Mary's doesn't. She is seen coming home from a court trial in the final fadeout. All of which shows that the movies have taken liberties with the stage version.

However, in "Coquette" Mary rather grandly makes her debut as an actress of mature drama and as a talking actress on the screen. Bobbed-haired and smartly gowned she registers emotional depths never dreamed of in the days of curls and gingham of former Pickford heroines. And she talks with a soft southern dialect befitting the heroine she portrays; talks well enough that you forgive any lapse from that dialect that may appear under the stress of her hysterical moments.

DRAMATIC MOMENTS

The theme chiefly concerns Mary; the uncouth, handsome fellow she loves and her father, a gentleman of the old southern school. Believing his daughter has been wronged, he shoots her suitor dead. Then, when on trial for his life and convinced that he has made a mistake, he shoots himself dead. Thus many dramatic moments, much hysteria and weepy episodes are assured.

The picture ends with Miss Pickford announcing that she is going home to help her brother, Jimmy, with his algebra. That strikes one as being too trivial after the tense episodes. But on second thought Mary's "I want to be alone; I am going home and help Jimmy with his algebra" may not be so trivial after all. Perhaps that "algebra" is a symbol in her dazed brain; a symbol of the biggest algebraic problem of all—Life—which, seemingly, has struck her below the belt.

A DIFFERENT MARY

Briefly, Pickford fans ought to be thrilled with "Coquette" and the new Mary it introduces—a Mary capable as she is different. And we imagine her heroine will satisfy anyone who has not seen the stage "Coquette." As for those who did see it—well, that's a different story.

The director of this first Pickford all-talkie deserves praise. His name is Sam Taylor. Also the cast—Johnny Mack Brown, John St. Polis, Matt Moore and others.

Sound screen specialty acts and news pictures are on the bill.

MUSIC FILM IS GRAND FEATURE

"The Desert Song," new photoplay in the Grand, is more than a movie version of the stage operetta. It is rather a duplicate of the stage vehicle on the screen—not an adaptation. As on the stage, the dance ensembles, the singing choruses and the soloists are intermingled with the progress of the story and not in prologue or epilogue sequences.

The movie is quite entertaining. The musical and dance sequences are well done. As for the action of the story proper it travels along as well as can be expected considering the music and dance interruptions. Of course, the brightness and the freshness of color and the reality of players in the flesh is lost on the screen. But then, there is a compensation in the sweep and action that the movies are able to give to the desert scenes.

TALK AD MUSIC

The story concerns chiefly a French general, his son and a girl. The son, apparently a weakling, loves the girl. But she is bewitched by a daring desert bandit, known as the Red Shadow. In the end, after lots of talk, song, dance, action, romance and quite elaborate settings she finds herself facing happiness in the arms of the bandit—who has been doing a kind of Jekyl-Hyde act.

John Boles, who six or so years ago played singing leads in stage musical shows, portrays the Red Shadow. Carlotta King has the heroine role. Both do a lot of vocalizing.

Just as in the stage operetta the picture has numerous comedy moments. Among the elaborate settings the harem scene should be mentioned. It is quite glamorous and crowded with pretty maidens. The cast includes Louise Fazenda, Myrna Loy, Edward Martindale, Johnny Arthur, Jack Pratt and John Miljan.

Short film specialties complete the bill.

Betty Blythe Sheridan Star

Betty Blythe, stage and screen actress, appears in person in the Sheridan Square the first three days of this week as the featured entertainer on the vaudeville bill.

The photoplay feature is "Black Waters," based on the stage mystery, "Fog." It is an all-talkie that manages to thrill and chill. Action is laid, for the most part, in the cabin of a schooner adrift in the sea and fog. Mary Brian, the only woman in the cast, helps with what little romance the picture contains. Lloyd Hamilton helps ease tense moments with comedy. Other players are James Kirkwood, Robert Ames, John Loder and Frank Reicher. Marshall Neilan directed.

Vaudeville acts on the stage also include Hite Reflow and Company, Billy and Grace Carmen and Boyle and Harkins. Short screen entertainment completes the bill.

"Jazz Revue" Academy Bill

"Jazztime Revue," with Kitty Madison and Harry Evanson, is in the Academy as the last Mutual burlesque attraction of the present season. Other principals include Etna Moore, prima donna; Babe Abbott, soubrette; Frank McKay, juvenile; Lew Harris, straight man; Midgie Brandon, ingenue, and George Rehn, second comedian. In "The Garden of the Vampires," Miss Madison depicts great sirens of history.

PLAYERS WHO APPEAR -:- IN CURRENT -:- AMUSEMENT PROGRAMS

Gus Forbes has a prominent role in "The Skull," mystery melodrama on stage of Pitt.

RECEPTION OF NEW DIRECTOR OF CEREMONIES FEATURE OF PENN'S GOOD BILL

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

WESLEY EDDY, new master of ceremonies in the Penn, has "caught on." That is, he has become the strong link in the chain between the audience and the stage. He has established friendly relationship between himself and persons who yesterday were strangers to him. Judging by his reception Monday, Mr. Eddy is in a good way to remain in the Penn as long as he did in Washington, whence he came after a year and a half in that city.

We make Mr. Eddy prominent for two reasons, the first of which is that based on the natural curiosity that likely prompted an overflowing audience to fill the theater to its last available cranny long before the time for the stage show to begin—1:30 o'clock. We believe there was good reason for that curiosity. When a theater management transfers from Pittsburgh a master of ceremonies who became a stronger favorite every week for a full year, it just has to do something to make good. The newcomer must be some sort of superman. That, to some extent, was indicated in the announcement that the stranger had remained in Washington longer by half a year than the Pittsburgh favorite did here.

APPROVAL ENTHUSIASTIC

Whether it was curiosity or the superman expectation or some other reason that filled the house to the brimming-over point, the fact remains that Mr. Eddy received more enthusiastic approval than anything else on the bill, which is the second reason why he is made prominent, and the bill had numerous attractions. Are you, too, burning with curiosity to know whether the superman tag proved to be the correct one? The answer is "no."

The audience, however, did find Mr. Eddy to be an extremely likeable chap with a "certain way" about him. It found him to be a good entertainer, in possession of an ingratiating smile and manner, skill and an individual technic in the direction of the stage band, an ordinary yet pleasing singing voice, giving a hint of some adeptness at stepping and proving to be a regular member of the masters of ceremonies union in good standing in the way he bespoke "a big hand" for the various acts he introduced.

One thing in his favor was the warmth of the audience. Quite evidently, it was determined to like him. Mr. Eddy really had no "ice" to break. As a new man, he might logically have expected to wait for weeks to achieve what he did on his first appearance.

FIRST SONG SIGNIFICANT

His first song, "As Long as I Have You," was significant. It was his direct appeal to the audience to "be with" him. And it was. Later, when he sang "St. Louis Blues," with the stage dim and the singer faintly outlined in a blue spotlight, his triumph was complete. He had "put it over" so well that, in the thunder of applause that followed, he was not even permitted to express his appreciation. After several attempts, he gave it up and repeated the chorus of his "blues" song.

So here we have the spectacle of a young man singing a couple of old songs and becoming what the theatrical press agents term a "riot." The answer—it's the way he has of doing it.

The bill as a whole is a good one. The feature picture, "Alibi," also introduces a stranger who makes good. Chester Morris gives a remarkable characterization of a young gangster in a talkie version of the play, "Nightstick." It is a melodrama filled with action—most intense, gripping and thrilling. Also it has singing and dancing through the introduction of cabaret and theater scenes.

MORRIS REAL ARTIST

Morris' control of facial expression is marvelous. He is a real artist and it will be a long time before his depiction of a cruel and cowardly young killer who can look like a soft-spoken youth will be excelled.

Pat O'Malley has a "come-back" and a good part as a detective nemesis of the young crook. Regis Toomey, new to the screen, smiles himself into the niche of a good actor, reserving his most impressive smile for one of the most dramatic moments of the film. Mae Bush does well in a minor part. Eleanor Griffith scores as the central feminine character.

The stage show, "Say It With Music," one of the best that has come to the Penn, has the jesting Charles Irwin, Stadler and Rose, skilled acrobatic dancers, Sammy Krevoff, amazing Russian dancer, Wainright Sisters and Chic Kennedy, singers, and the Foster Girls, ensemble dancers. Dick Leibert's organlogue and the orchestral overture also are pleasing features.

Triumphs

Wesley Eddy, new master of ceremonies in the Penn, made the biggest hit on the bill in his debut yesterday.

Harris Screen Has Mystery

If memory serves correctly the picture, "Black Waters," current in the Harris, runs true to the stage play, "Fog," from which it is adapted. The photoplay, like the stage drama, is crowded with mystery, murder, sliding panels, strange characters and fog. It is an all-talkie.

Mary Brian

Most of the action takes place in the cabin of an old schooner adrift in the fog of the 'Frisco bay. There are a girl and five or so other persons assembled there—all by the request of one Tiger Larrabee, a fiend of a sort and captain of the schooner.

James Kirkwood portrays Larrabee. Lloyd Hamilton, well known comic of short comedies, has a prominent role. As a stuttering English valet he manages comedy. Other players include Mary Brian, John Loder, Frank Reicher and Robert Ames.

Featured among the stage vaudeville are the Alexander and Olsen Revue and Bartrum and Saxton, radio singers. Short screen entertainment completes the bill.

STANLEY HAS CITY DESK DRAMA

Newspaper life as it is lived in latter-day melodrama is the subject of the talking film in the Stanley Theater, and, according to "Gentlemen of the Press," there aren't any gentlemen connected with the press. They are all roughnecks, rowdies, rounders and rumhounds. They don't see their beloved daughter for eight years, and immediately get the telephone number of every vamp who calls to threaten a suit for libel. The atmosphere in which they live is saturated with alcohol and wisecracks. They never work except when some loved one is dying—then a big story breaks and they can't drop the telephone to go to the deathbed.

The general public may be amused by this, but newspaper men will smile and wish it were true—especially the alcohol and the vamps.

ACTORS DO WELL

The hero of this news-room thriller is well played by Walter Huston, who appeared in the Broadway production. Betty Lawford, as the daughter, and Kathrine Francis, as the siren, also give consistent interpretations. The dramatic structure and the dialogue are above the talkie average, and the merit of individual characterizations makes it a pity that the whole thing is out of focus so sadly.

Once again the stage show is a gorgeous revelation of rhythm and color. David Broudy's "Russian Carnival" shows off the orchestra splendidly, and gives Milton Douglass a chance to display his fine baritone.

MELSON IS POPULAR

The new master of ceremonies, Charles Melson, deepened the good impression he made last week. The three Slate Brothers do some fast stepping and Frank Corwill evokes laughter by his songs. Jack Powell is a jazz drummer who gets music out of a chair, and Grace Barry looks cute as she sings her "blues." And don't forget Bernie Armstrong, who has the audience whistling to his organ.

NEW THEATER OPENED FOR MT. OLIVER

The new Mt. Oliver-Harris, latest addition to the Harris Amusement Company's theater chain, was simply dedicated last night, after which the new house began functioning in the manner intended—that of giving the community surrounding it screen entertainment of high grade in a comfortable and beautiful theater. The dedication at 7:30 o'clock attracted numerous invited guests, including many prominent persons from various parts of Pittsburgh as well as from the immediate neighborhood. The regular program followed, and, at its close at 9:30 o'clock, the program was repeated, the first to be presented in ordinary routine in the new house.

"Mothers' Boy," the feature picture for Monday and Tuesday, talk and song film having its first Pittsburgh showing, is an attraction in which Morton Downey, popular vaudeville tenor, has a principal role. Other numbers on the initial Mt. Oliver-Harris bill include Fox Movietone News, "Galloping Gauchos," a synchornized cartoon, and Clark and McCullough, in a talkie film of a vaudeville comedy skit, "The Bath Between." A number of special films were part of the dedication program.

The new house, of brick, stone and concrete, occupies a central location in the Mt. Oliver district, and has a seating capacity of 1,600, making it one of the largest "neighborhood" houses in Pittsburgh. It is in the modern style of decoration and is unusually attractive as to ornamentation. It has been equipped with a thought to comfort and convenience of patrons and as a whole it is a worthy addition to the amusement places of the city.

Regent Offers Song and Talk

"Close Harmony," song, dance and talk picture, is being presented in the Regent this week. Charles "Buddy" Rogers and Nancy Carroll head the cast. It is an amusing picture with "Buddy" appearing in the role of the leader of a jazz orchestra and Miss Carroll as a vaudeville entertainer who helps him to make good on the stage.

'Godless Girl' Enright Film

This "The Godless Girl" film in the Enright this week will serve to disillusion you if you have the mistaken idea that every Cecil B. de Mille picture amounts to something. For it is nothing but some very cheap melodrama—10,000 feet or so of Noah Beery's worst brutality and Lina Basquette's inability to emote. Noah plays the head guard at a reformatory, a sort of incarnation of Simon Legree. Bloodhounds there are also.

Marie Prevost.

In the picture three students are sent to a reformatory after a school riot. One of them—played by the Basquette girl—is an atheist, who mocks love and creeds. But in the reformatory she finds love.

The stage show, "Up in the Air," opens in a novel manner with a screen picture showing Dick Powell "parachuting" from an airplane. Then the screen is raised and you see Dick supposedly landing from the air on the stage. The featured entertainers include Bobby Folsom, singing comedinnne; Cohn and De Pinto, comedy musicians; the Three Rolling Stones, peppy steppers, and Martha Patti, local songstress. Short screen entertainment and an organlogue complete the bill.

Remember this: no medicine ever became famous through promises. Konjola has won matchless fame not with promises, but by its deeds. Here is a medicine that brings results, quickly and to last. Get the facts about this super-remedy of 32 ingredients, 22 of which are the juices of roots and herbs. Meet the Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where daily he is telling the wonderful story of this wonderful remedy for the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and for rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Learn how Konjola appears at its very best when pitted against the obstinate cases that have baffled, resisted and defied every other medicine tried. Hear of case after case in which this super-compound has given the only relief. Know what Konjola does, and then decide what you will do about Konjola. Surely it means much to all who suffer to know that more than three million bottles of Konjola were used in one State in four months. A medicine that can make a record like that must have merit. That is the one secret of Konjola's astounding success — it has MERIT.

As an example of Konjola at work, read the statement of Miss Isabelle Harrison, 705 Arch St., Pittsburgh, who said to the Konjola Man a few days ago:

"Would that I had known of Konjola sooner; what pain and expense it could have saved me. For months I suffered from disorders of the kidneys and liver. Sharp pains pierced the kidney region and all through my back a dull, sickening ache was always present. My limbs and feet were so swollen that I could hardly get my shoes on, and at times I had to sit down until the pain eased up. I had frequent dizzy spells, which kept coming at shorter intervals, and black specks danced before my eyes. Naturally, my general health declined, and to make matters all the worse, I failed in every attempt to find relief.

"Just about this time, when I was greatly discouraged, I decided to try Konjola, about which I had heard so much. That turned out to be a wise decision. Konjola went to work without delay, and mighty soon I was convinced that I had found the right medicine at last. Gradually but surely my liver and kidneys were whipped into condition. The pains faded away; swelling subsided and the dizzy spells ceased. In three weeks, with all my health problems solved by Konjola, I felt like shouting for joy. Gladly do I indorse Konjola."

Konjola comes, not with claims and promises, but stands alone on its merits; on a foundation of deeds actually accomplished. Konjola brings a great reward to those who put their faith in its power.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine.

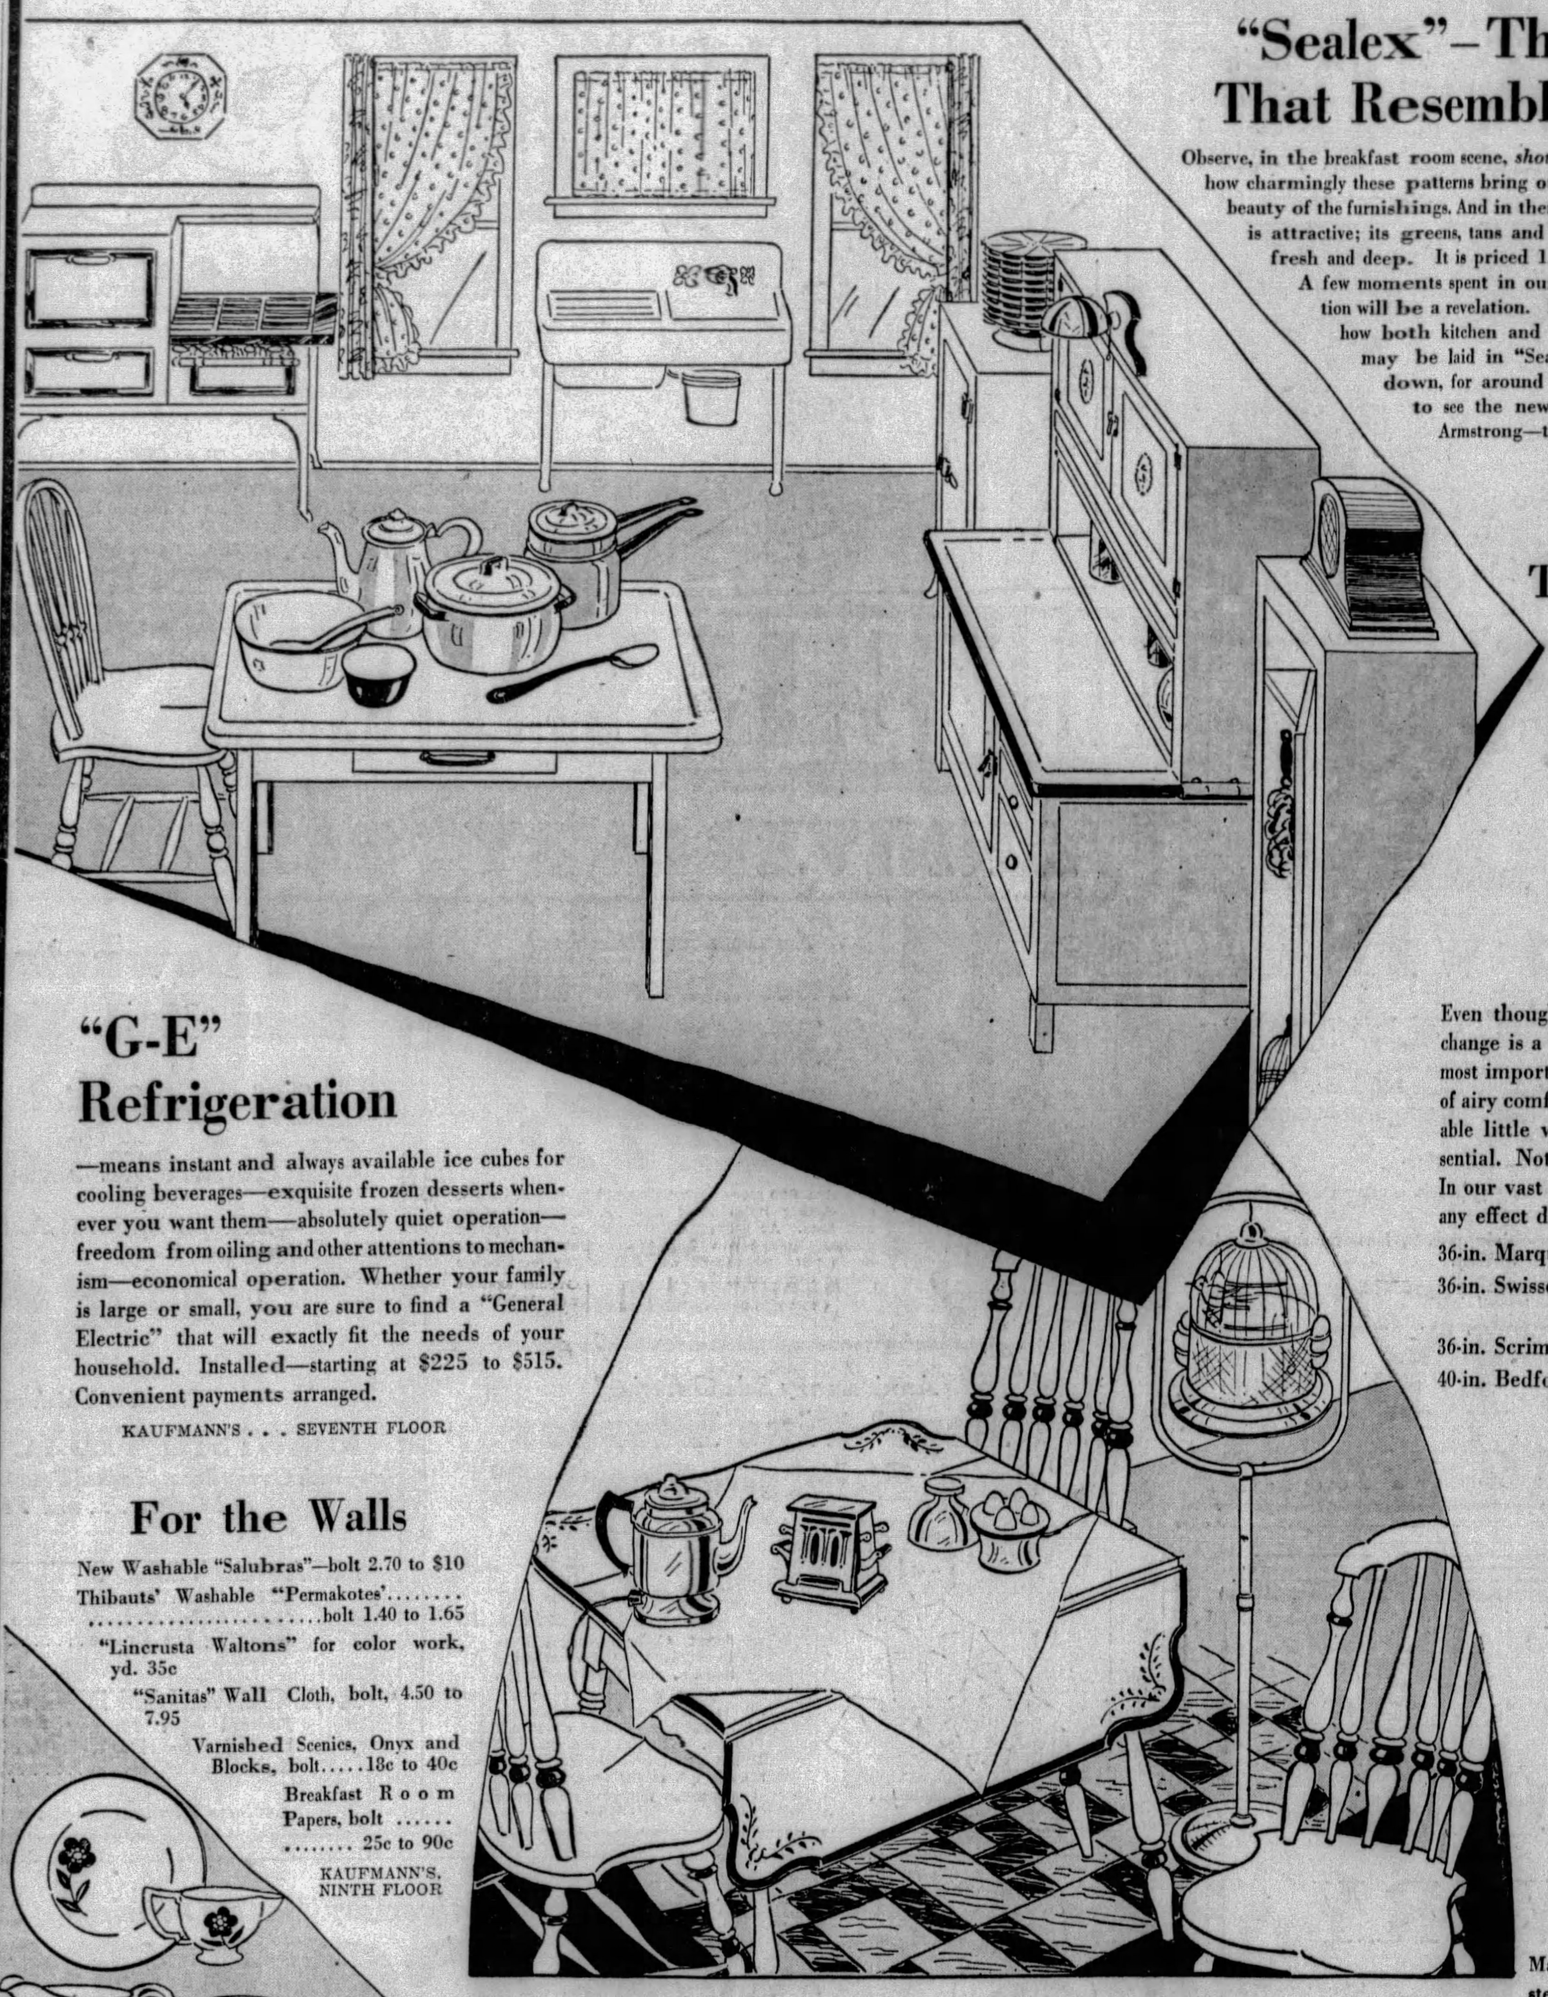
Is There a Little Servant Problem in Your Home?

Why not take a leaf from the experience of "big business" and make household-ing EASIER, SPEEDIER, more like PLAY? Why not make the kitchen at least as attractive as a modern sun-lit factory? Then watch the "servant problem" dissolve. In return for this "tip" why not come in to learn about it?

Hundreds of Pittsburgh kitchens are being reorganized and refurnished to meet the new conditions. And Kaufmann's, with its bounty of selection and its fairness of pricing, wins more and more homekeepers to its kitchen-outfitting departments every day!



"Sealex"—The New Linoleum That Resembles Embossed Tile

Observe, in the breakfast room scene, shown below center, how charmingly these patterns bring out the color and beauty of the furnishings. And in themselves "Sealex" is attractive; its greens, tans and blues are clear, fresh and deep. It is priced 1.95 square yard. A few moments spent in our Linoleum Section will be a revelation. Let us show you how both kitchen and breakfast room may be laid in "Sealex," cemented down, for around $50. Ask, too, to see the new Linoleums by Armstrong—the new marble effects to be laid with borders, the inset tiles which resemble broken stones and pebbles, the red Dutch tiles in plain black jaspe, the pretty blue and green checks that are completely new and distinctive. Linoleums are easy and noiseless to walk on. Underneath there should be a layer of builders' felt, to deaden noise, then cement to prevent buckling or bulging. That's the way Kaufmann's installs it.

RAILWAYS CO. MAY YIELD RIGHTS OF WAY

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

THE heavy chains which extended from short, thick pillars on all sides of the old Courthouse have been removed. And among the bums of the town there is considerable indignation. The chains formed a perch for the ne'er-do-wells of the city who gathered there every day, weather permitting, to watch the passing parade, to discuss the affairs of the world and the nation. What the village store was to the lazy ones at Crider's Corners, the chain was to the Pittsburgh and out-of-town bums, who smoked and chewed and discussed the problems of the age. A few still gather there, but they must content themselves with a stoney perch instead of the chain which allowed them a certain poetry of motion as they swung lazily to and fro and palavered over the prohibition question, the fears of standardization in America brought about by the machine age, the sins of the younger generation, or the approach of the five-day working week.

How do such men manage to have clothing, tobacco, food, and time for discussions of various abstractions when they don't work? They are the aristocrats of the poor. By some magic they prevail upon more industrious members of their relationship to provide them with the bare necessities.

The woman who takes in washing or goes out to do day-work may be providing for the man who in the blue shirt who as he inserts a luscious chew of tobacco opines for the enlightenment of his listeners that Ford never should have given up the Model T. The middle-aged man, who yawns and disagrees, is taken care of by two proud daughters who secretly believes the old man ought to be in jail, but who don't want the neighbors to know about such a disgrace. The youngish man with soft hands is being tolerated by a brother who works steadily. It's a poor family, indeed, that cannot support one gentleman of leisure and the old chain gang in front of the Courthouse represented this dubious leisure class.

But now the chain has been removed—and things aren't what they used to be.

AS a general rule the copybook maxims are to be trusted. The boy who picks up the pieces of paper and places it in the waste-basket is apt to impress the boss. The boy who doesn't look at the clock still has a good chance. And the boy who takes down the sign "Boy Wanted," and hands it to the boss, saying: "You don't need this sign any more," likely will win the job. But—

A young man took a position with a Pittsburgh firm and made good progress. His attention to details won the attention of his employer. And one day, after a special bit of good work, the boss called the young man to his office and invited him to his home that evening for a chat.

At the beginning of the conversation the boss, in his library, reached into his desk and brought forth a quart of pre-war nose paint.

"Have a drink?" suggested the boss.

"No, thanks," said the alert young man, "I don't drink. Don't believe in it."

"Well, if that's the case," said the boss terminating the chat right there, "you're fired."

The disconsolate young man went away and made inquiries. His questions developed the fact that the boss is a bug against prohibition, and will not keep anyone in his employ who doesn't drink.

The boss in questin, the young man, or a certain North Side man who tells the story will recognize the characters.

The young man will be pardoned if he looks askance at some of the copybook maxims. Serious young men, bent on getting along, however, need not be discouraged for if the story here was not unusual and exceptional, it would not have been used. Unfortunately, the fact that thousands get along better and advance quickly by following the copybook is so commonplace it is not often recorded. It is the unusual that makes a story, even when the story does not point a moral.

$19,000 FRAUD IN LOT SALE CHARGED

Christian I. Shannon and Ethel Shannon, his wife, of Sewickley, filed a bill of equity in Common Pleas Court, allegeing that The Pennsylvania Organization, under an agreement with them to dispose of a plan of lots in Mt. Lebanon Township, embezzled upwards of $19,000, and asked for an accounting.

Under the agreement, dated October 29, 1925, the Shannons, owners of the property, were to divide the profits equally with the organization after the purchase price of the property, $102,200, interest and costs, had been paid to them, according to the bill. FIRST ACTION IS TAKEN IN BEECHVIEW

Private rights of way on crowded thoroughfares, such as owned by the Pittsburgh Railways Company will soon be a thing of the past in the opinion of President James Malone of council.

President Malone says that an agreement reached between the city and railways company, whereby the latter has decided to give up a block of right of way between Broadway and Fallowfield avenues, Beechview, is the entering wedge.

CITY MAY TAKE RIGHTS

He is of the opinion that the private right of way as it exists in Brookline boulevard, Brookline and also in Broadway, Beechview, will soon be acquired from the railways company. Councilman P. J. McArdle, chairman of the committee which has the subjects under advisement, also is of the same opinion.

Mr. Malone said that the block in Broadway, Beechview, between Fallowfield and Hampshire avenues was an accident trap and that the action of the railway company in deciding to let the city take over the right of way in this particular square and improve it, would avert many accidents. Many have occurred in that particular location.

Mr. Malone, as well as Councilman McArdle have looked into the Brookline situation and both agree that section is entitled to the relief asked. The boards of trade of the districts concerned have been urging the city to take over the rights of way.

EARLY CHANGE SEEN

Councilman McArdle says that in his opinion it may come this year, provided a satisfactory arrangement can be made with the railways company, probably not until next year. He believes that the company is entitled a reasonable sum for the rights of way which it obtained, prior to either district becoming a part of the city.

Councilmen Malone and McArdle said they recognize the importance of the rapid growth of the territory, Brookline boulevard at times during the day now being overcrowded. This street is 80 feet wide but the private right of way of the railways company, which occupies the center of the boulevard makes it impossible for traffic, it was stated, to move without interruption.

MANY SEEK INFORMATION ON FREE SCHOOL RADIOS

Many teachers, principals and parents have communcated with the Sun-Telegraph, asking for complete particulars of the Sun-Telegraph-Stanley Warner Brothers' theaters' free radio campaign. For the benefit of those who wish to know the details of the plan, the following account is published today:

To every school or schoolroom obtaining 125 orders for the Sun-Telegraph for 13 weeks, the Sun-Telegraph and Stanley-Warner Brothers Theaters offer a free No. 58 Atwater Kent eight-tube radio with electro-dynamic loud speaker self-contained.

This offer is open to every school and class in the Pittsburgh district. Children and teachers may obtain these orders from parents, friends, business acquaintances, or whom they please.

A representative of the Sun-Telegraph will call on any such organization wishing to take part in this campaign. He will distribute subscription blanks, make suggestions for most efficient organization, and speak to the school, if desirable.

Payments for these subscriptions, which must be those of new subscribers, may be made monthly or weekly, at the rate of 18 cents weekly for daily delivery and 28 cents a week for daily and Sunday delivery of the Sun-Telegraph. Donahoe's, United Laundries, and Haller Bakeries inclose them in all delivery packages.

The campaign has been heartily indorsed by many of Pittsburgh's leading citizens. Educators, officials, parents and teachers have joined in praise of the campaign.

Sin Roof in Says

DETROIT, May 21.

I see where Mr. Hoover and his advisers cut down the size of Germany's payment for our sightseeing in there after the armistice. That sounds like a fair decision.

What was us and those allies doing going in there after it was all over, anyhow? It always looks like making Germany pay for the pallbearers at her own funeral.

See where some paper says "Lindy's life has been threatened." I can imagine he feels like telling them, "Well, if you will just let me alone for one year and don't anybody bother me, you can have my life."

Yours, WILL.

She is a pretty, selfish person, with whose beauty Don Carlos had fallen in love. On landing in the islands he is accosted by a native, David Nahuli, who offers him $2,000 for delivering a black bag. In carrying out this mission he sees Eugenie, Nahuli's wife, a gorgeous creature who fascinates him. In the meantime Phillips carries on his suit for Eve's love, but quarreling brings unhappiness. Then, in wandering around, Don Carlos meets Selma Wilson, crippled mother of an unusual family, which includes a daughter, Ruth. The latter plans a companionate marriage with Al Harding, much to the disgust of her father, Big Tim Wilson. One day while Don Carlos is loafing at his hotel a mysterious letter is dropped at his feet and a woman motions for him to read it. It contains an invitation to meet her at the crest of Tantalus road. The same day Mahuli orders him to carry the black bag again.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER X.

MAKAPUU POINT is a wild, desolate section of the coast of Oahu, which all outward steamers must pass en route to the Far East. It seemed eerie in its desolation as the motor car which bore Don Carlos bumped over the rocky road and the small wooden bridges which spanned some of the waterways on the way to the Point.

If only he had brought a loaded revolver. One never knew what might happen.

But then—he recalled that he didn't possess such a thing.

He laughed to himself. That he should be thinking in terms of loaded guns—he, Don Carlos.

He was finding the adventure he had been seeking all his life.

The chauffeur was most noncommittal.

Don Carlos had attempted to engage him in some conversation; about the weather, about the region where he was being taken.

A muttered "Yes" or "No" was the extent of the chauffeur's answers.

The car sped through the black night; out past deserted farm houses, with now and then a dim light peering forth from a dingy window.

What the devil could the little black bag contain—that they had to be so secretive in its handling?

He had heard that Makapuu Point was as desolate a region as man would care to see. Too bad that the night was so black; he would have liked to have seen it in the full light of the moon—that tropical moon which shed such a white light over the islands. It seemed so near to the earth—one could almost read by the light of it.

The car stopped with a sudden jerk. It recalled Don Carlos to the present—to the fulfillment of that which he had undertaken. He felt in the seat beside him for the small black satchel.

The chauffeur opened the rear door. Don Carlos stepped forth upon hard ground, stumbled—would have fallen save for the hand which the chauffeur held out to him.

Suddenly a red flash cut the darkness.

The signal.

Don Carlos held his breath, was fearful of taking a step.

Another flare—then a third one.

"Mahini!" came a guttural voice out of the darkness.

"Mahini!" responded Don Carlos. He groped into the darkness, extended the black satchel, which was clasped by unseen fingers. An envelope was sliped into his hand.

There was something eerie about the silent dispatch with which the whole transaction took place. The chauffeur turned as though the affair was over.

He'd be darned if this thing would end so suddenly. At least, he was going to take a chance and try to glimpse the face of the unknown one.

He bethought himself of the cigaret lighter which he always carried.

The astonished look on the Chinaman's face was fascinating to Don Carlos. He prolonged the lighting of the cigaret, studying, under cover, the features of the other man.

Darn these Chinese! How in the world could he ever remember any of the features, when to him they all resembled one another?

Other tactics.

"This satchel—are its contents so important that a fellow had to take a wild drive over rotten roads to deliver it at a certain specified time?"

The Chinaman maintained a stolid attitude.

Don Carlos became impatient.

"I say, can't you answer a fellow?"

Don Carlos laughed softly.

"Well, Chinkee, if you no want to talkee with me, I think maybe you're right."

He turned toward the chauffeur.

What was that? He sensed something. Could it be that he had been followed? Surely that was the purr of a motor, a sudden quick grinding of brakes. Had they heard it?

He could hear the pounding of the surf a short distance from where he stood. Perhaps it had drowned the sound. The waves were lashing against a rocky beach, judging from the sound.

A light had suddenly appeared to the left of him—out on the water.

"What is that light?" he asked the chauffeur.

"Probably some fishing smack off the coast."

"At this hour of the night? Rather a lonely business out there?"

No response from either.

Blast their silence!

He wanted to make sure of an adventure out of it; danger called to him tonight. He would have welcomed a good fight. Every muscle of him was in fine trim.

The chauffeur spoke:

"I have to report back into Honolulu at a certain time. Are you ready."

The Chinaman had vanished into the night. The light on the water seemed to be moving nearer.

There was not a doubt in his mind but that the Chinaman would be taking the contents of the little black bag aboard the vessel. Doubtless it was one of the sampans which infested the Oahuan coast. He had seen hundreds since coming to the islands.

There seemed to be nothing to do save to go back with the chauffeur. He swallowed his disappointment. He certainly couldn't pick a fight with two men who seemed inclined to mind their own business as thoroughly as this pair did.

His eyes were now accustomed to the darkness.

Was that a dim outline of a car, far over to the right?

Bosh! He was seeing things. There wasn't a sound. He climbed into the car, and 1 o'clock saw him back at his bungalow.

He sat and pondered over the events of the evening. Somehow, sleep would not come.

PETTING PATTY — He Is Angry

BLIND BURKE — By Alfred I. Tooke — Daily Short Story

BLIND BURKE was well known in the city. Any day he might be seen tap-tap-tapping his way along Main street to the restaurant where he got his three squares a day. He always paid cash for his meals—and for anything else he bought—from a small handful of change that he always had with him and that seemed to replenish itself with automatic regularity.

Nobody knew just where Blind Burke got that money. Nobody ever saw him earn any. He never entered the doors of a bank. He lived in a little room just off Main street, and there were many sneak-thieves—those parasites of the underworld—who could assure you that Blind Burke had no hoard of wealth hidden away beneath the floor boards, or in the wall, or concealed anywhere else in that cubbyhole that he called home. And he seemed to have no friends—that is, no close friends whom he trusted to keep his money and dole it out to him as he required it. He had acquaintances—many of them—in the limited territory over which he tap-tapped his way from day to day, though he seldom called them by name.

There was Slim Smith. Slim had a little cough that had become a habit, and because it was a habit Slim did not notice it. But Blind Burke noticed it, and recognized Slim by it 20 feet away. There was Bull Johnson, whose heavy step was as easily recognized by Blind Burke as Bull's battered face was by the police. There was "Shorty," who walked with a limp, and Sam Sellers who walked with a slight shuffle. And, of course, Blind Burke had a long time ago become adept at recognizing people by their voice.

And Blind Burke could give you a very distinct, definite description of any of his acquaintances. He knew their height by the level from which their voice came. He knew their weight by the way the floors creaked beneath them, and from their height and weight together, he knew their build. He had trained and developed his faculties until there were many things he could tell you about them—things that would have escaped the average eye, but did not escape the mental vision of Blind Burke.

But though Blind Burke knew his acquaintances as well as their closest pals knew them, he never presumed upon his acquaintance. He seldom spoke unless he was spoken to, and then he usually asked who was speaking to him.

Any day you might see Blind Burke tap-tapping his way along Main Street from the restaurant where he got his three squares a day. He would tap-tap his way along the sidewalks until he heard the familiar click of billiard balls, or until he smelt the warm, singed air from certain tailor shops, or the odor of stale beer and hot dogs near a certain corner, or until he knew by this sign or that he had come to a place where he might rest for a while.

If you and I had entered such places there would have been a sudden hush, and the subject of conversation would have changed until we had gone again, for where the click of the ivories was heard, there also might have been heard the plans of those who made their living in ways the law-abiding populace frowned upon, or the boasting of those who followed their nefarious trade right under the nose of the law. And if you had taken a pair of pants to be pressed, you would have found the tailor's shop just the same as any other tailor's shop, and you would never have guessed that the tailor was a fence of stolen silks and satins and other goods.

But Blind Burke, tap-tapping his way about, could see nothing. He was just part of the scenery, and the conversation went on just the same when he was there as when he was not there.

The man at the cigar counter told Blind Burke about the mail truck robbery.

"Slim, he got killed!" he told Blind Burke. "Shot through the head. Sam's in the hospital, not expected to live. Bull's in jail—he'll get 20 years, easy! Seems they had it all planned to make a big haul, but somebody tipped off the bulls and they was waiting. Hiding in the mail truck they was, and opened fire before the gang had a chance. Somebody tipped off the bulls all right!"

"Too bad! Too bad!" said Blind Burke, and draining his glass of near beer, he paid for it out of his inexhaustible handful of cash, and asked what time it was.

Up Fifth street and along Main street he tap-tapped his way, until his sensitive ears detected familiar footsteps pacing along not far behind him.

"Tap-tap-tap!" went his iron shod stick on the hard pavement. "Tap-tap! Tap-tap-tap!" and as Capt. Flannigan in plain clothes followed, he listened closely to that tapping.

"Hear you cleaned up on my tip—got the gang . . . I'll take 20 bucks on account . . . leave it usual place . . . I'll get it!" it spelt out.

"O. K.," said Flannigan, as he speeded up and passed the tapping figure.

Local Barber Thankful for Ten Herbs—Ended Stomach and Bowel Disorders.

Every day more men and women of this section are praising Ten Herbs, the celebrated herbal compound, which for more than a year has been a tremendous success in this city and surrounding towns and countryside. They tell how this modern preparation ends stomach, liver, kidney and bowel disorders; how it cleanses the human system—drives out waste matter, impurities and troublesome gas; how it puts an end to the aches and pains of rheumatism and banishes nervousness. You, too, may know the happiness that good health brings if you will give Ten Herbs a trial. At least learn what Ten Herbs is doing for other local people by calling at May's Main Store, Fifth and Liberty, Pittsburgh, where this successful medicine with the ten wonderful herbal ingredients is being introduced.

"Ten Herbs made me feel like a new man," said Mr. John K. Ruffo, well-known barber, 224 Dinwiddie St., Pittsburgh. "I used to have trouble with my stomach. I would get so full of gas that I could hardly breathe—had pains and heartburn after every meal. Often I would vomit, and at times I would be so dizzy I would nearly fall over. My tongue was always coated, and I had to arise many times every night. I was also troubled with constipation for a long time. Severe headaches came on me, and there was an awful pain in my spine. With all this, together with nervousness, I could not sleep at night, and would feel very bad during the day.

"I tried many different kinds of medicines, but never got satisfactory relief until I used Ten Herbs. How thankful I am that your medicine ended all my health troubles so that I could enjoy life once more. Ten Herbs gave me perfect health, and that is why I am willing to give it a public endorsement."

Ten Herbs is being introduced at May's Main Store, Fifth and Liberty, Pittsburgh, and is sold at all May's Drug Stores.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Federation Changes Its Date for Dedication Of New Building

THERE'S a ball on Friday night and a large benefit bridge party this afternoon—and that just about covers the week's social activities. The "showcase ball," though, seems destined to be quite a success, as I thought it would be when I first heard about the novel and charming shop-window idea. The girls who will serve as models met yesterday in the home of Mrs. Thomas M. Jones, III, in Beechwood boulevard, to learn just what their duties will be on Friday evening. The ball, as I've told you many times, is being given by the social service department of the West Penn Hospital, and the new seventeenth-floor rooms of the William Penn Hotel will provide its background.

Today's bridge party is being given in the home of Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe in Morewood avenue by the Women's Exchange, with Mrs. William Zang as general chairman, and I understand that the proceeds are going to be used in refurnishing and supplementing the Exchange equipment.

All of which serves to remind me that the date for the Federation of Girls' School Societies' "anniversary day" has been put ahead two days. I told, you may remember, that it would be held on June 14 at the Harmarville Home, but the committee has decided on Thursday, June 13, instead.

The affair will begin at 3 o'clock, and in addition to the tea the program includes the dedication of the new Farmington wing, which has been finished and in use for a couple of months but has never been opened formally for inspection.

QUITE a few society folks went to Wunderley's yesterday afternoon to attend the tea which opened the exhibit of Miss Minnie Sellers' paintings in the galleries there. The affair was quite informal, and Miss Sellers was assisted by a group of girls, including Elizabeth Leovy, Alice Orr, Dorothy Blaxter, Bertha Dunbar, Roberta Speller, Gertrude Russell and Ione Gaul.

WITH so many girls making their debut next winter, there is sure to be a confusion in dates occasionally, and, no doubt, many will have to be changed. One alteration in plans already made concerns Nancy Allderdice's coming-out party. You remember, of course, my telling you that Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Allderdice were going to introduce their daughter at a tea dance on December 23. Now, I hear, Nancy will make her bow at a dance on Hallowe'en night, October 31, instead.

Speaking of Mrs. Allderdice reminds me that another of those interesting morning musicales which she and a group of her friends have been sponsoring for two seasons will be held on Wednesday, May 29. This musicale will be held in the home of Mrs. Henry Oliver Evans in South Negley avenue, and no cards have been sent out for it. The program is being arranged by Mrs. George Willock and Mrs. Ruth Thoburn Knox.

DID you know that Mrs. Roy A. Hunt is sailing for England to represent the Garden Club of Allegheny County on her visits to the various large estates of the British Isles? Mrs. Hunt is sailing on Saturday and with her will be her son, Alfred Mortimer Hunt, and her mother, Mrs. Mortimer Miller. Mr. Miller will join them abroad later and they will tour the continent.

Julius Little, of Avalon, is to be best man, and the ushers will include Robert H. Neal, brother of the bridegroom, and Charles C. Stanton, Jr.

After a few weeks' visit, Maj. Miller will go to his new station at Langley Field, Va.

COLLEGE HEAD SEES SUCCESS

President Paul H. Stewart, of Waynesburg College, pictured a rosy future for that institution, speaking last night before the General Alumni Association at a dinner at McCreery's, providing sufficient funds are forthcoming for equipment. From the time he took charge of the institution several years ago with a student body of 66, the college has grown until today it has nearly 800 students in all departments. The college has been raising an endowment fund. Other speakers included Dr. James A. Knox, president of the Alumni Association; Judge J. Boyd Crumrine, Washington, Pa.; Frank P. Martin, who presided, and W. D. Cotterell, toastmaster.

Pope May Leave Vatican on May 30

VATICAN CITY, May 21.—(AP.)—Usually reliable sources state that Pope Pius may leave the Vatican on May 30, the feast of Corpus Christi, to participate in a procession to St. Peter's square, which has been announced as an extraordinary demonstration.

Everything is said to hinge on whether ratifications of the Lateran treaties are exchanged by that date since, until that formality is concluded, the square will remain technically Italian soil instead of papal territory.

Sarter, president, Trier division, and Dr. Theodore Kittle, member of the Central Administration of the German National Railroads, who were guests of the Pennsylvania Railroad. They were escorted on a motor tour of the Pittsburgh district by F. W. Connor, passenger traffic manager, and W. R. Cox, freight traffic manager of the Pennsylvania.

75% OF BUSINESS GIRLS WASH DISHES AT HOME—

Almost without exception these busy girls say that washing dishes actually helps them to keep their hands lovely and white for the office—because they use Lux in the dishpan. Nine out of every ten asked wash their dishes with Lux.

As Miss Elsy Stephans, private secretary to the vice-president of a large company, says:

"I find that Lux in the dishpan keeps my hands looking lovely—and of course in my position it is important that my hands look dainty and well cared for. The Lux suds feel so soothing and bland, and my hands always look smoother and whiter after washing dishes than before. I really like to wash dishes for that reason—for with Lux your hands get beauty care right in the dishpan."

POWER TRUST'S GRIP EXPOSED

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Warning the nation to be on its guard against the power trust, Senator George W. Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, resumed today his expose of the widespread ramifications of public utilities interests in politics, the field of education and the newspaper world.

Norris gave the senate a complete resume of all power company activities brought to light within recent years. He told of money spent in local and national elections, of money spent to influence children in the public schools and of money spent to buy newspapers.

The insurgent leader's attack on the power trust, by a two-day speech to the Senate, probably will be the basis for congressional action to halt the acquisition of newspapers by public utilities. Norris was joined by a half-dozen other senators in deploring recent revelations of how the International Paper and Power Company had purchased 11 daily papers.

NOTHING OVERLOOKED

"A free press is the keystone to free government," said Norris.

"The power trust, meanwhile, does not forget anything. They not only buy great newspapers in Boston and other parts of the country, but they come out into Iowa and they buy men who are running the village elections for councilmen in order to defeat the man who stands on a platform of lower electric light rates."

Among the startling charges made by Norris, which he supported either by records of the Federal Trade Commission's inquiry or by other records were that:

PAPER OFFERS TOLD

The power trust tried to buy the Cleveland Plain Dealer and the Boston Post, offering $20,000,000 for each.

A $40,000,000 fund was set aside for the purchase of other newspapers and that 11 papers were bought outright while loans were made to two more.

Some of these bought newspapers hid the power trust interest when making ownership returns to the Postoffice Department.

An employe of the Chicago Journal perjured himself by claiming to own the interest in the paper, which actually was held by the power trust.

The state of Maine is controlled by the power trust and public utilities dictate its elections.

The power trust controls Iowa and has prevented the enactment of a state utility law or the creation of a state utility commission.

In Nebraska, the power trust has enacted a state law forbidding municipally-owned utilities from operating beyond city limits while private companies are allowed to operate all over the state.

NEW WAY TO COOK VEGETABLES

Four Famous Cooking Experts Discover New Method.

Four well-known cooking experts recently conducted a unique food-tasting test in the kitchen of one of the experts in New York City. Numerous vegetables were cooked. 1. With liberal water without sugar. 2. With little water and no sugar. 3. Liberal water with sugar. 4. Little water plus sugar. In every case when the vote was taken, liberal water without sugar lost, and in every case little water plus sugar won.

This discovery shows how to make vegetables so tasteful and appetizing that both children and adults will ask for more. Just try this new recipe and then experiment for yourself and see what a marvelous difference the addition of sugar to cooking vegetables makes.

BANANAS WITH CRANBERRIES—Cook 2 cups cranberries and ¾ cup water about 3 minutes. Add 1 cup sugar and stir until dissolved. Arrange 6 small or 3 large bananas that have been scraped and cut in half in a greased baking dish. Pour the cranberry mixture around them and bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) 20 minutes until the bananas are tender.

SWETONIC SAGS AS KREMER BRACES

THE big league baseball bosses must have kept the rabbit ball locked up yesterday. Either that, or the pitchers were in improved form all around. Whatever the cause, they had a comparatively good day, and the scores of the game were in striking contrast to such counts as 20-16, 14-13 and other recent results that sounded like telephone numbers.

Bill Clark

In each of the three National League events yesterday, the losing club was held to one run. One team in the American was held to a single tally, and another registered but three. No outfit in either circuit score more than six and only two went that high.

The outstanding slab feats were the success of Jess Haines, of the Cardinals, in hanging up his fourteenth consecutive victory (nine won last fall and five this season), and the great work of William Watson Clark, Brooklyn southpaw, in holding the Giants to two hits and pitching eight perfect innings.

CLARK'S present hurling form causes more regret than ever around here that Donie Bush did not win his point when he made the Glenn Wright trade with Brooklyn last December. For Clark was Donie's first choice, but the Robin management refused to let Bill go and the best that Bush could do was to take Jess Petty and Harry Riconda.

Clark would be a great help to the Bucs right now, as Manager Bush seemingly cannot get four pitchers in a winning stride at one time. Now that Remy Kremer appears to be finding himself, Steve Swetonic seems unable to go the distance without weakening, indicating that he has not fully recovered from the effects of his spring illness.

AT that only shut-out pitching would have won for the Bucs yesterday, as Guy Bush was too much for their offense.

It took some flossy chucking to hold the Pirates to one run and five hits in view of the fact that in a string of nine games immediately preceding yesterday's encounter the Bushmen had scored 69 runs and made 115 hits, an average of almost eight runs and 13 hits to a contest.

And besides it was only Pittsburgh's fourth defeat in 14 straight games. Not so bad. No club can win them all.

Charley Root

CHARLEY ROOT'S success in pitching five consecutive victories for the Cubs, with one tie game on the side, topping his winning streak with a shutout over the Reds last Saturday, has led Bruin supporters to believe that he is rounding into his form of 1927 after an off-season in 1928. And with Root back in form, they contend that the Chicago Nationals will have the best hurling staff in either league. They can't see any other corps to compare with that made up of Root, Perce Malone, Sheriff Blake, Guy Bush, Arthur Nehf and Hal Carlson.

BRUIN boosters contend that all six of the pitchers named are good enough to be rated as regulars, and the only question, in their opinion, is how Manager Joe McCarthy can give them enough work to keep them on the right edge. But McCarthy himself isn't losing any sleep over that part of it.

Neither is he claiming the pennant on the strength of the staff's present appearance. He knows it's a long way from now to the finish line and recalls the fate of the Pittsburgh club last year as showing what may happen in baseball.

"GIVING our pitchers enough work to keep them in form is the least of my worries," McCarthy says. "Double-headers soon will be coming along, and, anyhow, with the lively ball and the short fences, pitchers are knocked out of the box so often that there's no trouble finding work for them all.

Dink Templeton

"Then there's another thing. Remember the Pirates of last year? They started with Miljus, who had been a world series sensation against the Yankees in the fall of 1927, Kremer, Grimes, Hill, Meadows and Dawson. There's a total of six. All of 'em regulars, too. And how many pitchers did they have when they needed 'em? One, just one. Grimes. The same thing could happen to any other team.

AS most of the big colleges throughout the country have been allowing sprinters to put their feet on starting blocks in the dashes, instead of using holes, Dink Templeton, track coach at Stanford University, thought he could get away with something else in the same line. The attempt cost his team a victory in the California intercollegiate meet at Los Angeles last Saturday. When the runners took their marks for the 100-yard dash, the official starter, Bob Weaver, noticed that in front of the Stanford men a number of red blocks were spiked into the ground and that the sprinters were resting their hands on the blocks that give them a fast getaway.

"HEY, you can't do that," Weaver shouted to Templeton. "Why can't I?" countered the Stanford coach. "There's nothing in the rules to stop me." So the race was run, and likewise several other races, and under ordinary circumstances Stanford would have won. But the officials ruled out the Stanford runners for use of "mechanical aids," despite Templeton's protest that wooden blocks could not be termed "mechanical" exactly.

So, the best that Stanford got as a result was second place with 44½ points, first honors going to Southern California with 72 points. Possibly the penalty paid by Stanford will serve as a warning and help track sports. Some of the coaches and meet operators have been going too far with the racket of ringing in foreign agencies to help the athletes.

PIRATES EAGER TO WIN FINAL OF SERIES

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, May 21.—These are strenuous days for our Pirates, yet there is a big rainbow in the horizon in the shape of the four Eastern clubs, which soon will begin to flock into Pittsburgh.

The Pirates today were set to battle Cubs in the rubber game of a high-powered series. With each club owning a victory in the two games played it is quite unnecessary to state that the fur will fly this afternoon.

LOTS OF FUN AHEAD

And if the Cubs win today, they will have to encompass the feat over the slab cleverness of one Larry French, who has won three games in a row for the Freebooters, his shocked victims in order being the Giants, the Robins and the Cardinals. Mike Cvengros or Fred Blake will oppose the Portland marvel.

The succeeding 19 days in the lives of the Pirates are to be fraught with excitement. At the end of that time the Buccos will be on the old home ground for a long stay.

When they finish with the Bruins this afternoon, the Bucs will hurry back to Pittsburgh on an early evening train to be all set for those Reds who will make their season's bow in the Oakland orchard tomorrow afternoon. Four games will fill the Forbes Field bill over the remainder of the week.

The exciting Pirate travelogue will be resumed Saturday night immediately after the fourth game with the Reds is completed.

TO GO TO ST. LOUIS

Sunday will find the Bushwhackers in St. Louis for three contests with Billy Southworth's club, these to be followed by a trip back to Pittsburgh, and then it will be a case of home sweet home for more than two weeks so far as the Pirates are concerned.

The Cubs will help to entertain through the interesting Decoration Day period, their departure to mark the debut of the Eastern clubs.

The Buccos tasted defeat yesterday in the second game with the Cubs, even though Steve Swetonic held the wreckers to eight hits. Steve pitched a beautiful game until the seventh round when the Cubs broke out with a three-hit attack after an error on the Pirate infield. The final score was 6 to 1.

Guy Bush, sometimes referred to in the vernacular as the Mississippi Mudcat, held the Freebooters to five hits, so that North Side Steve had only a slim chance of winning, yet the Indianapolis graduate swapped

Russian Injured In Bout With Lewis

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 21.—(INS.)—Matros Kirilenko, Russian heavyweight wrestler, is in a local hospital here today suffering from a dislocated shoulder and slight concussion of the brain, as result of his bout here last night with Ed (Strangler) Lewis, former world title holder, who won the decision when the Russian was unable to continue.

Both men had a fall to their credit when Kirilenko attempting to butt Lewis out of the ring missed his mark and plunged over the ropes on the concrete floor.

WOMEN GOLF STARS IN TEAM MATCHES

MRS. WILLIAM G. BOGGS

Shannopin and Logue Vue battled to an 8-all draw in their league golf match, and one of the strongest members on the Shannopin team was Mrs. William G. Boggs, who won three points from Mrs. Leon Macdonald in a close encounter.

MRS. LEON MACDONALD

When the Longue Vue and Shannopin Country Clubs clashed in their Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania team match, on the former's home links yesterday, Mrs. Macdonald was conceded a fine chance for victory, being one of the satelites of that team, but Mrs. William G. Boggs, of Shannopin, held her down three ways for a like number of points in one of the hardest-contested matches of the day. In another club match, Alcoma was returned the victor over St. Clair by a score of 11 to 3.

FERRO CHECKS KAYO STREAK OF HERRERA

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Tony Herrera, the sensational young Mexican junior-lightweight, who makes his headquarters in Chicago and fights under the management of Ray Alvis, scored his third victory in two weeks in Western Pennsylvania when he returned to the Jolly Bowl in New Castle last night to face Frankie Ferro, of Philadelphia, but he failed to maintain his knockout pace. Ferro not only went the scheduled 10 rounds with him, but gave him a tough fight in the bargain.

Immediately after the bout Herrera left for Indianapolis, where he fights Jimmy Hackley, of Louisville, tonight. Next Monday night, he appears again at Little Washington, where, last week, he repeated his knockout victory over Ray Newton, and after that he will rest up until he boxes in the North Braddock Bowl, June 10. Midget Kilburn, of Philadelphia, will be his opponent at Little Washington.

FERRO TOUGH FOE

Herrera, who is tall, rangy and boyish, moves about the ring like a Harry Greb, but he packs a punch in either hand. He exploded plenty of them on the jaw of Ferro and also laced him about the body, but Frankie, boxing like the seasoned veteran that he is, shook them off with a smile and never quit boring in. In fact, Ferro carried Tony off his feet in the first round by assuming the offensive from the first bell and keeping it up. Herrera got going in the second round and won it, but Ferro danced about with him and held his own in the third.

Herrera won the next three rounds only to see Ferro put on a great rally in the seventh and force him on the defensive. They fought after the bell in this round with the crowd up cheering so madly that the boxers could not hear the gong.

Ferro's left eye developed a bad mouse in the eighth and Herrera won this and the final two rounds, but he knew he was in a fight and admitted as much after it was over.

Ferro won many friends and will be welcomed back in the bowl. He is managed by Al Lippe, who will come over here today to establish headquarters for Steve Smith, who will get in tonight and stop at the Roosevelt Hotel and train at Flynn's gym for his battle with

FORMER IOWA STAR IRWIN'S SUCCESSOR

Ralph (Buss) Hogan, 29, a graduate of the University of Iowa, has been named to coach the Carnegie Tech varsity basketball team for next season, according to an announcement made today by Graduate Manager of Athletics Clarence Overend. He succeeds John Irwin, who resigned after the close of the basketball season.

Hogan is now head basketball and track coach at Libbey High School of Toledo, O.

While a student at Iowa, Hogan gained fame in football, baseball and basketball. He is said to be one of the best cinder path men turned out at the Western school.

SUCCESSFUL COACH

After graduating from Iowa, Hogan became athletic director at the Fostoria, (O) High school, where his teams were successful in track, football, basketball and tennis.

Hogan went to Toledo-Libbey last year, when he became assistant football coach, centering most of his attention to training backfield men. While at Libbey his teams ranked with the best in the Buckeye state. He was a contender for the championship with Toledo Scott, the city titleholder.

The new Tartan floor mentor will come to Pittsburgh to live here permanently, where he will go into business.

George Nease is the captain of the Plaid's floor outfit for next year. He will be the nucleus from which Hogan will have to develop a new combination.

MANY CANDIDATES

Dan Dougherty, Ken Loeffler, Penn State College; Jimmy Robertson, of Carnegie Tech; Pete McRea, of Syracuse; C. O. Benson, of St. Louis U.; William C. The post of athletic director is a new one at St. Francis, having been recently created by the board of governors, of which Charles M. Schwab, steel man, is a member.

Daily, who has coached football at West Virginia Wesleyan and served as athletic director at Fairmont (W. Va.) Teachers' College, will assume his new duties at once. He also will continue as president of the Middle Atlantic, which position he has held for four years.

TECH TO MEET TITANS HERE FRIDAY

By JESS CARVER

Westminster College's track and field team, which did not appear here today for its meet with Carnegie Tech, due to a general kicking around of the schedule, will be with us on Friday and duel with the Tartans at that time. Tomorrow, the Titans furnish the lower Beaver Valley with a mid-week performance, meeting Geneva at Reeves Stadium.

Coach Erxy Graham's young blades (Westminster) were favored to trim Guy Halferty's kiddies if they had hooked up today, and the two days that will elapse between now and then, will hardly affect the odds. At the same time, or by the same tokne, Geneva figures to beat the Ttitans tomorrow. So it looke like an even break for the United Presbyterians.

On the occasion of their appearance here, now set for Friday, the U. P's will present an unbeaten sprinter in Ken Hemer, who will compete in both the 100 and 220 yard rashes.

FRAZIER TO RUN HERE

Pittsburgh will see a school star of some magnitude here Saturday on the occasion of the annual Pitt Interscholastic Championships. This fellow Frazier, Charleston High's crack sprinter, who ran the century in 0.09 4-5 twice last week, is entered and will run against Pennsylvania speedsters of the ability of Carter, of Schenley, Herring, of Midland, Fleming, of Westinghouse, and Rath, of Wilkinsburg.

Frazier set a new state record for the 100 in the trials of the annual state interscholastic championships at West Virginia University, Morgantown, on Friday. He was clocked at 0:09 4-5. On Saturday, in the final, he equaled this time.

Running in the 220 on Friday, Frazier qualified with a time of 0:22 4-5, equaling the state mark, but was beaten out by Gwinn, of Parkersburg in the finals Saturday.

Tad's Immortal Fight Stories

By TAD

(For 30 years, Tad (T. A. Dorgan), one of the greatest cartoonists and sports authorities, covered the "fight game." Shortly before his death, recently, he wrote and illustrated a score of stories describing, in his inimitable style, those ring battles which for thrills and sensationalism were stamped indelibly in his mind. These reminiscences deal not only with fights in which titles were at stake but also with thrilling affairs staged in private and at the smaller clubs. This story is one of the series. Others will follow.)

Jim lost his goat and then the fight. With everything but past performances in his favor Stewart, who outweighed the foxy Kid by 40 pounds, ran backward 20 miles around that ring.

Poor Jim was in a bad place. He had three master goat-getters against him, and what they did to him was a caution.

While resting in his dressing room just before the battle, Harry Pollock, manager of McCoy, sent a doctor to Jim's room to see whether the latter was sick or not. He said that he heard Jim was weak at the stomach and he needed assistance. Jim threw the doctor out and then began to worry some.

When the gloves were being put on, Jack O'Brien, who seconded McCoy, went over to Stewart and asked him whether he had his life insured or not. He told Jim that McCoy was the wickedest hitter alive and didn't care what he did as long as he won. Jim's eyes popped out at the news and he bit his lips some.

Referee Charley White gave them instructions and told them to break at his order and not hit after he had called for a clean break. McCoy then grabbed Stewart around the neck and, jerking it down with a snap, asked White if it was fair to hold a man like that and whale away. Of course, White said "no," and Jim went to his corner trying to get the hitch out of his neck.

Well, by the time the gong sounded Stewart was so frightened that he might have fainted if Jimmy DeForest hadn't whispered a few kind words in his ear.

The very first time Stewart led at McCoy he started to dance away across the ring, and Jack McAuliffe, who sat near Tom Sharkey, turned and said:

"Tom, he leads at McCoy and then runs away. Did you notice it?"

"Well," replied the Tar, "outside of that he is a pretty good fighter, isn't he?"

That was the story of the fight. Stewart wasn't anxious to bump against the Kid's left and the latter was not the most anxious man in the world about a fast pace. McCoy was there, but never to fight from bell to bell without a stop. He never could have done it, and if Stewart had adopted rushing tactics he might have made a name.

They hadn't gone half a minute in the first round before McCoy feinted with his left to the stomach and then brought that old corkscrew up on the jaw. Stewart went down like a ton of brick and was so frightened that he looked twice at his corner before getting up. McCoy stood over him with that famous sneer on his face. He looked as though he was saying: "Hurry up and get up, boy, I want to peddle a few more before my license runs out."

Jim got up and broke all records getting to another corner. He was thoroughly beaten then, and never led again without dancing five feet away with every jab. He was bigger, younger, heavier and stronger than McCoy, but that sneer was the barbed wire fence that kept him at bay.

The Kid danced around the big fellow, feinting with that left, dancing this way and that, and stalling to the Queen's taste. Stewart had weathered that punch and wasn't anxious to tackle another. McCoy wasn't sure just how far he could go, and wasn't wasting any more punches than he could afford.

This was the best round of the fight. There was nothing to the thing at all after that excepting the perfect stalling of the Kid and the distance which Mr. Stewart kept.

McCoy took a few dives himself, but he usually copped the big fellow, and if he didn't, threw another scare into him that kept Jim at a safe distance while he grabbed another little rest.

Every round of the go was McCoy's, with the possible exception of the fifth, and that we might call an even one, because in that Stewart slapped the Kid twice on the mouth while the latter was coming in, and his friends tore off an awful cheer up in the back gallery.

HORTON SMITH SETS PACE

BULLETIN.

ST. CLOUD, France, May 21.—(AP.)—With two scores of 66, Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., shattered all records for the St. Cloud Country Club course and ran away from the field in the first day's play for the French professional golf championship. Smith's 66 in the morning, five under par, was duplicated in the afternoon.

ST. CLOUD, France, May 21.—(AP.)—Horton Smith, young Joplin, Mo., golf professional, returned a score of 63, five under par, in the first round of the French professional championship today. The tall young Missourian played the first nine holes of the St. Cloud course in 34 and the last nine in the astonishing count of 32 strokes.

DROPS LONG PUTTS

Smith's approaching was deadly and he dropped putts from 12 to 20 feet. He was in trouble only once. At the eleventh his drive landed under a tree and his approach rested under another. But he got his next close to get down in four and bag his par 4 just the same.

Out	4	5	4	4	4	3	4	2	4—34
In	4	4	3	4	4	4	2	3	4—32	—66

He took a 44 to the turn, which included an 8 at the fourth hole where he took three niblick whacks to get out of a shallow bunker guarding the green.

His approach shots at the second, third, fourth and fifth were bunkered and at the eighth he drove under a tree and had to play out lefthanded, taking a 6. He dropped another stroke at the eighth, where his iron from the tee drove over the green. Hagen finished the round in 79.

Aubrey Boomer, the St. Cloud professional, had 71. Other scores in the first round were Johnny Farrell, 72; Ed Dudley, 73, and Gene Sarazen and Joe Turnesa, 75.

FRENCH FACES CUBS TODAY

LLOYD MISSES BOUNDER

The ball was on the ground as it scooted between Dick Bartell and second base. Just how it eluded Lloyd Waner for three bases is something a bit hard to explain. The drive was an ordinary single, good for two runs, but Stevie's smash cleaned off the sacks. It was a case of "there goes your old ball game," even if the hit had been held to a single.

The battle of the clever righthanders was a 1-to-1 deadlock as late as the sixth inning. Cuyler stepped out to spoil the thing for his former mates in this frame.

Paul Waner robbed Woodie English of an extra-base hit at the start of the round by a diving catch. Cuyler followed with a single and advanced on Hornsby's out. Hack Wilson came through with a single that tallied Cuyler.

The battle still was in doubt as late as the eighth when the home batters put over their big stuff. Dick Bartell started them off all right with a wide throw to first. Singles by Cuyler and Hornsby and an intentional pass to Wilson preceded the Stephenson wallop.

BABY SAL SORIO

Mexican ring star, who failed last night to defeat Tod Morgan for the world junior lightweight title in their bout in Los Angeles. Many sharps picked him to win by a knockout, as he has so many of his other battles.

TOD MORGAN RETAINS TITLE

After opening the fight with a right to the head, Morgan sent Sorio on his heels with a left to the jaw as they clinched. In the third round, Morgan went down claiming a foul after the challenger landed a right and left to the head and a right to the body. The referee motioned to the champion to continue and he grabbed the Mexican round the waist with both hands after a right hook sagged his knees.

In the fourth, fifth and sixth rounds the champion found Sorio's face easily with his left and in the seventh round he landed 10 times without a return. Both fought desperately in the eighth, but Morgan had the better of the exchanges. In the tenth round the champion drove the Mexican to the ropes twice and landed rights and lefts to the head.

Graham Breaks Par for City Golf Links

WINDSOR NEXT FOR M'TIERNAN

Three of the four bouts that will make up the next to last show of the season in the Moose Temple, downtown, Friday night, have been closed by Promoter Francis Flynn.

Buck McTiernan, pride of Swissvale, will make his third appearance in a main bout in the Moose ring with rugged Johnny Windsor, of Herron Hill, testing the potency of his wallop, which has stopped Mickey Solmen and Johnny Carey his last two times out.

In the second bout, Frankie Rio, of Cleveland, who last week won the decision over Ken Hargraves, in the same ring, will be brought back against U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, who also has a victory to his credit over Hargraves.

Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, stablemate of McTiernan, returns to the ring after a long absence, due to an infected hand, to meet Jack McCarthy, of Oakmont, in the semi-final. The opening bout will be arranged today.

DEMARCO AT BOWL

The card for the opening show in the Meyers Brothers Bowl, North Braddock, has been strengthened by a new change in the semi-final, whereby Cuddy DeMarco, of Charleroi, will take the place of Young Saylor, also of Charleroi, against Larry Brignolla, of Erie, over the eight-round route. Saylor has an injured hand and can not box. DeMarco has been under a 60-day suspension by the commission as a result of his tactics against Tony LaRose at the Moose Temple, and the ban is not up until next Monday, but the boxing commission has agreed to lift it in time for him to fight Thursday night. Benny Bass, of Philadelphia, and Steve Smith, of Bridgeport, Conn., are in the main bout, and two six-rounders complete the card.

CARPENTIER VS. BOYCHAN

U. S. Carpentier and Joe Boychan meet at Steubenville, O., tonight. Vince Dundee boxes Pal Silvers at Newark, N. J., and amateur bouts are listed at the South Hills Country Club.

Tiny DeBolt and Billy Jones box one of the two 10-round bouts at Erie Friday night. Tony Herrera was sought as a principal in the other feature event, but will be unable to take it because of conflicting dates.

Bad News Taylor, of Donora, wants to fight Tony Herrera or any of the other 130-pounders.

The amateur boxing bouts scheduled at the Twenty-seventh Ward A. C., last night were posponed because of rain and rescheduled for this evening. In the event rain again interferes a new date will be set.

DAN BILLICK LOSES

ALLENTOWN, Pa., May 21.—(AP.)—Johnny Canzoneri, of Alpha, N. J., 123, and Davey Adelman, Philadelphia, 120, fought eight rounds to a draw here last night. Heinie Hart, of Allentown, 119, won a decision in eight rounds over Danny Billick, of Pittsburgh, 119.

RAIN AND COLD SPOIL SANDLOT SCHEDULES

By TOM BIRKS.

The rain and cold weather, which affected seriously the sandlot schedule last evening, threatened the twilight battles carded for this evening would be played. Three contests listed for the City League are thus threatened with postponement, as well as a number of battles among the independents and in other local leagues.

The City League games include the J. L. Thomas North Side Civic contest, slated for the Salt Work grounds; the Pleasant Valley Smiler-St. John's nine game at Pleasant Valley and the Stowe Civic-Book Shoe engagement at Stowe.

SOHO-C. M. C. BOOKED

In the Pittsburgh Central League, the Soho oBard of Trade nine is scheduled for a game with Mt. Washington C. M. C., but this contest, like those of the City League, is likely to be postponed. Jerry Saunier has been priming the boys for this game since the Soho club went on a hitting and winning rampage. Soho is winning all of its games by outhitting everything else in the Central loop. John Hoynyak feels that it will take a good club to stop the Soho boys.

In the Inter-County loop three games are listed. Homewood-Brushton hopes to open its home league season with the Butler club providing the opposition. Beltzhoover is booked to go to Canonsburg, where winning ball games is a tough job. Beaver Falls will try to atone for its Canonsburg defeat by stopping Dormont at the high school grounds.

In the West Penn League, McKeag, genial manager of the Universal nine, will try to get his home season started with a bang when Export-Murraysville appears at the Cement Works grounds.

Manager Geiger is going to make a smash at winning this game to avenge the defeat at Cheswick. Bad and cold weather has halted the Export-Murraysville pitching staff, but when Roy Speer and his mates get started it is going to be a different tune.

Tomorrow evening the much-awaited Universal-North Bessemer game will be staged at North Bessemer. This game was scheduled twice, but was rained out each time.

The W. L. Reineckers and the W. O. W. clubs hope to clash this evening in the feature of the Greater Pittsburgh Class A champions' schedule. Jack Collette will have a real club on hand to try to offset the defeat of last season in the championship final. With Mike Jedinak trying to repeat, the fans should see an interesting battle.

SMOKE TALKS
by the DUTCH MASTERS

You have heard the old saying that no man can eat quail on toast every day for thirty days? Well, you can smoke Dutch Masters three hundred and sixty-five days in the year. And that's a real test of a cigar's "smokeability."

A toast to a man well deserving of fame—
I know not his birthday or even his name—
But join me, all smokers, wherever you are—
Here's health to the chap who first made a cigar!

We often wonder whether it really is the best of good form for one gentleman to hold a light to the other's cigar. Personally, we hate to hurry over that first, fragrant, soul-satisfying puff. We'd much rather be handed the match box and be allowed to light our own.

Before dictating that letter to Jones giving him a piece of your mind, smoke a good Dutch Masters over it. Then, if you still feel the same way about it, go ahead. You were probably right about the matter and not just plain grouchy.

Stocks Lose Ground — Wall Street Quotations

HIGHER MONEY BOGY SENDS MARKET OFF

NEW YORK, May 21.—(AP.)—The cloud of higher money rates hung over the stock market again today and prices generally lost ground despite the sporadic efforts of pools to bring about a general rally. Rails displayed a fairly firm undertone in reflection of the favorable St. Louis and O'Fallon decision, but the industrials and public utilities encountered further selling pressure.

Call money renewed at 7 per cent, but the supply of funds available at that figure was scarce, and the rate is expected to work higher. Time money continues firm around the highest levels in years.

In view of the expected stringency around the end of the month, several brokerage houses have been advising their customers to lighten long commitments and reduce margins, which probably accounts for much of the selling in the last few days.

Failure of the market to make a favorable response to the O'Fallon decision led to a resumption of selling by professional operators, who acted on the theory that the market was over-bought, and that the general run of traders lacked sufficient buying power to take advantage of favorable news developments. Brokers report that the borrowing demand for stocks, particularly the motors, indicates the pressure of a large short interest.

LITTLE IN NEWS

There was little in the day's business news to influence the price movement. Dividends were inaugurated on the new Phelps Dodge common at the rate of $3 annually, but the stock, nevertheless, dipped to a new low level for the year.

High priced specialties were again hard hit. Case Threshing dropped 17 points to 360, which contrasts with the year's high of 509. Federal Mining and Smelting fell 15 points to 220, or 90 points below the year's peak. Burroughs Adding Machine advanced 1¾ to a new high at 329 and then dropped to 315. Auburn Motors, Commercial Solvents, United Aircraft, Murray Corporation, Stromberg Carburetor and Westinghouse Electric all fell 5 to 8 points.

New low prices for the year were registered by General Motors, Chrysler, Nash, Hupp, Cerro De Pasco, U. S. Smelting, Industrial Rayon and United Fruit.

DECLINES NUMEROUS

Declines of 1 to 3 points were distributed over a wide list of industrials and public utilities.

Early gains of 6¼ points in Atchison, 6 points in Chespeake and Ohio, and 4½ each in New York Central and Frisco common were sharply reduced around mid-day. An irregular recovery set in during the early afternoon, but its progress was impeded by the heavy offerings on all rallies.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, May 21.—(AP.)—With Liverpool quotations on wheat showing less firmness than expected, wheat prices here averaged lower early today. A decided downturn in the value of corn owing to better weather for planting operated also to ease wheat. Opening at ⅜c off to ⅛c up, Chicago wheat later tended to sag, but with December delivery showing comparative strength. Corn started unchanged to ⅜c down and subsequently underwent a general setback. Oats likewise inclined downward. Provisions held steady.

Despite early declines in wheat values today, the market here developed considerable strength later. A feature was increased buying power of September and December deliveries. Commission houses readily absorbed offerings of these two deliveries, whereas July was pressed for sale. Reiteration of estimates of present large world supplies, together with advices of generally fair to good immediate crop prospects, were cited as accounting for relative weakness of July wheat.

Associated with enlarged buying today of the more distant deliveries of wheat were assertions that present prices of American wheat did not represent anything for the farmers' labor. Friends of higher prices said a situation of this kind could not continue.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, May 21.—There was little change in the raw sugar market early today and while nearby sugars were easier, shipments were unchanged. Refiners continued to show interest at prevailing prices in certain positions and sales were reported of 21,000 bags of Cuban nearby at equal to about 3.60c delivered, 19,500 bags of Porto Rican early June arrival, 9,000 bags of Cuban prompt shipment and 42,000 bags of Philippines middle June arrival all at 3.58c. In addition 7,000 bags of Philippines for July arrival sold at 3.61c.

Raw futures was quiet and price movements were narrow and irregular. The market opened 1 point lower to 1 point higher with near months a little easier under liquidation and trade selling, while new crop deliveries were steady on covering and commission house buying, and held around these levels throughout the remainder of the forenoon, with midday prices about unchanged from the opening.

In refined a fair withdrawal demand was reported but no new business. Prices were unchanged at 5.00c for fine granulated.

Bankers' Acceptances Decline.

The American Acceptance Council reports for April the largest monthly decline in outstanding bankers' acceptances recorded since the council has been functioning. The volume dropped $94,138,171 to $1,110,841,482, as of April 30. Robert H. Bean, executive secretary of the council, stated that the dollar acceptance business of American banks is just now sharing the penalties of a disorganized money market, and we must expect the credit system which finances such a large part of our foreign trade to continue paying the price of an "out of hand" situation in the general money and credit market of the country until the balance is once more restored. Since December 31, when the record high total of acceptances was reported, the volume has decreased $173,000,000, or about 13½ per cent. A seasonable decline at this time of year is to be expected, but the decline during the first four months of last year was but $100,000,000. The total of $1,110,841,482 on April 30 compares with $1,204,979,653 on March 30, and $1,070,712,002 on April 30, 1928. Mr. Bean said that the unusually high discount market rates for acceptances has undoubtedly resulted in the transfer of some business to London, where the volume of sterling credits is now believed to be higher than for several months.

More Rail Litigation.

Out of the manifold complexities of the O'Fallon railroad valuation decision handed down yesterday by the Supreme Court railroad observers tend to get two clear facts. One is that the theory of fixing railroad rates to give a reasonable return on the value of railroad property committed to public service will be the object of much more litigation before any rates are changed. Second, the shadowy claim of $500,000,000 which the government has raised against the more prosperous carriers of the country on the score of excess earnings will be much abated. If the O'Fallon could have been made to pay $250,000 by a Supreme Court decision, the New York Central, the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Atchison and several other lines would have had to pay immensely greater sums. The law is that a railroad must return to the government half its excess earnings over 6 per cent on valuation. The Interstate Commerce Commission will now have to figure out the entire bill again and reduce it materially. When it comes to fixing rates on yet unknown valuations, however, there are many other factors to be included.

Buafflo Grain Traffic.

Statistical analysis of the grain situation in the port of Buffalo has revealed a large increase in the flow of traffic through the port during the first week of rail shipment of export wheat under the two-cent-a-bushel rate reduction. The number of cars loaded during last week was 4,113, which exceeds the loadings of any previous week this season. Only 1,073 cars were loaded in the preceeding week when grain operators were awaiting approval of the rate reduction by the Interstate Commerce Commission. A total of 5,156,000 bushels of grain were elevated in the local port during last week, as compared with 4,625,000 during the preceding week, but the total storage in the elevators Monday amounting to 23,337,272 bushels represented a decrease of 3,421,000, whereas the storage of a week before, 26,758,441 bushels, represented an increase of 848,000.

Plan Huge Cracking Plant.

Fred B. Lloyd, president of the Petroleum Conversion Corporation, announced that the Shell Petroleum Corporation of London has joined with a group of New York financiers in a program to erect in this country the largest oil-cracking unit ever constructed by the industry. The projected plant will be situated at Wood River, Ill., the announcement said, and is designated to revolutionize present methods of manufacturing gasoline. It will have a capacity of 420,000 gallons of oil daily. Other similar refining units are planned in this and other countries, including one at Wilmington, Cal.

McKeesport Tinplate.

Quiet accumulation is reported to be going on in McKeesport Tinplate. The better business being done by the canning companies is expected to be reflected in the earnings of this organization during the current year.

Forbes

Battle in Air Staged by Bank, Industrial Giants.

—By B. C. FORBES—

THE greatest industrial corporation in America and the greatest financial organization in America have both become interested in aviation by buying into Pacific coast companies. The West showed the East the way.

First, National City Bank interests hooked up with Boeing, who made his mark in Seattle and in California, early developing the foremost commercial flying service in the country.

Now General Motors acquires virtual control of Fokker.

PRESENT indications are that there will develop a big five in American aviation. The current is running very swiftly towards the absorption of isolated, independent companies.

GREAT significance attaches to General Motors' acquisition because it and Ford are the leading manufacturers of the tri-motors used in the largest ships capable of carrying many passengers. General Motors had already made its debut in aviation by taking hold of the Bendix Corporation. Doubtless other concerns will be corralled by General Motors to build up and round out its aircraft facilities.

CHARLES E. MITCHELL and his National City Bank associates acted quickly after making their initial association with W. E. Boeing. They reached out for several companies playing a leading part in various phases of the aircraft industry, including Pratt and Whitney—which, incidentally, is headed by F. B. Rentschler, brother of Gordon S. Rentschler, president of the National City Bank. United Aircraft and Transport, organized to assimilate the various units, has recently figured very prominently in the stock market by doubling in price. High hopes are entertained of this influential group.

"FLYING is a young man's game," declared Henry Ford. Edsel Ford is the airminded member of the family. Since the Fords took up the manufacture of the powerful stout all-metal ships, rumors innumerable have circulated concerning gigantic Ford aircraft plans. But thus far these rumors have not been confirmed. Henry Ford some time ago pictured to me a dazzling vision of airships of the future and what they would accomplish, but his picture was of gigantic aircraft of many motors, not of myriads of tiny machines. Just how prominently Ford will figure in the swiftly unfolding drama of the air remains to be seen.

THE C. M. Keys-Curtiss group, which has been developed step by step over a relatively long period, is a conspicuous factor. The list of those associated with Curtiss and associated companies reads like half a dozen pages from Who's Who. The banking interests include Herbert Fleishhacker, of San Francisco, Hayden Stone & Co., Canal Bank and Trust Company, of New Orleans, National Shawmut Bank of Boston, National Park Bank of New York, Cassatt & Co., Blair & Co., Crocker National Bank of San Francisco, Central Union Trust Company of New York, State Street Trust Company of Boston, Guardian Detroit Company, Equitable Trust Company of New York, Girard Trust Company of Philadelphia, Bank of America of California, Central Trust Company of Chicago, Marine Trust Company of Buffalo, People's Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago, First National Bank of St. Louis, First National Bank of Boston, Dillon, Read & Co., New York.

THE aviation corporation also has very strong financial backing. Its directors include Robert Lehman, of Lehman Brothers, who is chairman of the executive committee; R. K. Mellon, Pittsburgh; W. A. Harriman, of W. A. Harriman & Co. (chairman of the board); Matthew C. Brush, of the American International Corporation; Rogers Caldwell, of Nashville; John W. Cutler, of Edward B. Smith & Co.; John C. Greer, Jr., of the Guardian-Detroit Company; John W. Haynes, of C. D. Barney & Co.; Stanley J. Halle, of Halle & Steiglitz; James M. Hall, Jr., of W. E. Hutton & Co., Cincinnati; W. W. Crocker, of San Francisco; George Mixter and Fred S. Pratt, of Stone & Webster; Maurice Newton, of Hallgarten & Co.; George M. Pynchon, Jr., of Pynchon & Co.; Lloyd W. Smith, of the Union National Bank, of Pittsburgh; Sidney W. Souers, of the Canal Bank and Trust Company, of New Orleans; Edward W. Stetson, Guaranty Trust Company of New York. It is also noteworthy that the aviation corporation has brought steamship and railway men into its fold.

OBVIOUSLY a battle of giants is brewing; the strongest financial people in the country, it will be seen, have identified themselves with this lusti of all our infant industries. Powerful financial support is not a guarantee of success, but it is extremely important. That company which possesses the greatest brains, plus adequate capital, will inevitably advance to leadership.

DID you read the other day of the wonderful new Diesel aircraft engine produced by Packard Motor Company? A flight of 650 miles was made at a fuel cost of only $4.68. This is but a foretaste of the strides bound to be made in making flying cheaper and safer.

What fortunes could be made by buying aircraft stocks now if one could tell just which company is destined to come out on top! Usually it proves wise to pick the strongest.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, May 21.—(AP.)—The selling movement which was ushered in yesterday continued practically unabated today throughout the club market list, although a small rally at noon reduced some of the losses. Gains made by a handful of favorites yesterday were wiped out for the most part.

Call money held firm practically throughout the session at the renewal figure of 7 per cent. Traders are concerned over the credit outlook despite the present appearance of easier money. Brokerage houses are advising paring down of margin accounts in expectations of a stringency the end of this month or early in June.

There was little in the day's news to stimulate any concerted action by forces for the advance. Western Air Express, which made good progress upward yesterday at one time was down more than 4 points, but in the midday rally regained part of this loss. Bendix Corporation and Bendix Aviation, both of which established new highs on Monday, sold off, the former down more than 14 points from its peak and the latter more than 8. Bendix Aviation is reported negotiating for the control of two more companies in the automobile and aviation accessory field. Fokker and Keystone also were under pressure.

Utilities broke 1 to 6 points. The break in St. Regis Paper was believed to indicate that traders had discounted the week before the company's excellent earnings report. Selling in this group is considered a normal reaction from the rapid advances scored by power stocks in recent weeks.

Settlement of litigation between Sparks Withington and Radio Corporation, with interchange of patents, brought buying into the former. Grigsby Grunow continued to move higher, greatly reducing the two sharp breaks brought about earlier in the year by two reductions in price on its radio sets.

Mining shares have been slipping gradually lower ever since the reduction in copper prices from their recent high levels. Newmont worked lower today. This company's holdings put it in a position to benefit from a boom in red metal.

The oils were fairly steady, with gains and losses held to fractions. Advancing crude prices has stimulated little buying, traders being inclined to wait for a settlement of the production curtailment plans.

The O'Fallon decision failed to buiy the rails. Alabama Great Southern and Pittsburgh and Lake Erie, which rose sharply yesterday in the late trading, slipped back.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

O'FALLON CASE EFFECTS LIE IN FUTURE

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE Supreme Court's decision in the St. Louis and O'Fallon case will not have any widespread immediate effect but it will mean much to railroad operations in the future.

Few carriers are earning enough money at present to be required to pay recapture under any method of valuation. The trend of railroad earnings has been steadily upward so that, unless something happens to swing the pendulum in the opposite direction, more carriers will be placed in the class where they may be earning more than 6 per cent on their valuation in the future. Under the transportation act of 1920 they are required to pay half of their profits in excess of this amount to a government fund to be used for the assistance of the weaker roads.

WIDELY varying estimates have been made of the probable increase in the valuation which may take place as a result of the decision. If the increase amounts to about $11,000,000,000 this means that all of the railroads of the coutry will be allowed to earn $660,000,000 more each year before the commission can demand that they pay recapture.

Predictions that the sharp increase in the valuations to be accepted as reasonable will mean sudden advances in freight rates are rather unlikely of fulfillment. Technically the roads are entitled to earn 5¾ per cent on their value. This precedent was established nine years ago and although the commission has known for several years, on the basis of its own figures, that the return to the carriers was not near this amount, it has shown no disposition to make any upward revision of freight rates. Since the commission was not inclined to let the railroads earn the legal return on its own guess at a proper valuation it is not likely to permit them to show earnings of 5¾ per cent on any one else's guess.

THE commission is allowed sufficient leeway under the transportation act to make it unnecessary for it ever to put this provision into actual practice. Merely doubling the rates would not help the railroads. The commission must take into consideration how much the traffic will bear. Freight rates too high would either cripple business or drive shippers to the use of other means of transportation.

While the decision makes the prospect of large recapture payments in the future very remote it may result in some upward revision of rates, although they are not likely to be in full line with the higher valuation.

THE St. Louis and O'Fallon decision was merely an interpretation of an act of Congress requiring the commission to pay attention to the provision that due regard be given to the present replacement value of railroad properties, not merely to their pre-war value. Congress, if it wished, could change the transportation act either as regards rate making or valuation and make ancient history of the decision. Any burdensome increases in freight rates would be likely to bring this about.

The Supreme Court did not rule on any question of the railroad's property rights or declare any provisions of the transportation act confiscatory.

THE court did not even definitely state that the present replacement value of the railroads must be taken entirely. It only ordered that this value be given consideration. It stated that some roads might not be entitled to full replacement value. This leaves a loop hole for a new "greatest law suit in history" to determine how much consideration present replacement value must be given and how, when and where the commission is to apply the principal in deciding what a particular railroad is worth.

SICK PEOPLE NOT TO BLAME

WORLD IS FULL OF FOLKS WHO HAVE TO BE RUDELY SHAKEN INTO GOOD HEALTH.

"It is queer," said the World's Tonic druggist, "queer how so many people have lost faith in drugs when they are sick. They seem willing to mope around half sick until their condition gets so bad they are desperate. I don't know, however, that they are so much to blame. There are so many medicines that are put together only to sell, that it is a little hard to get people to realize that some medicines stand out like giants among all the rest because of their merit.

"Take some of these incomplete medicines, for instance—the kind that you have to take this pill or that with them. The pill itself makes you feel better, and the medicine gets the credit. Just contrast that with World's Tonic. Here is a remedy that cost years of work and thousands of dollars before it could be put upon the market, because it had to be exactly right before the public could have it. The laboratory set out to find a real and effective remedy for catarrhal conditions, something that would be complete in itself and effective. Did they find it?

"You couldn't go about the country as I do and answer that question in any other way than with an emphatic 'Yes.' The results I see every day, the restoration of people who are desperately ill, all convince me, as they would anyone, that many thousands who are half sick now could avoid severe illness and be restored to excellent health by the use of World's Tonic." World's Tonic is for sale at all Dow Stores (formerly McCulloch), and all other first class drug stores. (A-48)

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Key Stocks Resist Decline.

The market staggered again today under the weight of further forced liquidation and selling brought out by a series of rumors similar to those heard for the past 10 weeks. The report that Secretary Mellon was going to resign was scotched promptly from Washington, but it had some influence in the early market. The O'Fallon decision and the raise in crude oil with numerous favorable dividend changes failed to stem the tide of selling until well along after mid-day when buying in large blocks made it appearance in pivotal stocks. Anaconda was jerked up sharply and Steel common was taken in heavy volume. This encouraged teh traders whose hopes had been gradually disappearing and who felt that sooner or later they would be squeezed out of their stocks in the Reserve's manipulative tactics which have already endangered the business situation by creating a fear of a stock market panic and its inevitable business depression to follow. However, strong buying this afternoon was of the character to suggest the biggest interests in the Street were coming to the rescue and those already not wiped out held their shares and thus diminished the supplies coming into the market.

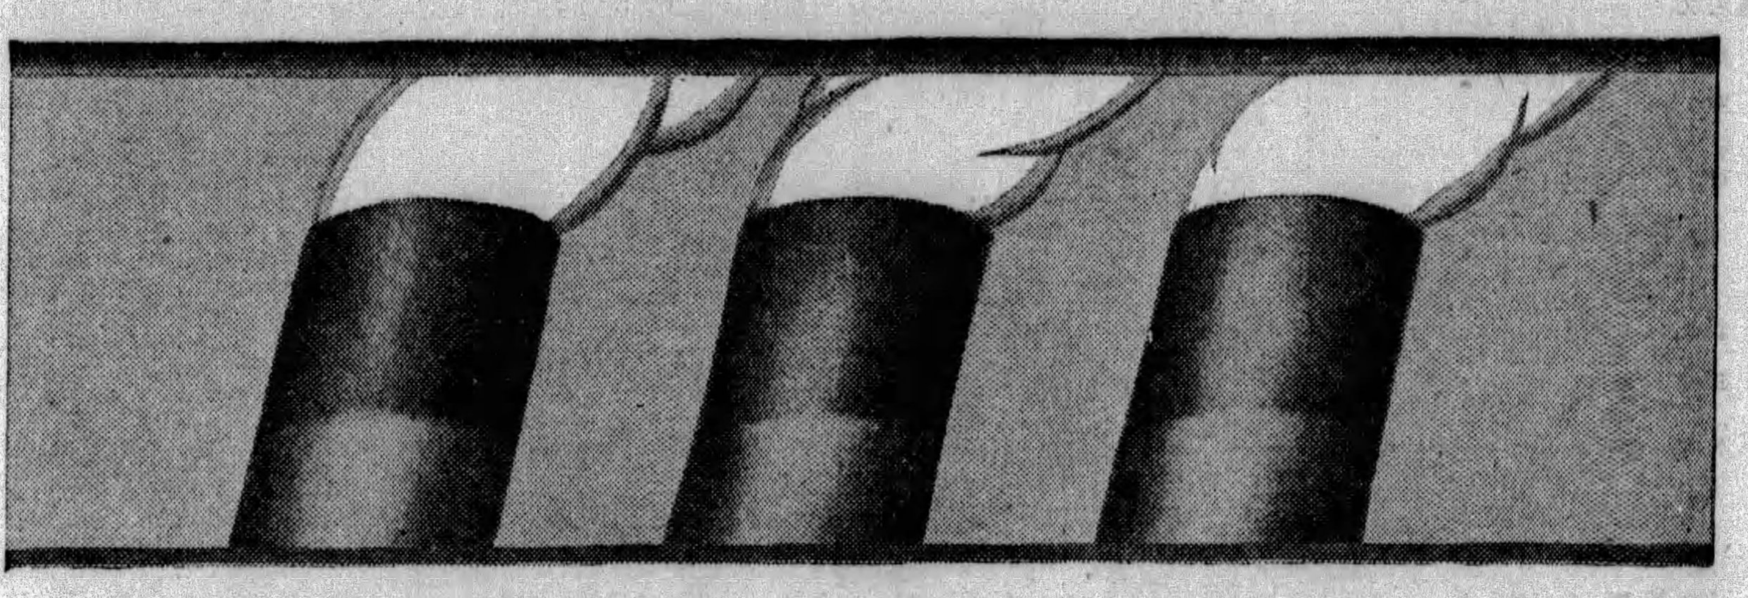
TRAVEL in COMFORT
Leave Financial Cares at Home



The experience of one of our depositors, recently, furnishes an excellent example of the broad service we are able to provide. This depositor, a widow with a moderate income, wished to make an extended trip abroad. Our Travel Bureau arranged the itinerary, purchased tickets and made all steamship and hotel reservations for the entire trip. The depositor purchased Mellon Travelers Cheques and also obtained from our Foreign Bureau, without any cash outlay whatever, a Mellon National Bank Letter of Credit.

The Letter of Credit was secured by satisfactory collateral securities and the income from these, placed to the credit of her account, more than covered the successive withdrawals on the Letter of Credit.

Three different issues of the securities left as collateral had been called for payment or had to be exchanged for other securities, and the bank, in accordance with the depositor's instructions, completed the transactions after she had sailed.

Meantime, the depositor was thoroughly enjoying her travels, untroubled by financial cares and confident that her affairs were in good hands.

We can make your trip just as carefree and enjoyable.

LEARNING FROM COLUMBUS

ALTHOUGH Columbus really was looking for a sea route to India in 1492, the result of his voyage was the much more important discovery of America.

Men and women often start to accumulate money for a certain thing which later becomes less desirable. But there is always sure to be something for which the money can be used.

We have many depositors who are steadily accumulating the money that will enable them to carry out their plans for the future.

We would like to have your account.

PLANE ATTACK TO BE HEARD ON RADIO

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

AN AERIAL attack on New York City at night will offer fans something different in the way of radio entertainment. Flares from a bomber will be dropped into the metropolis and a radio reporter in the plane will keep score of the "duds" and good hits. KDKA at 9 o'clock and your money back if the invading foe doesn't win.

Brian McDonald, former manager of a Pittsburgh broadcasting station who is now with Earl Carroll's "Vanities," will give a short program over KDKA at 5:30 p. m. Brian is resting at his home here for a few days before leaving for the Pacific Coast where he will be starred in a Publix Theater Unit. Pleasant and cheerful as always, Brian looked the picture of health in a visit to the Sun-Telegraph office yesterday.

Brian McDonald

Paul Whiteman will serenade California preparatory to his trip west in the Old Gold-Paul Whiteman Special. "California Here I Come" is the opening number on the WJAS concert at 9 o'clock. Mr. Whiteman and his orchestra will be the guests of WJAS and Pickering's in Syria Mosque this Saturday night.

Back in the days of hoopskirts and the reign of the "Unhand me, sir" maiden, many good plays were produced. One that has stood the test of time is "Under the Gaslight," which will be given by the Eveready Players over WCAE at 9 o'clock tonight. Frederick Forrester, star of "White Cargo" and "Cobra," will play the lead. It is a very good bet.

Johnny Marvin will entertain with the Orchestradians, KDKA at 10:30, and Jackie Coogan, Jack Smith and other stars will feature the Keith-Orpheum Bill over WCAE at 11 p. m.

The Navy Band, WJAS at 8:15, has a very good program including a tone picture, "Mississippi."

A short talk by Gov. John H. Trumbull of Connecticut, to be followed by a Soconyland Sketch depicting the dramatic story of the famous Charter Oak.
The Sketch, glorifying Connecticut, will carry its listeners back to the year 1661, when the colony received its original charter. The history of this charter, which Gov. Andros of New York spent years in attempting to obtain, will be vividly related, including the final ruse adopted by the citizens of Connecticut when they hid the charter in the oak tree, in order to prevent its falling into Andros' hands.

"UNDER THE GASLIGHT."
"Under the Gaslight," famous old thriller of Civil War days, will feature the Eveready Hour tonight.
Frederic Forrester, star of "White Cargo" and "Cobra," will be before the microphone as the mustached villain of Daly's play.
One of the great scenes of "Under the Gaslight" is where Laura, the delicate heroine, breaks out of a warehouse with an axe just in time to drag a boy friend from the thundering wheels of an express train. This hair raiser and all other action of the play will be reproduced exactly as in the original. The musical numbers including such jewels as "The Man On the Flying Trapeze" and "The Baggage Coach Ahead," which were also in the original play, Nathaniel Shilkret and the Eveready Hour orchestra will play.
KDKA—Aerial Bombardment Demonstration.
NEW YORK CITY TARGET.
The plan is to have an Army bomber release several parachute flares over New York harbor, the flares to symbolize bombs that might be dropped into the heart of Manhattan. After flying over New York for about 15 minutes, during which time O. B. Hansen aboard the bomber will describe what is taking place aboard, then the "attacking" plane will head back for Wright Field at Dayton. The bomber will be refueled in mid-air, both going to and coming back from New York. Middletown, Pa., will be the refueling point. One refueling will be in daylight and the other at night.

TRAFFIC CLUB PLAY CARDED MONDAY

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

The Traffic Club of Pittsburgh has carded the first of three tournaments this season for the Westmoreland Country Club Monday. Indications are that this event will be larger and stronger than ever before, if that is at all possible. No less than eight events have been placed on the books, excluding the club championship, which, of course, is of superlative importance. And Westmoreland's course is in splendid condition.

The committee in charge of the Traffic club's tournament this spring includes George W. White, general chairman; John I. Mulvey, vice-chairman; G. D. Winstein, secretary; F. W. Kuhn, chairman of golf committee; H. W. Cross, F. M. Ewing, C. C. Gray, J. W. Hoover, T. J. Faulconer, G. T. McCleary, J. P. Rounds, J. V. Sevin and J. H. Wilharm.

It is anticipated that the old reliable Joe Mathews will also be among those present assisting in the direction of the tournament, men more competent than he at this job being few and far between.

In the Traffic club championship, the low gross scores for the first 18 holes at each Traffic Club tournament during the season will be recorded by the committee in charge, and the one having the lowest gross over the three tournament periods, or for 54 holes, will be awarded the title trophy.

Two special events for guests have been listed for Monday's big event. It is expected a number of out-of-town railway and traffic men will be on the scene of action as usual.

Play will get under way at 10:30 a. m. After the golf, a big dinner, with speeches, will be held.

MEMBERS EAGER FOR TILTS

With the setting all set, as it were, for the first 18-hole match of the annual 36-hole contest for the Grogan Cup at the Shannopin Country Club, and both of Highland and Shannopin members eager to get into action, it appears that golf interest will be centered in Ben Avon Heights tomorrow. The Shannopin layout is in splendid condition for the man-to-man combat, and Greenkeeper Ralph Martin has seen to it that the greens particularly will be up to snuff.

S. A. R. TOURNEY CARDED

Dr. H. H. Sargent, chairman of the golf committee of the Pittsburgh Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution, announces a tournament will be held at the Chartiers Heights Country Club on June 18, instead of June 25 at the Edgewood County Club.

And Col. Franklin Blackstone, chairman of the National golf committee, announces that George L. Craig, Jr., one of the Allegheny Country Club's foremost wielders of the ancient and honorable stick, has become a member of the S. A. R. and will compete with the Pennsylvania Society in the National championship.

WOMEN PLAY

Two one-sided matches and an even marked the inaugural tournament of Section 2, Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania team league at the Longue Vue Club yesterday, under ideal weather conditions. Chartiers Heights walloped Westmoreland, 12 to 2; Alcoma whipped St. Clair, 11 to 3, while Longue Vue and Shannopin finished all even, 8-all.

LOEFFLER WINS

Bob Loeffler, Oakmont Country Club caddie-master, captured a tournament of caddie-masters and assistant professionals held at the Edgewood Country Club yesterday. He scored a 79. The next affair was slated for Alcoma, June 4.

Tug Phillips Loses Fight to Rose

COLUMBUS, May 21.—(AP.)—Billy Rose, Cincinnati lightweight, won the judges' decision over Tug Phillips, of Erie, Pa., in a 10-round fight last night. The crowd booed the decision. Eddie O'Dowd, Columbus featherweight, won from Jackie Willis, of Buffalo, in the fifth round when Willis' seconds tossed in a towel.

Answered by
WILLIE OGG
New England Professional, Former Massachusetts Open, Shawnee Open Champion.

While there are mashies made with varying lofts and a wide degree of face angles, the average golfer will find the one with a loft of 35 degrees best suited to his game. This will supply enough angle to get the ball into the air well, without sacrificing direction or distance. Where there is too much of an angle to the mashie face there is apt to be too great a loft to the ball, with a lack of distance where it is needed. The 35 degree angle gives both loft and distance.

Ferro had a five-pound pull in the weights, scaling 135 pounds against 130.

DEMPSEY LOSES DECISION

Bobby Dempsey, of Ambridge, 118¼, got off to a great start against Carl Cavelli, of New Castle and Canton, O., 119, and really defeated him in the semi-final, but Cavelli finished with a rush and copped the unanimous decision. Leo Mozdy, of Erie, 109, a smashing, crashing flyweight who is going somewhere, battered Scotty Graham, of Donora, 107, throughout the first round and bounced him off the floor four times in the second before Referee George Chip finally called a halt, and the two Mazzeo brothers, former amateur stars, of Cleveland, turned in victories in the two four-rounders, Pete Mazzeo, 121¼ pounds, who was a member of the Olympic team last year, winning the referee's decision over Pres Johnson, of Akron, 124, in a good fight and Vito Mazzeo, 117¾, beating Roy Minteer, of New Castle, 118½.

Rain kept down the crowd so that the gate was only around $2,000, a disappointment in view of Herrera's recent sensational work there.

Ike Kincaid, also a football and basketball star, was playing shortstop with the bases full, when the batter hit a line drive. Kincaid snared the ball, touched the runner going from second to third, and ran to third in time to head off the runner trying to get back to that base.

Willie Garner

TWO of the most famous jockeys in the Kentucky Derby last Saturday—Mack Garner, who rode Blue Larkspur, and Willie Garner, his nephew, who had the mount on Chicatie, made a record jump to reach the scene of the big race on time. Both rode in the Toboggan Handicap at Belmont Park in New York on Friday afternoon, Willie winning on Osmand and Mack finishing second on Polydor. That race was run shortly before 4 o'clock. The last train from New York due to reach Louisville in time for the Derby was scheduled to depart at 4:05. There was no chance for the Garners to catch it. So they dashed by automobile from Belmont Park to Curtiss airport, climbed into an airplane piloted by Randy Enslow and made a flight to Philadelphia in sufficiently quick time to overtake the railroad rattler there.

MACK finished fourth on Blue Larkspur and Willie, on Chicatie, landed 10 positions behind his uncle, or fourteenth. Mack still insists that Blue Larkspur would have won had the track been fast instead of sloppy.

The record of Clyde Van Dusen, the Derby winner, shows that horse has won exactly half of his races, including Saturday's victory. The son of Man o' War has gone to the post 20 times, won 10 times, finished second four times, third twice and was unplaced four times. Of his 20 starts 17 were made last year as a 2-year-old.

TOD MORGAN, junior lightweight champion of the world, who successfully defended his crown against Baby Sal Sorio in a 10-rounder in Los Angeles last night, is the oldest of the boxing champions.

Since winning the coveted title, Morgan has been sorely tested—and last night's bout marked his sixteenth triumph in defense of the kingship. Sal Sorio is a terrific puncher and has won most of his bouts by knockouts; many sharps had picked him to stop the champion.

Members of Boston Bicycle Club Elopes with Queen of Night Clubs

Congressman Frisby's investigation of Night Life carried him far yesterday. He sought an interview with Commissioner Whalen and Texas Guinan, but was easily outdistanced. Whalen denied that he had declared that the man Frisby mistook for him was a member of the Boston Bicycle Club (well known to the police) who has frequently been seen with the Queen of the Night Clubs. Whalen says he answered the description as a routine matter, in connection with the Rothstein case.

Metro Charter Is Given Civic Club Indorsement

Another important organization has gone on record as favoring the adoption of the Metropolitan charter, when it comes to the people for approval at the polls June 25. The Civic Club of Allegheny County, has given the charter its indorsement. The opinion of an organization of as high standing as the Civic Club enjoys is worthy of deep consideration and doubtless will be effective in promoting sentiment for the charter.

The Civic Club indorsement follows closely that of the League of Boroughs, Townships and Third Class Cities, and it indicates that thoughtful persons are convinced the interest of the citizen body as well as that of corporate communities will be served through success of the charter at the polls.

Voters who are of two minds about the metropolitan plan can safely ally themselves with the Civic Club and City-Borough League in this matter.

Pittsburgh Gets Boost And Air-Line Promise

"Pittsburgh is to be complimented on the speed and thoroughness of its plans, now that it has launched forth to make the city a hub in the air lines."

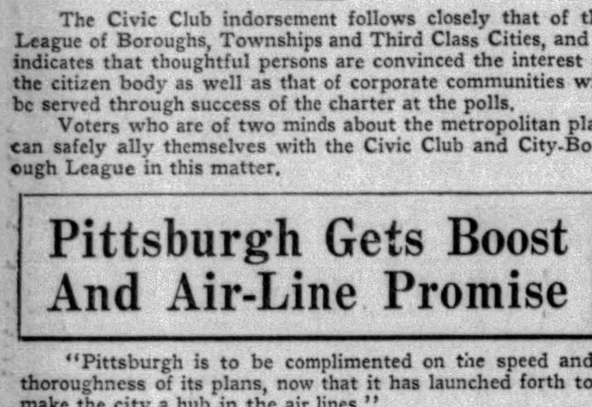
The speaker is Walter F. Brown, postmaster general, commenting on existing and projected facilities in behalf of aerial transportation. The audience is made up of members of the Chamber of Commerce. Aerial mail lines are being discussed and it is developed that two important ones having Pittsburgh as a central point are being considered by postal authorities.

One, Pittsburgh to Washington, Baltimore and Norfolk, is expected to be in operation before winter. The other line spoken of by Mr. Brown would connect New York with St. Louis by way of Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati.

The establishment of these lines will add to aerial mail system and, as Mr. Brown stated in his compliment quoted above, will tend to make our city a hub in the air lines.

The Mussolini Family

A Man of Extraordinary Power.



POWERFUL MUSSOLINI, HIS WIFE AND THEIR CHILDREN

You have seen pictures of Mussolini in a black shirt, leading his Fascisti.

You have seen him in official "frock coat," high silk hat, dealing politely with the King of Italy, whom he dominates, dictating the will of Italy to foreign countries and bluntly refusing to be controlled in any way by the League of Nations.

You have seen Mussolini on the deck of a battleship on his way to Italy's colonies in Africa. You have seen him in an airship, visiting regions devastated by earthquake or volcano.

It would be interesting to know where the four Mussolini children will be 20 years hence, and what they will be doing.

They will always be entitled to Italy's gratitude for work done by their father at a time when Italy had to choose between disruption, financial calamity and possible anarchy, and FIRM DICTATORSHIP under Mussolini.

Inside his own brain he carries and exercises the government of 40,000,000 of people.

He plans, formulates and enforces new laws, abolishing idleness, controlling both capital and labor as easily as a grown man would control two small children. He puts the Italian lira at a fixed value, far above the French franc, and KEEPS it there.

He renovates Italian industries, finding ways to finance them.

And night and day he carries the whole load, no one to help him.

D'Annunzio is there to sing his praises in verse and in prose. The singing doesn't help carry the load.

Able Italians are around him to carry out his orders, but they only CARRY OUT ORDERS. All the initiative comes from him.

Since Cromwell took charge of Great Britain, with Milton for his secretary, establishing for his name a respect and fear that long outlived him, nobody has done what Mussolini has done.

To understand his power you must realize that the Italians are the successors of the great Roman nation.

The power of the Roman is in Mussolini's face. And very great is that power, in men and in women.

Tales That Are Told

He Saw Too Much

"BE observing, my son," counseled Willie's father. "Cultivate the habit of seeing and you will become a successful man."

"Yes," added Willie's uncle. "Don't go through life like a blind man. Learn to use your eyes."

"Little boys who are observing get on much faster than those who are not," Aunt Jane put in.

The youngster took their advice to heart. A day passed and once more he stood before the family council.

"Well, my son," said his father, "have you been using your eyes?" Willie nodded. "Tell us what you've learned."

"Uncle Jim's got a bottle of whisky hid behind his trunk," said Willie, "Aunt Jane's got an extra set of false teeth in her dresser, and pa's got a deck of cards and a box of chips hid behind Emerson's Essays in the bookcase."

A Gem

Soon after her return home, however, the manager of the hotel at which she had stayed sent it to her and said it had been found by a member of the staff.

Then came the problem: Should she write and say it only cost sixpence, or should she send the finder a reward?

An Excellent Average

AT a conference of Negro preachers, a visiting bishop was looking at the various examination papers and came upon one marked 101 per cent. "See here, Brother Jones," he asked the worthy who was conducting the test, "what basis does yo' base yo' answers on?"

"100 per cent," advised the minister.

"But how does this man come to be marked 101 per cent?"

"Oh, yo' see suh," answered the minister, "he answered one question we didn't ask!"

Knew What She Wanted

IT was the last afternoon before the holidays, and the mistress asked the children to draw something they would like to be when they grew up.

Doris presented a blank paper.

"Don't you know what you would like to be when you grow up?" asked the teacher.

"Oh, yes, miss; I would like to be married, but I don't know how to draw it."

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

A LOT of people can talk stock market now that never talked it before. And some of them can talk from kinda sad experience already.

Mrs. Judson says to Mrs. Howax: "They tell me your husband is an expert on the stock market."

"Yes," says Mrs. Howax, "he is, I reckon. Anyhow he knows all about it. He knows just exactly which stock is going up tomorrow, and the day after tomorrow he'll know exactly why it went down."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

I AM about to pay my respects to Mrs. Florence Ray—bootlegger—condemned criminal now serving sentence in Fond du Lac—but withal a Regular Guy.

I don't know whether Florence's moonshine was worth much—

But her manners do her proud. And are a rebuke to a lot of females still strutting their stuff on the safe side of the bars.

Officers raided Mrs. Ray's home and found a small distillery. Whereupon a chivalrous judge asked her if her husband wouldn't appear in answer to the charge of liquor violation. Did Florence sob and quiver and pull a line about being a "helpless little woman"—and let her hubby take the fall? She did NOT.

"My husband doesn't need to appear," she said. "It's all my fault. I've been making it and he told me several times to quit."

Whereupon, says I, three cheers for Florence Ray.

Maybe she's a law breaker, but as an example of gameness she's worth several thousand of these Pussyfooting Priscillas who always duck from under in a crisis.

That girl's a WOMAN.

She's acting as women were supposed to act in the face of danger or blame—as most of them would act if that silly institution of chivalry hadn't been invented.

Women were not naturally planned to get a lot of protection and exemption from males. They were provided with two perfectly good hind legs, like the rest of humanity, and they were expected to stand on them. They were endowed with as much courage as men—as much intelligence and initiative. In short, the primitive female of the species carried exactly as much wallop as a male, and everyone knew it and treated her accordingly.

Then gradually The Boys got together and decided that they could grab off a lot more privileges for themselves if they made the Missis feel that she was a Clinging Vine. And the lady fell for it. Until finally her status became a cross between that of a Pekinese and a good Guernsey.

That's the truth about "chivalry"—drat it! Every time I think of the price We Girls have paid for having hats raised to us I get mad clear through.

But, thank heaven, chivalry is on the wane and we're getting down to brass tacks. Females are at last recognized and expected to act as People. Over in Russia no woman can bring a breach of promise suit. And the alimony pickings are getting slimmer and slimmer for the American banditee.

And now comes Florence Ray, standing up straight and taking it right on the chin! Golly, I'm grateful to that girl.

LOOK FOR REASONS

By Garrett P. Serviss

NOTHING can happen in nature that is not natural. If everybody would keep that platitudinous truism in mind it would be a bad day for mystery mongers, and a great source of comfort for the timid and the superstitious. Such a maxim applied in every case where some apparently inexplicable sight or occurrence startles the nerves, would soon banish ghosts, hobgoblins, and wraiths of every description.

It is a rule that should be taught to children. Tell them that if anything happens which seems strange to them, they should try to find the natural reasons for it, and that if they cannot find the reasons they should simply put down the failure to their lack of knowledge and experience. The imagination cries "boo!" and all the time to those who are not in the habit of looking for reasons. The early life of an imaginative child is often made miserable by groundless fears, reinforced by scaring dreams.

The imagination is man's greatest faculty, but no other needs so much discipline. Given free reign it is like a wild colt, even with one in adult years. Not long ago I awoke in the night. I was lying on my side. The room was as dark as a cave except through some crevice unknown to me, a ray of light made a bright streak low on the wall opposite my eyes. Suddenly as I gazed at it with half shut lids it began to move down the wall, and over the floor toward the bed. It seemed to come with little darts and leaps. A thrill ran down my spine. I shut my eyes and when I opened them there was the thing again, starting from its old place and coming on through the dark. A nervous thrill chilled me once more.

I said to myself, "This is ridiculous. I could almost cry out with fear like a child. I've got to find out what makes that."

There was little difficulty in discovering the crevice through which the light entered the room; but how account for that spontaneous and startlingly life-like movement? I had to resort to physiology before I found the reasons. As I was lying on my side when I awoke, my eyes had been drawn to the light streak low on the wall, and in doing so, the eyeballs had been turned into a somewhat strained picture. Slowly thus tended to resume their accustomed orientation and as they did so the light appeared to move in a contrary direction, since I was unaware in the darkness, until my little investigation revealed the fact, that I was thus gradually seeing the object more and more out of the "corner of the eye," while supposing it all the time to be in a straight line of sight before me. When I seemed to see the thing mysteriously crossing the floor toward the bed, I was actually viewing it immovable in its place on the wall, but from the side of the eye, as the muscles automatically drew the axis of the eyeball out of line.

This insignificant personal experience illustrates the meaning of "looking for reasons," which I believe to be one of the most useful practical rules of life, and one that cannot be acquired too early. Plenty of people use it in their business, but neglect it in unaccustomed and unexpected things. Analyze all of your impressions whenever you meet anything extraordinary; don't give up the maxim that nothing unnatural can occur in nature; question the reports of every one of your senses, test one by another, and you will very seldom, if ever, find yourself at a loss to account for any phenomenon of sight, hearing or feeling as a single though perhaps temporarily concealed result of the operation of the rational law of nature.

Bible Passages

David's Zeal to Serve

(Psalm 42)

AS the hart panteth after the water prooks so panteth my soul after thee, O, God.

My soul thirsteth for God, for the living God: when shall I come and appear before God?

My tears have been my meat day and night, while they continually say unto me, Where is thy God?

When I remember these things, I pour out my soul in me: for I had gone with the multitude, I went with them to the house of God, with the voice of joy and praise, with a multitude that kept holyday.

Why are thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted in me? hope thou in God: for I shall yet praise him for the help of his countenance.

O my God, my soul is cast down within me: therefore will I remember thee from the land of Jordan, and of the Hermonites, from the hill Mizar.

Deep calleth unto deep at the noise by thy waterspouts: all thy waves and thy billows are gone over me.

Yet the Lord will command his loving kindness in the daytime, and in the night his song shall be with me, and my prayer unto the God of my life.

I will say unto God my rock, Why hast thou forgotten me? why go I mourning because of the oppression of the enemy?

As with a sword in my bones, mine enemies reproach me, while they say daily unto me, Where is thy God?

Why are thou cast down, O my soul? and why are thou disquieted within me? hope thou in God: for I shall yet praise him, who is the health of my countenance, and my God.

Anything May Happen

ANYTHING may happen if you'll only think that way,
Anything may happen on a sunny morn in May!
Fairy tales may all come true, if you'll just believe them.
Fairies would be kind to you, but your doubting grieves them.

Not a single rose the less, not one song-bird gone;
Make it sweet as Eden was, it's still within your power,
Add you share of trustfulness and reap your joyous dower!

Anything may happen if you'll only see it so.
Anything may happen when the apple blossoms blow;

The Magician's House

By Herbert Kaufman

LAST night, radio's fingers swept the harp of the winds and flooded the room with celestial choruses.

Voices rang across the land, laden with laughter and tidings of far places, draining the continent of its information, and delivering the doings of the day, assorted and condensed to your distant ear.

You lifted the 'phone and a wire djinn grabbed your message and shot it through town faster than Aladdin's fleetest slave could have done the job.

A sixty-horse chariot awaits below, ready to gallop at mile-a-minute gait the instant your foot presses the signal.

Or if you prefer to wear the wings of Daedalus, climb into a sky bus and rove where his waxen pinions dared not soar.

Caruso is dead, but by grace of a resurrecting needle point, you can invoke his song, or summon Plancon's golden throat from the tomb, achieving with a twist of the wrist what Chaldean incantation never equaled.

As day fades, you touch a button and the lighting company's dynamo plucks stars from the ether and strews them through the dark.

Robots bring fire to your stove, clean your floors, beat your carpets, wash and iron your linens, knead dough, whip mayonnaise and at a turn of a spigot, drain mountain springs into your pitcher.

Darius the Great, with all his millions of serfs, couldn't tap rivers in his walls. And the tribute of his hundred provinces wasn't sufficient to evoke an ice-making machine or the plumbing system in your bathroom.

Czar Peter gathers the verdigris in his grave at thought of your heating equipment and fly screens.

Government augurs and soothsayers forecast the rains and foretell the storms for you without exacting fees or hecatombs.

Invention, politics, disaster and progress report to you each morning from the dimmest outposts of empire, and drop the printed record at the front door.

The Argentine has moved its vineyards to the corner store and the Spice Islands fill your kitchen canisters with seasonings.

Oases and gardens three thousand miles removed provender your larder and fruit bowl; oranges from your California estate, lettuce from your Imperial Valley ranch, pineapples from your Hawaiian plantation—luxuries denied kings and empresses at instant beck and call—silks and purple dyes, sherbets and cooling snows, meats that flesh-pots of Egypt never knew, and fish that Elizabeth's treasuries could not seine for her.

Pythagoras, Albertus Magnus, the learned Erasmus, Francis Bacon, Diderot and the Seven Sages among them, weren't a tenth as wise as the concentrated cream of experience and research canned in your encyclopaedia.

And in the precious vials of your medicine chest are more death-arresting agencies than Caesar's surgeons and Charlemagne's physicians were aware of.

Where else do so many wage-earners live in The Magician's House?

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 21.—This ugly story comes from one close to police headquarters and sheds a high light on the danger of casual flirtation in the wicked city. During a three-week period headquarters received unofficial whispers of seven mysterious blackjackings.

All seemed to have taken place along a certain strip of Park avenue and every supposed victim maintained stubborn silence. But the police kept on the trail of rumors and discovered that in each instance there was a "pick up" contact in the foyer of an upper Fifth avenue hotel.

There followed a taxicab drive from the hotel to a certain address on Park avenue. Witnesses were found who had seen bludgeoned men staggering and bleeding along the street mumbling of robbery. But they waved questioners off and went on their way alone.

A handsome young detective was selected to loiter about the hotel lobby with an eye peeled for the flirtatious lady. One evening, after a long vigil, he was impressed by a beautiful girl with the proverbial baby stare he had seen several times about the reception room.

She seemed agitated. He approached her, lifted his hat and said he had noted her distress and wondered if he could be of assistance. She was waiting, she explained naively, for an uncle to take her to a theatre. Time passed and the uncle did not appear.

The detective asked if he could see her home. She coyly demurred but finally consented and they drove off in a taxi. At a certain corner she said she lived a block away and it would be better to dismiss the cab and walk. Her family might be surprised if she returned with a stranger.

Near her doorway she suddenly stopped and said her shoe was unlaced. The detective gallantly knelt at her feet to fix things. His intuition caused him suddenly to glance up and a black jack was poised over his neck. The lady knew the proper spot for a knockout. And that was her racket.

Five fairish maids have stepped from the murky night club atmosphere to the clear white spotlight of the stage to portray featured or stellar roles. The comely crew of successful graduates is composed of Ruby Keeler, Clair Luce, Irene Delroy, Pearl Eaton and Doris Vinton.

Cabaret girls are known in theatrical agencies as "floor troopers." Intimate contact with audiences in jazz parlors gives them a calloused poise that others acquire only with years. Nothing disturbs them. They are deaf to the clatter of dishes and ringside nifties. Too, the cabaret ladies to succeed must be of great natural beauty. They cannot resort to the generous use of cosmetics so close up.

The manager of one of the white-tiled orange drinkeries on upper Broadway—he also jiggles the spigot—was in a somewhat confidential mood. (Drink servers of every sort take to me!) Anyway, he said despite $8,000 yearly rent his profits were $12,000 yearly. Ninety per cent of his customers are middle-aged men. Few women without male escorts imbibe at his counter. The big rush is between 12 and 3. Also the latest in fruit drinks is a diluted peach juice, very tart.

A gentleman with a warp to his humor has grown weary of answering mistaken telephone calls and has adopted a formula causing great distress among husbands who are total strangers. When some lady who has been given a wrong number inquires if Mr. Soandso is there he replies: "He was but he left pie-eyed to keep a date with his sweetie." We hope somebody shoots him in the foot.

This noon I heard a beetle-browed taxi bully shout an unprintable blasphemy at a confused and tottering white-haired man crossing West Seventy-second street. And I along with a half-dozen other supposed men let him get away without yanking him out of the seat for a sock on the jaw. Nor do many of us care for the way cops ignore the outrageous insolence of taxi drivers toward the citizenry.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

ARE your hobbies merely expensive pastimes or are they something that may eventually add to your income?

The thing that claims your attention outside your regular working hours is the thing in which you are greatly interested.

Interest presages success.

Hence it is important that your hobbies be something from which there might be benefit in the long run.

It should be benefit, physical, mental or financial.

Men's hobbies have sometimes become their most lucrative business.

You may have an idea that you would like to engage in a certain line of endeavor and if you had sufficient capital you might go into it on a large scale.

Because you cannot do this you have hesitated about a start.

But this line fascinates you and you keep thinking about it.

You can make a small, inexpensive start, and you should try to do so.

Many a fortune has been made as the result of a hobby carried out from a very unimportant beginning.

But the thing that must be done is to make a start.
